POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

POINTS FOR THE SMALL POULTRY-KEEPER.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

Most people who can try to have some holidays at this time of year, especially the city man, who, perhaps, keeps a few hens in the back garden and personally attends to them. Care should be taken in such cases that the person in whose charge they are left will take an interest in them, and not mind them in a haphazard way. Hens, and more especially ducks, become accustomed to the person who always attend them, and are quite nervous and frightened with a stranger; and a servant who attends to them because she has to do it often adds to their terror by rushing about, hurrying through the run, and throwing the food down any way. A few weeks of this kind of treatment might injuriously affect them for a long time.

GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

CARNATION TIME.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

We find all the garden Pinks easily increased by slips, or rather branchlets pulled off with a heel, trimmed, and firmly inserted in sandy soil, but not so the more aristocratic Carnation, for which one has recourse to layering to ensure strong rooted plants before winter. However, this is quite a simple matter with deft fingering, and, now with the advent of the blooms, we find the growths well ready for the operation. First, we make a little mound of stiff, loamy soil well up to the collar of the plant, in which to peg the young, strong growth after making the incision, which is done after trimming off sufficient leaves from the stem; then the knife is inserted well above a joint, carried through it, and an inch beyond, leaving the shoot still attached, and pegged down in the prepared soil in a way that the semi-severed stem is kept open to prevent joining; attention to watering does the rest.

YESTERDAY'S CASES IN THE COURTS

ERASMUS SMITH SCHOOLS.

APPLICATION IN HIGH COURT.

THE DISCOVERY OF DOCUMENTS.

(BEFORE THE MASTER OF THE HIGH COURT.)

Applications for orders for the discovery of documents were made in the case of the Governors of the Erasmus Smith Schools against the Attorney-General and a number of "special defendants."

The plaintiffs claim declarations that the object of Erasmus Smith in providing property, and creating and endowing the charitable trusts administered by them, was to propagate the Protestant faith according to the Scriptures, and to provide for the education, advancement and assistance of Protestants, and that they are bound to hold and administer the property vested in or transferred to them, or their predecessors, in such manner as to give full effect to and carry out such end and object; and that they are bound to ensure that the teaching of Protestant doctrine is an essential element in the education provided in the schools maintained and assisted by them with and out of the proceeds of such property.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S DEFENCE.

The Attorney-General, in his defence, did not admit that the object of Erasmus Smith in providing property, and creating and endowing the charitable trusts administered by the plaintiffs, was to propagate the Protestant faith, or to provide, for the advancement and assistance of Protestants, and submitted that the paramount object of Erasmus Smith in providing the property and endowing the trusts was the uplifting and disciplining, by means of education, of the poor children of the tenants and inhabitants on his lands. Prior to, and at the time of, the foundation and endowment, and ever since the foundation and endowment, the defence stated, the great majority of the children intended to benefit by the endowment were, and have been, Catholics. In so far as Protestant government and education were provided for by the endowment, such provision did not form part of the paramount intention of the founder, but was due partly to the political exigencies of the moment, partly to the disabilities for the time being attached to Catholics and Catholic education, and partly to the idea entertained by Erasmus Smith, that his paramount intention and desire for the uplifting and discipling of the said poor children would be furthered and assisted by proselytising them and turning from them from Catholics into Protestants. As a result of Protestant government, discipline and education, the great majority of the poor children who were paramount objects of the bounty of Erasmus Smith had since the date of the foundation refused, and still refused, to avail themselves of the said schools, by reason whereof the paramount charitable objects of Erasmus Smith had been, and are, frustrated and sterilised, and the classes intended by him to benefit had not benefited. The schools and endowments had been and are used for objects and for the education of classes never contemplated by the endowment. The Attorney-General counter-claimed that it be referred to the Examiner to settle a scheme for the Government ordering and regulating the charity.

"POLITICAL EXIGENCIES."

The "special defendants," in their defence, denied that Erasmus Smith had any Protestant or other religious convictions, and stated that the religious tendencies of Erasmus Smith were inconstant, varying from time to time with the political exigencies of the day. Erasmus Smith had, under the Protectorate, become a prosperous merchant in the City of London, and had acquired a considerable fortune, including claims and titles to land in Ireland, which he was astute and vigilant to secure and consolidate against the hazards and changes of a period of revolutions and of serious political unrest. Erasmus Smith conceived the Irish to be a backward and ignorant people; he had a high sense of the civilising influences of education, and believed it to be the duty and interest of a far-seeing English merchant to provide for the education of the persons who would be connected with his estates abroad. He desired to improve his position in the City of London, in society and in the State, and at the same time to strengthen his claims and fortify his title to land in Ireland by creating educational trusts to provide for public education in the districts in Ireland in which he had obtained, or hoped to obtain, grants of land.

PARAMOUNT OBJECT.

Erasmus Smith, the defence continued, promoted the trusts referred to, with the first, essential and paramount object and intention of endowing a free educational foundation for the children of the tenants and inhabitants of his Irish estates and of other poor persons. In promoting the trusts Erasmus Smith had little or no concern for the propagation of any form of Protestantism, and imposed no religious tests and made no provision for religious education under the trusts, save so far as it was necessary or expedient for him to do so under the prevailing laws from time to time. So much (if any) of the trusts as required the propagation of the Protestant faith according to the Scriptures was too uncertain and ambiguous an object to be recognised or enforced under the law. If and so far as the propagation of Protestantism may have constituted any part of the objects of the trusts, it was a subsidiary object thereof, and was inconsistent with the paramount objects of the trusts, and was impracticable of attainment in Saorstat Eireann, because the persons for whose education the trusts were primarily intended are, and always had been (with negligible exceptions), Catholics, who, and whose parents, had resolutely refused, and were bound as Catholics to refuse, to accept the benefit of the trusts, subject to the conditions designed for the propagation of any form of Protestantism. Erasmus Smith was well aware that the persons for whom the trusts were primarily intended were Catholics, and that any attempt to pervert their faith must be hopeless; he intended to provide real benefits for them, and never intended his trusts to be illusory. The trusts were void and unenforceable to the extent that they were expressed or designed to be engines for the proselytism of Catholic youth, because such proselytism was an incentive to breaches of the peace in Saorstat Eireann, and was fundamentally vicious and immoral, was opposed to public policy, and inconsistent with the Constitution.

A COUNTER-CLAIM.

The "special defendants" counter-claimed a declaration that the trusts are charitable, and that the paramount object of the trusts was educational and not religious, and was to endow a free educational foundation for the children of the tenants and inhabitants of the Irish estates of Erasmus Smith, and of other poor persons, and that the plaintiffs are bound to administer the trusts accordingly. They also claimed that a scheme for the administration of the trusts might be settled by the Court.

The "special defendants" state that they are Catholics, and representative members (or parents of members) of the class for whose benefit the trusts were established, and had been (or their children are) deprived unlawfully of all benefits from the trusts.

Mr. Bacon (instructed by Messrs. Sheridan and Kenny) applied on behalf of the "special defendants" for an order for the discovery of documents by the plaintiffs.

Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. O'Hanlon and Robinson) made a similar application on behalf of the Attorney-General.

REASONABLE TIME.

Mr. Kingsmill Moore (instructed by Messrs. Darley, Orpen and Synnott), on behalf of the plaintiffs, asked to be allowed three months in which to make discovery, in view of the long number of years over which discovery would extend. His friends, he said, had taken six months to put in their defence and he made no complaint about that, as he thought it was a perfectly reasonable time for them to take to put in a defence. He thought also that three months was a reasonable time for making discovery.

The Master suggested that the plaintiffs should be allowed until the 15th October to make discovery.

Mr. Kingsmill Moore said that he thought they might regard a trial next term as an impossibility, because he anticipated that when discovery had been made there would be an amended statement of claim, as the plaintiffs had been hurried, and the statement of claim was made in a great hurry.

The Master said that he would make an order for discovery not later than the 10th October.

Mr. Kingsmill Moore asked for a cross-order of discovery against the defendants.

Mr. Vincent Rice said that the Attorney-General had no documents to discover.

Mr. Kingsmill Moore said that, although the Attorney-General might have no documents to discover now, for all he knew the Attorney General might come into possession of documents afterwards.

Mr. Vincent Rice said that, if any documents came into the possession of the Attorney-General, they would be brought under the notice of the plaintiffs.

Mr. Kingsmill Moore said that he would accept that undertaking of Mr. Rice.

The Master gave a cross-order of discovery against the "special defendants."

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

ROWDY SUNDAY MORNING SCENES.

THREE MEN SENT TO PRISON.

(BEFORE MR. LITTLE.)

Guard Mines (198 C) and Guard McHugh (80 C) charged Christopher Grainger, Lower Gardiner street, with assaulting John Crosbie, with resisting arrest and with disorderly conduct.

Mr. P. H. O'Reilly appeared for Crosbie and Mr. P. J. Campbell for Grainger.

Sergeant Webb (24 C) stated that on Saturday night there was "pandemonium and terrible disorder" in Lower Gardiner street, which continued till Sunday morning. The police had their hands full, and were occupied quelling rows, subduing disorder and bringing prisoners to Fitzgibbon Station. There were, he said, drinking orgies proceeding the whole time in tenement houses in the district. A large number of people, male and female, were under the influence of drink. Rows broke out here and there, and there were showers of bottles, stones and missiles of every description falling in the area like rain. Guard McHugh was assaulted, receiving a kick in the stomach, which severely injured him. The free fights proceeded till 1.30 on Sunday morning, and the entire thoroughfare was strewn with broken bottles. More disgraceful scenes had never taken place in the locality.

SENTENCES AND FINES.

Guard Mines gave evidence that the accused resisted arrest, threw himself on the ground and used obscene language.

Grainger, in evidence, stated that when he went to separate Crosbie and another man the former made a kick at him and struck his leg against the railings.

Mr. Little sentenced Grainger to one month's imprisonment with hard labour. For resisting arrest he fined him £4, and for disorderly behaviour 20s.

Thomas O'Neill, Lower Gardiner street, was charged with committing an aggravated assault on Guard McHugh. His son, Thomas, was charged with disorderly behaviour and with assaulting the Guard.

Sergeant Webb stated that it was not safe for a Guard to go into this area alone after dark.

Mr Little sentenced Thomas O'Neill, senior, to a month's imprisonment for assaulting the Guard, and fined him 60s. for resisting arrest and 10s. for disorderly behaviour. Thomas O'Neill, junior, was sentenced to one month's imprisonment for assault.

'BUS DRIVER FINED.

CASE OF "OBSTRUCTION."

(BEFORE MR. HANNON.)

A decision was given in the case in which Inspector O'Callaghan charged on remand Michael Tanham, a bus driver, of Milltown, County Dublin, with having caused an obstruction with a Blue Line 'bus at Burgh quay on the night of the 15th inst., with having refused to remove the vehicle when ordered to do so by Guard Madden (105 B). He was also charged with assaulting the Guard.

Mr. Clarke (Chief State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted, and Mr. Gavan Duffy (instructed by Mr. O hUadhaigh) represented the accused.

Inspector Hurley, Chief of the Traffic Department, stated that the portion of Burgh quay where the accused had his 'bus was not a legalised stand or hazard.

Mr Duffy—Have you got any regulations to that effect?

Inspector Hurley produced a copy of the carriage regulations, in which the hazards and stands were defined by the Commissioner of Police, and he held that any place outside of these was forbidden.

Mr. Duffy—Is there any prohibition at this particular place?

Inspector Hurley—The inference may be drawn that the place is forbidden.

Mr Hannon said that he must hold that the defendant caused his 'bus to stand some minutes longer than was necessary to take up and let down passengers. He imposed a penalty of £1 on the charge of remaining on the quay longer than was necessary. He dismissed the charge of using obscene language, and held that the charge of assault was proved, but he would dismiss it. It was true that in the 'bus licence Burgh quay was described as a starting point or terminus.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT.

SUSPENSION OF A REFEREE

DECLARED NULL AND VOID.

FOOTBALL COUNCIL AS DEFENDANTS.

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

John J. Kelly, Carlton road, Marino, Dublin, sought a declaration against the Council of the Football Association of the Irish Free State that his suspension on the 6th of November, 1929, was null and void, and he asked for an injunction restraining the defendants from taking any steps or doing any acts to prevent him from officiating as a referee at football matches in the Irish Free State, and for damages.

It appeared that the plaintiff had been a referee of Association football matches in Ireland for about twenty-three years. When the Free State Football Association came into existence the Referees' Association was recognised by that body up to 1926. In that year differences arose between the Referees' Association and the Football Association, and from that period there was no official recognition of the referees, but the referees affiliated individually with the Leinster Football Association.

ATTACKED BY CROWD.

In March, 1928, the plaintiff, while refereeing a match at Dundalk, was attacked and assaulted by a crowd of spectators and received injuries and was laid up for some weeks, and was paid compensation by the Football Association. It further appeared that towards the end of the season 1928-29 an English referee named Fogg, while refereeing a match at Dundalk, was subjected to rather rough treatment, and a report of what happened was communicated to a sporting newspaper in England. The plaintiff, seeing this report, wrote to the same newspaper giving his experiences while refereeing at Dundalk. The letter written by the plaintiff came before the Football Association of the Free State and plaintiff was suspended, and his suspension was published in the daily newspapers. No notice was served on him, and no opportunity given him of being heard in his own defence.

EFFECT OF DECISION.

The plaintiff, in his evidence, stated that the effect of the decision of the Football Association was to prevent him from being allowed to referee matches in the Free State, Northern Ireland, England or Scotland.

In their defence the defendants alleged that the plaintiff was never a member of the Football Association of the Irish Free State, and, alternatively, that on the 6th November, 1929, he was not a member of the Association; and, further, that the plaintiff suffered no damage as a result of what was done by the Council, and that the defendants had a legal right to suspend the plaintiff.

Judge Shannon held that the plaintiff was entitled to receive notice of the proposed suspension, and should have had an opportunity of being heard in his own defence. The action of the defendants could not be sustained in law, and the resolution of the Council should be set aside and declared null and void and of no effect, and he gave the plaintiff £5 damages. He did not think it right to grant the injunction against the defendants.

Mr. Finlay, K.C., and Mr. J. Cawley (instructed by Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., and Mr. Casey (instructed by Messrs. Roger Greene and Son) for the defendants.

DAMAGES FOR PERSONAL INJURIES.

(BEFORE JUDGE GLEESON.)

James Goudie, Lower Sheriff street, a caulker, sued Daniel Troy, Malachi road, Arbour Hill, and his brother, Thomas Troy, Upper George's street, Kingstown, to recover £100 damages for personal injuries sustained by the plaintiff by reason of the alleged negligence of the plaintiff in the management of a motor car at Booterstown avenue on December 27th, 1929.

The plaintiff said that he was about to take up a position in the Dublin Dockyard Company at a date two weeks after the accident, and that he was unable to do so for some time owing to the injuries he received through having been knocked down by Thomas Troy's car, which was driven by Daniel Troy. The accident happened just as he was alighting from a tramcar. Daniel Troy, in evidence, denied that he knocked the plaintiff down. He picked up the plaintiff, who at the time told him that he had been knocked down by a 'bus.

The judge dismissed the case against Daniel Troy, and awarded the plaintiff £23 damages against Thomas Troy.

Messrs. Joynt and Crawford appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. F. Sherry (instructed by Messrs. Lynch and Deering) for the defendants.

DAMAGE TO COAL DRAY.

John Sammon, Fleming road, Drumcondra, claimed damages from William Meehan, Griffith avenue, for injury caused to the plaintiff's coal-dray and harness in a collision which took place between the defendant's motor car and the dray on the 27th December, 1929, at Drumcondra.

The defendant counter-claimed for damages to the motor car.

The judge held that there was negligence on the part of Mr. Meehan in not keeping a proper look-out, and he gave plaintiff a decree for £20 10s., with £3 3s. expenses for the engineer who gave evidence. He dismissed the counter claim.

Mr. W. Moloney (instructed by Mr. M. Noyk) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. James Cawley (instructed by Messrs. O'Hanlon and Robinson) for Mr. Meehan.

COLLISION WITH COW.

MOTOR CYCLIST KILLED NEAR LIMERICK.

A fatal motoring accident occurred last Sunday night two miles outside Patrickswell, Limerick. James Morrissey, a motor driver, was returning home to Adare on a motor cycle when he came into collision with a cow on the roadside, and received serious injuries to the head and chest. He was conveyed to his home and succumbed to his injuries early yesterday morning. He was about twenty three years of age. Accompanying the deceased man was another young man, George Farrell, who was pillion-riding. He escaped serious injury.

WATERFORD ACCIDENT.

Mr. James P. Coghlan, solicitor, New Ross, and Mrs. Coghlan and child were injured when a motoring accident occurred at the Riverstown road crossing at Tramore last Sunday night. Mr. Coghlan was motoring his family home from Tramore and when passing the cross another car emerged from the Riverstown road. To avoid a collision Mr. Coghlan turned his car sharply into the wall on the left-hand side of the road, striking it with heavy impact. All the occupants were thrown forward. Mrs. Coghlan's head struck the wind-screen, the glass of which was shattered, and sustained several head and facial injuries, and her husband and child also were cut about the head and face. After treatment at the City Infirmary, Waterford, they were able to leave for home. Mr. Coghlan's car was badly damaged.

BRAY LIGHTING.

A correspondent writes to call attention to the fact that, while it has hitherto been customary for the public lamps in Bray to remain lighted until half an hour after the arrival of the last train from Dublin, now the lights are being extinguished at midnight. The last train is due about six minutes after midnight, and so passengers have to make their way homewards in the dark. The writer hopes that it is only necessary to call the attention of the Electricity Supply Board to have this matter set right.

TIME SAVED IN BUILDING

TIME SAVED BY TRAFFIC

"FERROCRETE"
FOR RAPID CONSTRUCTION OF BRIDGES

The cost of a bridge is very much more than the cost of the accepted estimate. To the actual cost of construction must be added that of traffic diversion, congestion and delay. To the transport companies and business houses of near-by towns, every day of building is responsible for the wastage of thousands of pounds. And conversely, every day saved is a literal saving, and a big saving, of money to everyone whose business in any way depends upon the use of the bridge.

That is why it is no more than sound business to see that "Ferrocrete," the Rapid Hardening Portland Cement, is specified for all concrete work. In three to four days concrete made with "Ferrocrete" attains the same strength as concrete made with ordinary Portland Cement in twenty-eight days. "Ferrocrete" means speedier work and lower operating costs. It means less shuttering, no congestion to impede efficiency, a lower bill for lighting and watching and — as a natural consequence of quicker completion — a reduction in overhead costs generally.

Every architect and building contractor is familiar with "Ferrocrete," which has been used not only for such minor works as petrol stations, housing schemes and private roads, but on some of the greatest construction schemes of this century, notably St. Paul's, Tilbury Docks, the G.P.O. and for roadways such as Piccadilly, Cornhill, Charing Cross Road, the Strand, and Broadway, New York. It only needs a word to speed up a constructional job, and that word is:—

FAMOUS BOOK SAVED.

LAST MINUTE DECISION.

The "Bedford Book of Hours" has been saved to the nation, and, with the Luttrell Psalter, will continue to be on view at the British Museum until September.

Down to yesterday a balance of about £17,000 was required to save the "Bedford Book of Hours." The trustees of the British Museum, announcing the fate of the Book, "which was in the balance up to the last minute," state: "The appeal made a fortnight since met with a response so far satisfactory as to bring the balance needed within such limits that the trustees and the National Art Collections Fund could, at the cost of greatly straining their resources, complete the purchase, and this both bodies have agreed to.

"For this successful result the trustees are indebted, first and foremost, to the magnificent generosity of Mr. Pierpont Morgan, who has once again shown his friendship to our country and to the British Museum by an act of self-denying liberality on a grand scale.

"Next, to the National Art Collections Fund, who have drawn most liberally on their resources, and have used their influence with their members and the public.

"At the last moment it is their action that has been the decisive factor.

"Finally, the trustees have to thank a great multitude of subscribers, often of small sums, whose contributions and encouragement have made this result possible."

FIVE HUNDRED YEARS OLD.

The Bedford Book of Hours is a marvellously illuminated manuscript, prepared to the Order of John, first Duke of Bedford, by Herman, his "meke servant," and completed about 1415. In 300 miniatures it provides a picture gallery of England at the time of Agincourt. The pictures consist of small portrait heads, representing kings, nobles, monks, and laymen of every class.

One has been definitely identified as that of Henry IV., and the whole is invaluable for purposes of comparison, and in deciding questions as to the nationality of old pictures. The book passed into the Beaufort family, cousins of Bedford, until, in 1483, one of their number was executed by Richard, Duke of Gloucester, who seized it. After disappearing for many years, the book, in the seventeenth century, went to Lulworth Castle.

Though safe at Lulworth Castle, the Bedford Book had been entirely forgotten, until two years ago it was identified by the late Mr. J. P. Gilson, Keeper of the Manuscripts at the British Museum.

The Bedford Book and the Luttrell Psalter became the property of Mrs. Alfred Noyes, and they both came up for sale at Southebys on July 9 last year. Before the time of the sale, the Luttrell Psalter was withdrawn, it being stated that, owing to the generosity of an anonymous benefactor in advancing 50,000 guineas, the Psalter would be saved for the nation. The Bedford Book was submitted to auction, and brought £33,000.

Then came the welcome news that the book would be held by the buyer at the disposal of the British Museum for one year, in which time the authorities could acquire it at "no greater price than that given for it."

Mr. Pierpont Morgan proved to be the friendly buyer. Though anxious to add them to his own famous collection, he agreed that they should remain in England if the trustees of the British Museum could repay the money free of interest within a year.

Early this year the Luttrell Psalter was redeemed for £31,500. Within twenty-four hours of the time limit, the authorities have found the money to release the Bedford Book, which is now a national possession.

Mr. Alex. Martin, Secretary of the National Art-collections Fund, told a reporter last night that the amount contributed by the public had not yet been calculated.

Disher	Franklin Dyall

The Gaiety Theatre was well filled last night to welcome Mr. Franklin Dyall and Miss Mary Merrall. Five years have passed since their last visit, and, in response to repeated calls for a speech, Mr. Dyall expressed gratification "that he had not been quite forgotten."

In this new play, "The Limping Man," Mr. Dyall takes the part of "a great man rather than a great detective." What he does not know are the things he has no desire to know. The processes by which his conclusions are reached are a trifle obscure, but his cynical epigrams atone for his logic. As Disher, Mr. Dyall has full scope for that static acting in which he is at his best—he has nothing sensational to do, and no gymnastics. His Disher is Sherlock Holmes and Watson combined. The play is concerned with the nerve-wracking experiences of a week-end party at Tinker's Revel, Kent. Footsteps are heard, but no one is seen; bells ring without apparent cause; and finally a man is found shot dead a short distance away. The plot winds itself about a Rembrandt portrait and a potential American purchaser, the world-wide experiences of Disher and Phillip Nash, and finally the climax to a New York gang vendetta. It is all very cleverly contrived, and brightly written by Will Scott, and excellently produced by Messrs. Arthur Hardy and Franklin Dyall.

As Gloria Kite, Miss Merrall had little scope, but she did convey her discovery without using speech. Mr. Arthur Hardy's Sir Edwin Kite was an unusually competent study; so that more would willingly be seen of him. Mr. Cecil King's Inspector Cable added to the merriment.

"The Limping Man" is excellent entertainment, fully deserving its warm approval by last night's audience. It will be repeated every evening this week at 8 o'clock, with a matinée on Saturday at 2.30 p.m.

THE ABBEY THEATRE.

REVIVAL OF "PROFESSOR TIM."

The revival of "Professor Tim" attracted a full holiday audience to the Abbey Theatre last night.

The social and matrimonial manœuvres of Mrs. Scally have always provoked hilarity, and her discomfiture when her "Professor" brother returned as a drunken sailor evokes no sympathy. When all turns out well everyone is pleased, but still the structure of the play needs some attention.

Three changes have been made in the cast since its first production four years ago, but Messrs. M. J. Dolan and John Barton, and Miss May Craig filled their respective parts with great acceptance.

"Professor Tim" will be repeated each evening at 8 o'clock, and at a matinée on Saturday at 2.30 p.m.

ROBERT BURNS'S LAST ILLNESS.

PATHETIC LETTER BRINGS £630.

One of the most remarkable letters written by Robert Burns was sold at Sotheby's yesterday for £630. Within eleven days of his death in 1796 he wrote to his brother, saying that he had had a week's sea-bathing, and added: "God help my wife and children if I am taken from their head."

A copy of the first Edinburgh edition of his poems, which determined the poet not to go abroad in 1787, was sold for £128.

Colonel Dunlop, one of the trustees of Burns's cottage at Alloway, was the underbidder for the Burns letter. The Burns Museum possesses the "Veitch" Kilmarnock Burns, for which they paid £1,000 nearly thirty years ago. Since then a "Kilmarnock" has brought £1,700. The highest price obtained for a manuscript by the poet is £1,500.

Summer Shows.

Lapsus Calami.

There have been many excursions and alarums in connection with the Shannon scheme, but none has been quite so amusing as the latest, which, we hope, also will be the last. It seems that the contractors were to have handed over the completed job with due pomp and circumstance to the Free State Government before the end of the present month; but unfortunately an unhappy hitch occurred. The official transference was to have been marked by the issue of a special postage stamp, suitably inscribed, of course, in the Irish language. Everything was ready for the final ceremony, when some Irish speaker happened to discover that a mistake had been made in the inscription on the stamp. A wrong Irish word had been used! Why on earth did they not have the inscription in German? Then they might have got it right.

Summer Shows.

Summer shows are now being held in most provincial towns. They are very enjoyable events, and they cause plenty of local excitement. The element of emulation amongst the exhibitors is an excellent thing, and it has the effect of raising the standard of our splendid country produce. At a show which I attended recently I was particularly impressed with the beautiful quality of the flowers, fruit, vegetables, honey, jam, butter and home-made bread competing for the various prizes. There were many high-grade exhibits of soda-bread and brown bread to prove that our country women have not lost the art of baking wholesome bread. I also admired the samples of "sweet cake" and confectionery shown by some of the younger housewives of the district.

Trades Congress Coincidence.

Mr. T. J. O'Connell, T.D., who, as President, will preside over the thirty-sixth session of the Irish Trade Union Congress, should be in a happy, if reminiscent, mood when he opens the proceedings in Sligo next Wednesday. On that day he celebrates the silver jubilee of his wedding, and it is more than a coincidence that the honeymoon was spent in Sligo. The tallest man on the Congress Executive, Mr. O'Connell is a native of County Mayo, and before his appointment to the post of General Secretary of the I.N.T.O.—a post which he still holds—he was a principal teacher, first, in his native county, and later at Streamstown, County Westmeath. He is a fluent Gaelic speaker. The first teacher to be elected President of the Trade Union Congress, Mr. O'Connell was also the first teacher to be elected to Dail Eireann as a member of the Labour Party. He was elected for Galway in 1922, but in 1927 transferred to South Mayo, and succeeded Mr. Johnson as leader of his party in September of that year.

Ulster Officer's Promotion.

Brevet-Colonel Denis Kirwan Bernard, C.M.G., D.S.O., who has been promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General, has for many years been a prominent officer in the Royal Ulster Rifles, of which he has latterly been Commander.

He is the son of the late Mr. Percy B. Bernard, of Castle Hacket, Galway, and grandson of the late Right Rev. the Hon. Charles Bernard, Bishop of Tuam, and is thus closely related to the second Earl of Bandon. Educated at Eton and Sandhurst, he joined the Rifle Brigade in 1902, and in 1912 received his captaincy.

In the European War he served in France, Egypt and Gallipoli, and served on the General Staff from March, 1915. He was mentioned in despatches and received several honours, including the D.S.O. and the C.M.G.

Colonel Bernard, who will assume his new rank in October, when he will take up a Staff appointment in India, has a residence at Castle Hacket, Tuam, Galway, and is a member of the Kildare Street Club at Dublin. He is unmarried.

Corduroy Caps.

Although corduroy trousers are no longer fashionable in rural Ireland there is now, I am told, a vogue for corduroy caps. These are retailed in loud black and white checks and dazzling combinations of brown and beige. They are very cheap, and their novel appearance appeals with special force to the lads of the village.

Corduroy trousers were very popular in pre-war days, and they gave very good wear, but tinkers are about the only men who will condescend to wear them nowadays. Incidentally, I notice that some grades of railway workers wear uniforms of dark corduroy.

The Duce.

Self-confidence, a fixed purpose, and a tremendous capacity for hard work are among the qualities which have raised Benito Mussolini, who is forty-seven today, from a blacksmith's forge to the Dictatorship of Italy. One of his first reforms when the Blackshirts placed him in power was very characteristic of the man. Under the old régime the Civil Service had been notoriously lax. One morning an unknown man appeared at the Ministry of Public Works at nine o'clock and asked to see the Chief Clerk. The porter, reading a paper, said that he had not arrived. "Where are the other clerks, then?" asked the stranger. "Not here yet, nor likely to be for another hour," answered the man without looking up from his paper. "If you want any of them, you must wait." "Thank you. I'll interview them later," said the stranger. "Tell them the Prime Minister called." Next morning every official in the Civil Service was at his desk to time.

The Onion Cure.

A few days ago a wasp vented its annoyance on someone who worked near its pendulous nest, and the sufferer immediately cut an onion in half and anointed himself freely with the strong-smelling juice.

A herbalist of long ago gives many further uses for raw onions, and it is wonderful to read of all the ills that may be cured by this simple remedy. "Juice of onions stuffed up the nose," we read, "purgeth the head and draweth forth flegmatick humours." "Stamped with salte, Rue and Hony, and, so applied, they are good against the bite of a mad dog."

"The juice of onions," the herbalist says, "mixed with Penniroyal and anointed upon the goutie member with a feather, easeth the same very much. The juice anointed upon a bald head in the sun bringeth the Hair again very speedily." Taken internally, however, the writer has nothing good to say for this vegetable. "The onion being eaten, yea, though it be boiled, causeth headache, hurteth the eyes, and maketh a man dim sighted; dulleth the sences, and provoketh overmuch sleep."

Poachers.

"With greedy eye he looked on all he saw,
He knew not Justice and he laughed at Law;
On all he marked, he stretched his ready hand,
He fished by water, and he filched by land."

Anyone who has lived in an Irish country place knows at least one clever poacher. There was one in a midland county years ago, who, on being fined by a certain magistrate for poaching on that gentleman's estate, paid his fine with the proceeds of more game unlawfully obtained in the same demesne.

Some gamekeepers know all there is to know about poachers' dodges. In 1817 a little book was written by John Mayer, a gamekeeper, and he describes various ways in which partridges may be netted, woodcock may be trapped, and how one may catch a duck and an eel at either end of a line baited with lights and with small fish. With what seems like delightful irony, he advises the would-be poacher to go abroad "in an ass's skin, dressed, with holes for arms and legs. In this, one may lie down anywhere and not be suspected." Perhaps it was a poacher who, having read so far, wrote in the margin, "I think he had one on when he wrote this book."

Goodwood.

Like many other famous sporting events, Goodwood rose from very modest beginnings. In 1802 the Duke of Richmond laid out a course on his Sussex estate to provide for an annual horse-race previously held at Petworth Park, but with no idea beyond providing entertainment for the gentry and farmers of the neighbourhood, whom he treated as his personal guests. The meeting, however, attracted the patronage of George IV, and, more important still, was virtually taken charge of by Lord George Bentinck, by whose efforts the prize-money was increased within a few years from £300 to £25,000. Lord George had some notable victories there, generally riding his own horses, and created one of the greatest sensations Goodwood has ever known when he announced to his friends that he had decided to sell his stud and abandon the Turf. He had won almost every event of importance, except the Derby, after which he had striven in vain. Among the horses sold when he abandoned racing was Surplice, which, two years later, carried off the Blue Riband.

A "Cheery" Dean.

A correspondent writes:—The Dean of Canterbury, better known as the Rev. "Dick" Sheppard, recently made a welcome reappearance in the pulpit of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, and thousands of listeners were able once more to hear his cheery voice on the wireless. He has followed up his remarkable book, "The Impatience of a Parson," with another and more sober volume, entitled "My Hopes and Fears for the Church of England." The other day I was strolling through the ecclesiastical treasure houses of Canterbury and I came across the Dean, gaiterless, hurrying to Evensong. He has none of the dignified aloofness usually associated with deans, but he more than makes up for that by maintaining a natural kindliness which has endeared him to so many people. He has already begun to stamp his forceful personality on the Services in Canterbury, and it was a sheer joy to see him nodding to old friends as he walked along through the Cathedral choir to the lectern.

Fraughans.

Tramping to Glencree the other day I noticed that the "fraughans" are now fit for eating. These delightful little berries are most refreshing when one is walking in the appetising air of the hills. I have often enjoyed "fraughan" jam, and on one memorable occasion, when lunching in Glendalough, I sampled a "fraughan" pudding. "Fraughans" also grow on the bogs and the moorlands, and I understand that English wholesale fruiterers pay good prices for large quantities. In England, however, "fraughans" are known as "blueberries," and in the Highlands of Scotland they call them "blaeberries."

A Dublin Artist.

Mr. Harry A. Kernoff, the young Dublin artist, who designed the settings for the historical pageant at Bray, is to realise an old ambition of his. In a few days he is leaving Dublin for a visit to Russia, where he will be able to study Russian art, especially in its new developments under the Soviets. In a sense this will be like a return home for him; for he is of Russian descent, his father having been born there, and his mother being Russian, too, but of Spanish ancestry.

Mr. Kernoff is not only decidedly modernist in his art, but as well he is strongly individualist in the expression of his views on the artist's work and function. In his own painting he applies his theory that the artist should be continually experimenting, and that he should not be afraid to work from memory. He is critical of artists who are always working from models, generally stiffly posed, because, he says, this results in too much time and labour going to the making of studies when the artists ought to be creating pictures.

Big Breakfasts.

Breakfast formed the subject of an interesting conversation I had recently with a waiter in a well-known hotel. He told me that he liked to study those whom he served, and as a result of his observations he had made some strange discoveries. Firstly, he said, more women than men prefer a big breakfast, and of those women about 60 per cent. were over fifty years of age. Of the remaining 40 per cent. the majority were married. Most young girls, he found, preferred a light morning meal, although there were a few who devoured with relish a very generous quantity of nourishment.

With regard to men, my friend said that, as a general rule, little men eat bigger breakfasts than large men. The fattest man he had ever served broke his fast with an orange, a glass of Russian tea, and two slices of brown bread toast. It was interesting to find that bachelors outnumbered married men in the big breakfast preference.

A Business Hint.

Perhaps, the most remarkable thing I learnt from the waiter was that the men who liked small breakfasts were almost all very successful business people. Apparently, they found that the effort of digesting a heavy meal interfered with the activity of the brain. One wealthy prince of commerce who regularly visited the hotel actually had nothing to eat before one o'clock in the afternoon. My friend, the waiter, once remarked to a company director about this tendency of successful men to avoid eating much; expressing his opinion briefly, the director replied: "Big Breakfasts Blight Big Business."

A FILM OF THE WEEK.

"THE VIRGINIAN" AT THE CAPITOL THEATRE.

Although much of the action of the sound production, "The Virginian," at the Capitol Theatre this week is obviously studio work, there is in the picture plenty of outdoor life and movement that helps very materially to capture the atmosphere of the West as one reads of it in Owen Wister's open-air story of the same name. The book is a typical Wister yarn, and deals in full with the life of the cattle-rustlers. There is a sample of summary justice when three of the cattle thieves are hanged after being caught driving cattle, and there is the inevitable scene of the hero and the "bad man" stalking each other in the streets, ready to shoot at sight.

The production is interesting, for the scenes it depicts of a wayside cattle station on the Union Pacific Railway. All the sounds incidental to such a spot, are reproduced: the noise of the train, the chatter of the passengers alighting, the quaint jargon of the cow-hands, and the lowing of cattle in the pens. There are some fine "shots" of the cattle country, several interesting scenes of the more technical part of the rustler's life, and a wonderful picture of a big herd of cattle being driven through a rocky defile and down a long stretch of river.

The chief actors are Gary Cooper, rather too restrained and aloof for the rough-and-ready cow-hand; Mary Brian as the young "school-marm," and Walter Huston as the "bad man."

THE TEACHING OF IRISH.

FREE STATE'S AIM.

COUNTY DOWN PLACE-NAMES.

Special Telegram.
LONDON, Monday.

The subject for discussion at this morning's session of the Celtic Congress at University College, London, was Bilingual Education, when papers were read by educationalists representing Ireland, Wales and Scotland.

Mr. Brian Fitzpatrick, M.A., said that great strides were being made in Ireland today, especially in the Free State, in the teaching of the Irish language. In the nineteenth century four millions of Ireland's five million people spoke Irish. By the twentieth century only half a million of the population spoke their native tongue. This was brought about by the influence of a hostile Government by the denial of the tongue's use as a vehicle of education, and by the fact that it was ignored and repressed in the administration. Generally speaking, public representatives, business men and Church authorities ignored it. The educated classes were ignorant of it, and they protected their position by affecting to despise it. Those who spoke it traditionally saw no avenue of advancement open to them or their children. Thus it came to be accepted that the language was destined to pass. Fortunately, the Gaelic League was formed and, led by Dr. Hyde, the teaching of the language in the schools was saved. Schools were established in Irish-speaking districts, where Irish was taught, though it was to be feared that for a variety of reasons English was better taught than Irish.

FREE STATE'S EFFORTS.

Since the advent of the Free State in 1922, immense efforts had been made. Infants in the primary schools were taught only through the medium of Irish, and in the other schools the subjects were divided into upper and lower, the former being taught in Irish and the latter in English. The ultimate aim was not the establishment of bilingualism, but the permanent revival of Irish, with English as a secondary language.

The ultimate success of the scheme would depend on the ability of teachers to teach, and parents to have their children taught in Irish. No body of men and women in Ireland had made such efforts to acquire the native language as the teachers had done during the past eight years. Most of them spent the whole of their summer vacation in Irish-speaking districts, in order to obtain fluency of speech, to carry out their programme.

The method employed in training teachers was to take picked scholars at the age of 15 and put them into special secondary schools, where they remained for four years, and were taught solely through Irish. Afterwards they went for two years to a training college, so that they had six years to perfect their knowledge of Irish and be able to teach any subject in it.

Irish was now the national language of all Free State officials, and was essential for Civil Service appointments. It was essential to have a knowledge of Irish to obtain a school-leaving certificate. Great impetus was given to the movement by the language competitions organised by the Gaelic League. All this was helping to reverse the bad work done in the 19th century.

BILINGUALISM.

Educationalists were apt to over-estimate the value of bilingualism. He thought that the ability to speak a second language was a matter of practice, and not necessarily an indication of intellectual efficiency. He regarded the mere ability to speak a second language as of slight educational value. Bilingual children had no superiority over uni-lingualism. This had been proved as the result of examinations in Belgium, where bilingualism was practised. By this he did not mean to suggest that a literary knowledge of a second language had not great value. He was deprecating the tendency to over-value the mere ability to speak a second language. In bilingual countries a struggle continually went on for supremacy of one language or the other. One language eventually dominated the other and crushed it out. Knowledge of its own language was a nation's best barrier against disintegration. A language was the storehouse of the literary and social inheritance of the people, and it enshrined the myths and legends of their ancestors.

In recent years there had been a general resurgence of national aspirations and ideals in small countries in Europe, and in almost every case the national movement was preceded, or accompanied, by a language revival. Such revivals had taken place in Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary, the Balkan States, modern Greece, Denmark, Finland, Belgium, Ireland, and Wales. In all these countries one result of the language movement had been an increase in bilingualism, and a considerable amount of attention to the question of teaching a second language in the primary schools.

OVER-AMBITIOUS.

Professor Mary Hayden agreed that the ability to speak languages was not necessarily an indication of education. She once met on the Continent an idiot girl who could speak five languages, but who could not calculate the simplest sum. She thought that the Irish programme was a little over-ambitious. It sounded very well. "You may have a good menu and yet not have a very good dinner." (Laughter.)

She felt that if they wanted to further education in the Irish language they must show the people in the poorer areas that there was money in Irish. They needed materialistic help, and they should be shown that English could be taught best through the medium of Irish. It was necessary to get the parents on their side; for there was a tendency among the parents to believe that English was more important to their children's welfare than Irish. They should appeal to the sentiment of the children to learn Irish, so that they could better appreciate the history and the glories of the past. They should spend all the money and time available in the Irish-speaking districts teaching the people the value of Irish from a sentimental point of view and English from a materialistic point of view—the latter language to be used for commercial purposes.

THE DOWN SURVEY.

A paper by M. Goblet on the Down Survey was read at the afternoon session. M. Goblet said that Sir William Petty based some of his maps of Ireland and books relating to confiscated land on the Down Survey. Most of the place-names in those maps came from the Down Survey, and, thanks to Petty, they embodied the whole official Irish toponomy of that time. On closer inspection of the maps it was seen that the spelling of the place-names was entirely different from the spelling in the old surveys, and their origin must be looked for elsewhere. It was possible that in one case the spelling was taken from the Field Book, and in the other from the Survey Books.

M. Goblet stated that he had just completed a vocabulary of 25,000 Downland names from the maps in the French National Library.

Professor Mary Hayden said that everybody interested in the history of Ireland would be much pleased with the vocabulary that M. Goblet had prepared. The Down Survey was very valuable as showing the boundaries of various parishes, and also from the historical point of view generally. Petty was very inaccurate as regards the amount of land which remained in the hands of the Irish after the confiscation. He underestimated the acreage of Ireland by about four million acres.

KEATS AND BARRIE MANUSCRIPTS.

FORTY POUNDS A LINE FOR "ISABELLA."

The autograph manuscript of Stanzas Seven and Nine of Keats's "Isabella" was sold at Sotheby's, London, yesterday for £640. This represents £40 a line. In the manuscript there are several important variations from the printed version.

The manuscript of Barrie's "Walker London" fetched £380. "Walker London" was produced at Toole's Theatre in February, 1892.

The other Barrie manuscripts were "Bad Form, or an Inconsiderate Waiter," £900; "A Tilly Loss Scandal," £190; "Is it a Man?" £185; and "A School Revisited," £120. All the Barrie manuscripts were the property of Mrs. Gilbert Cannan. A page of the manuscript was missing from "Walker London" and "A Tilly Loss Scandal"; but in order that the manuscripts might be complete Sir James Barrie had specially re-written the missing pages.

IN THE NORTHERN CAPITAL.

The Duke of Gloucester : Cost of Government : The Late Sir Henry Wilson : Discouraging Return : 'Bus Fares : The Unemployed.

From Our Special Correspondent.
BELFAST, Monday.

The visit of the Duke of Gloucester to Belfast during the week-end came as a pleasant surprise to the people of the province. He arrived on Friday, on his way to Mountstewart, where he was the guest of the Marquess and Marchioness of Londonderry. His Royal Highness played golf on Saturday—one of his favourite recreations—and spent Sunday at Mountstewart.

EXPENSIVE GOVERNMENT.

The people of Northern Ireland are beginning to realise that the expense of governing the province is out of all proportion to its population and area. Mr. Pollock, Minister of Finance, gave a hint of the need for economy in his last Budget speech, but his warning was directed to public bodies, rather than to the cost of ruling our little State. The voters of the Mourne Unionist Association have now expressed the opinion that, in view of Mr. Pollock's ominous words and "the appalling growth of public expenditure, the financial state of the province demands earnest and immediate attention." It is urged that the expenses of the Government should be curtailed, and that for this purpose there should be a revision of the duties, salaries, and emoluments of all Government and public officials.

The resolutions have been sent to the Prime Minister and the Minister of Finance, but it is hardly likely that they will have the desired result. As a matter of fact, there have been increases in the salaries of several highly-placed officials since Mr. Pollock hoisted the red lamp of financial danger. Moreover, all the signs point towards higher expenditure in future. The great parliamentary buildings at Stormont, although erected at the expense of the Imperial Government, will be costly to maintain, and the same may be said of the new Law Courts.

A NOTABLE GIFT.

An interesting gift has been offered to the Belfast Municipal Art Gallery and Museum. It is from Miss Violet Trench, of London, a niece of the late Field-Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, whose work on behalf of the Six Counties endeared him to the loyal inhabitants. It consists of the casket and certificate presented to Sir Henry when he was admitted a Freeman of Belfast some years ago, and it has been accepted with grateful thanks by the Museum Committee. The tragic circumstances of Sir Henry Wilson's death enhance the significance of the gift, and it will be treasured by the civic authorities.

It is not generally known that the Belfast Museum is a centre of instruction, as well as a treasure-house of relics, ancient and modern. Many of the exhibits date from the remotest times, and a series designed to show the evolution of man was the cause of a good deal of controversy recently.

There is a cinematograph installation in the lecture hall, where pictures illustrating the life of birds and beasts and fishes, and the wonders of nature generally, are thrown on the screen and explained by the curator, Mr. Arthur Deane. For the coming winter prominent lecturers are to be invited from Great Britain, and interesting programmes will be submitted. Another feature will be the holding of concerts at frequent intervals, at which high-class artists will perform.

THE FARMERS' POSITION.

The statement, just issued by the Northern Ministry of Agriculture, of the conditions of farming in the Six Counties makes depressing reading. It shows that, nowithstanding the rosy predictions of politicians as to the dawn of a new era of prosperity and pleasant prospects, there is a substantial decline in almost every department of the industry. Camouflage disappears before the force of figures. The report shows that the area of ploughed land is 28,212 acres less than last year's, and is the smallest recorded since the famine year of 1847. The total acreage of tillage is given as 535,191. The effect of the low prices last season has been reflected in a reduction of 15,508 acres in the area of potatoes, and the acreage under flax has declined from 33,911, in 1929, to 28,317 this year—a reduction of 5,594 acres. Only on three occasions since 1847—namely, in 1898, 1922 and 1927—has the area under flax been lower than that recorded this year.

One would imagine that with so great a reduction in tillage there would be at least a substantial increase in grazing, but the reverse is the case. The decline in the number of cattle is stated to be a regrettable feature of the returns, the total figures—673,030—indicating a decrease of 26,969, the lowest noted since 1925. Milch cows alone have decreased by 11,309. Thus, with largely increased areas available for grass, there are fewer cattle, many farmers having no money to stock their lands.

On the other hand, sheep, pigs and poultry have greatly increased in numbers. Sheep number 702,758, an increase of 48,169 over last year's total, and there are 216,424 pigs, the increase being 24,356. Decreases are reported in turkeys and geese, but ordinary fowl have increased by over half a million to 7,658,474.

BUS PROBLEMS.

Strong protests are being made against the proposal to increase the 'bus fares in Belfast, more particularly on the routes which are not served by the tramway system. In one instance an advance of sixty per cent. has been suggested, while in others it is proposed to increase the charges from twopence to threepence for the single journey, return fares, with their present concessions, to be abolished. The reason given for the new scale is that there has been a loss of over £20,000 during the year on the 'bus services, and it is said that the increased fares, if brought into operation, will only reduce the loss by about one-half.

On the other hand, it is argued on behalf of the passengers that the whole transport system of the Corporation should be considered as one undertaking, as, of course, all the routes under the control of the Council cannot be expected to be equally profitable. By the intervention of the Ministry of Home Affairs the Corporation obtained a monopoly of the passenger transport services of the city, the private 'buses being put off the streets, and it is felt that the proposed increases are not justified. The Northern Ireland Roads Transport and Fares Tribunal, of which Sir Lynden Macassey is chairman, is inquiring into the application of the Corporation, and, no doubt, the Tribunal will give every consideration to the interests of the ratepayers and of the tramways undertaking.

AN IMPROVEMENT.

It is pleasant to be able to record that there has been a decrease of 9,655 in the number of unemployed persons in the North for the week ended 21st inst., the reduction being attributed to workers on extended holidays resuming their occupations. It will be recalled that there was an increase of over 12,000 in the previous week, so that the diminished figures for the period under consideration show a return to normal conditions, with a gradual advance in the number of workless.

There are, according to the official return, 62,997 persons seeking employment through the medium of the Labour Exchanges, made up as follows: wholly unemployed, 47,898, an increase of 606; temporary stoppages, 11,862, a decrease of 10,341; casual workers, 3,237, an increase of 80. The figures, therefore, indicate a continuance of the increase of the wholly unemployed.

The success of the new Government loan of £2,000,000, however, shows that public confidence in the future of the province was never higher than now, and everyone will join in the hope that Ulster's prosperity soon may be restored.

EMIGRATION FROM THE FREE STATE.

FALLING-OFF IN RECENT YEARS.

Emigration from the Irish Free State to the United States of America still persists, but not on the same scale as a few years ago. This is due partly to the reduced quota and partly to the fact that people are not now emigrating from the Free State in the same numbers as they did before the Treaty, and even up to about five years ago.

A further significant fact is that only the poorer types, in the majority of cases, are making applications for visas, and this means that the better types are staying at home.

The emigration figures from the Free State to the United States for the past three years are:—

	Quota.	If filled.	Applications refused.
1927-28 ...	28,567	Filled.	3,215
1928-29 ...	28,567	22,096	4,241
1929-30 ...	17,853	Filled.	4,195

These figures were obtained through the courtesy of Mr. Cornelius Ferris, the United States Consul-General to the Irish Free State.

REJECTION OF ILLITERATES.

The quota figures given, it must be remembered, refer not merely to the Irish Free State, but to Free State nationals from all parts of the world, whether Australia, Canada, Glasgow, or London. If born in Ireland applicants get their visas through Dublin. The general practice is to allow ten per cent. of the quota for outside applications. The number of refusals for the last twelve months on record are rather surprising, as they amount to nearly a quarter of the quota figure. There has been no change in the standard of examinations.

The main cause for these rejections, as these examinations show, is illiteracy, which in the last couple of years has even been more pronounced than usual. This fact bears out the statement already made that the best types of young Irish citizens are staying at home. This is all to the country's good. Not so many years ago the Irishman was looked upon in the United States as the most desirable immigrant, but to-day the German has taken pride of place in this respect.

What is particularly difficult to understand about the number of illiterate applicants for visas is that when they are asked were they at school they all reply in the affirmative.

POPE SEES FREE STATE MINISTER.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
VATICAN CITY, Monday.

The Pope to-day gave an audience to Mr. Bewley, the Minister of the Irish Free State, who presented to His Holiness a book entitled "The Irish Battalion in the Papal Army of 1860," by R. J. Berkeley.

The Pontiff said that he greatly appreciated this gift and would read the book with keen interest.

During the conversation with Mr. Bewley, which lasted half-an-hour, the Pope referred to the annual pilgrimage to Croagh Patrick, in which the Papal Nuncio in Ireland, Monsignor Robinson, took part.

At the annual meeting yesterday of Lough Ennel Preservation Association Dr. P. J. Keelan presiding, Mr. J. H. Gibson was unanimously elected chairman of the Association. Mr. Patrick Hand, was re-appointed treasurer, and Mr. H. Weir hon. secretary.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

CRICKET IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—"A Player," in his very interesting article in this morning's Irish Times, says that he wonders if anyone in this country has a complete set of John Laurence's "Handbook of Cricket." Yes; I have a complete set from 1865 to 1881 inclusive, and, should "A Player" or anyone else wish to see them, he can do so with pleasure by calling here.—Yours, etc.,

JOHN FOXALL.

CORK HARBOUR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Regarding the article appearing in your issue of this morning on harbour development at Cork, there is a slight error in your statement. You have £80 as the cost of borings; this should be £800, and this is only an approximate figure. My company is willing to pay £800 for boring purposes, and there is no attempt on our part, I can assure you, to take the birthright from the Cork Harbour Board. I further believe that they are too bright and intelligent a group of business men to sell their rights. Any developments that should be undertaken by the Cork Harbour Board, through us, would be under their supervision, and I personally consider Mr. Price, the Chief Engineer of the Cork Harbour Board, to be one of the ablest harbour engineers Ireland has ever known.—Yours, etc.,

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Robert Raikes certainly was the founder of the modern Sunday school, but did not the saintly Cardinal Borromeo institute the first Sunday schools in Milan? Their continuation died in the struggles of Christendom—I speak under correction.—Yours, etc.,

T. H. SEALE.

THE PRICE OF FRUIT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—What is puzzling the public is the excessive retail price of fruit, as compared with the purchase price in the Dublin market. Here is my own experience. I made four visits to the fruit market. At my first visit I obtained a crate of strawberries (32 punnets), prime berries, at 6d. a punnet. On the next two occasions the price was 7d. a punnet. I made particular note of the price for similar fruit in the fruiterers on every afternoon, and it was never below 1s. 4d. a punnet. No charge of any kind was made to me other than the actual price for the fruit. On the fourth occasion I wanted only a small quantity of raspberries and paid 8d. a punnet for a box of six. Had I taken a full crate of 32 punnets, I should have got them at sixpence.

Gooseberries and currants could have been bought for a couple of pence per lb. The supplies exceeded the demand on every day when I was present. It is my opinion that growers would obtain better prices for their produce if the fruit were offered in smaller packages. An explanation of the necessity for a profit of 10d. a punnet by the retailers is what the public would like to have.—Yours, etc.,

THE COMMERCIAL REGISTER.

CLAIMS REPRESENTING 3,000 VOTES.

Yesterday was the final day for the sending in of forms by persons claiming to be registered in the first register of commercial electors under the Electoral (Dublin Commercial) Act, 1930. Although the period for making application was open from the 18th July, the number of claims lodged up to the week-end was comparatively small, but yesterday there was a great increase in public interest, and all day long the officials at the Town Clerk's office were busy receiving claim forms.

In the two hours from three to five o'clock more than 300 claim forms were lodged, and when the office closed it was estimated that about 1,150 claims had been lodged. These will be examined to-day, and it will be possible to know the number of votes claimed. It is expected that the claims will represent upwards of 3,000 votes.

Under the Act the Registrar, who is in this instance the Town Clerk, must publish on the 8th August next a list of claimants in relation to the first register, and objections to claimants can then be lodged during the period up to 13th August. The Registrar will hold a Court, after the manner of the old Revision Court, to hear objections, and the preparation and publication of the revised register must be completed not later than 11th September, 1930.

FIVE ELECTORAL AREAS.

In a White Paper, the Free State Minister for Local Government sets out the electoral areas of the City of Dublin, and the number of ordinary members of the City Council to be elected therefor. There are five electoral areas, comprised as follows:—

No. 1 area, comprising the following wards —Fitzwilliam, Mansion House, Royal Exchange, South City, South Dock, Trinity and Wood Quay. These will elect six members.

No. 2 area, comprising Clontarf East, Clontarf West, Drumcondra, Mountjoy, and North Dock Wards, and the following townlands and parts of townlands of the added rural area in the North Dublin Rural District—Artane South, Ballyhoy, Bettyville, Charleville, Clonturk, Edenmore, Foxlands, Furrypark, Glebe, Hampstead Hill, Hampstead South, Harmonstown, Kilbarrack Upper, Killester Demesne, Killester North, Maryville, North Bull, Puckstown, Raheny North, Raheny South and Sibyhill. These will elect six members.

No. 3 area, comprising Arran quay, Glasnevin, Inns quay, North City and Rotunda Wards, and the townlands and parts of townlands forming portion of the added rural area in the rural district of North Dublin, as follows:—Botanic Garden, Cabragh, North Grangegorman, Prospect, Slutsend or West Farm, Tolka Park, and Great and Little Violet Hill. This area elects seven members.

No. 4 area, comprising Merchants' quay, New Kilmainham and Usher's quay Wards, and the following townlands forming portion of the added rural area in the rural district of North Dublin:—Castleknock, Chapelizod and St. James, the townland of St. Laurence and part of the townland of Crumlin in the added rural area of South Dublin. This area elects five members.

No. 5 area, comprising the added urban districts of Pembroke, Rathmines and Rathgar, and the following townlands and parts of townlands forming portion of the added rural area in the rural district of South Dublin:— Annefield, Clonskeagh, Kimmage, Larkfield, Newtown Little, Priesthouse, Rathfarnham, Ringsend, Simmonscourt, Stannaway, Terenure and Tonguefield. These elect six members.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND THE REGISTER.

At a special meeting of the Council of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, held on Monday, the President (Mr. W. P. Sherriff), informing the Council of the steps taken by the Chamber in connection with the Commercial Register, said:—

"Immediately the official intimation of the construction of the Commercial Register was published an urgent notice was sent to all members of the Chamber requesting them to make their claims to be placed on the register, and advising them of the necessary steps to be taken. Two days afterwards each member was furnished with the prescribed application form.

"It appeared to me that many people were not connecting the Commercial Register with the election of members to the Greater Dublin City Council, and also that many business men were under the impression that if they were eligible to vote they would automatically be placed upon the register. As this is not the case, I adopted the attitude that the Chamber should work not only for its members, but for the benefit of the whole commercial community, and a very effective advertisement was inserted in the two daily papers drawing the attention of all business men to the fact that the Commercial Register was being compiled for the purpose of electing the commercial members on the Greater Dublin City Council, and that they must apply for their votes on or before the 28th July."

The Council decided that as the election would be fought on a purely commercial register, the Chamber would collaborate with kindred associations, and take an active part in the election of the commercial members of the Greater Dublin City Council.

Arrangements were made for further meetings of a special committee to deal with the election.

There were present:—Messrs. W. P. Sheriff (President), James J. Halpin (Vice-President), D. J. Cogan (Deputy Vice-President), Michael O'Dea, T. R. McCullagh, W. E. Taylor, M. F. O'Brien, Patrick Leonard, William Crowe, H. M. Dockrell, William Nesbitt, George N. Jacob, F. M. Summerfield, Hugh Kennedy, J. Hubbard Clark, W. T. Watson, J. A. Burns, D. Barry, S. D. Budd.

An interesting discovery was made in the WATERFORD Municipal Offices yesterday. In an old press was found a staff of polished oak, about eight feet long, marked with the solid silver arms of the city. The staff, which was used on state occasions, was lost in 1899.

WORKMAN, CLARK CASE.

JUDGE AND SERVICE OF WRITS.

In the King's Bench Division, Belfast, yesterday, Mr. Copeland (instructed by Mr. S. Henry) again applied for liberty to renew a writ of summons, issued on July 29, 1929, in an action by one McBride and others against Sir George Clark, Bart., and others. Counsel had stated that a large number of writs were issued, but there were negotiations for a settlement, which continued until quite recently. The present plaintiffs were told that because they had not purchased debentures prior to a date in 1923 they could not participate in any settlement. The Court ordered that the application should come up yesterday after notice had been given to the other side.

Counsel said that the application was based on an understanding that was given his clients that negotiations were pending for an amicable settlement of the whole affair. There were two thousand other people as well as those he (counsel) represented awaiting the result of these negotiations. It was considered, therefore, that it was a good reason not to proceed further at that particular time with the action. Certain facts had become known, and they came to Court for liberty to renew.

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

Mr. Justice Wilson said that they were hovering perilously on the brink of the Statute of Limitations. He thought they should have gone on serving notices in June last.

Mr. A. Black, K.C., M.P., said that in the previous proceedings he appeared for Sir George Clark on the instruction of Mr. Robert Wallace, and though he was not concerned in the present application he thought it only fair to the Court to say Sir George Clark was absent from home. Mr. Wallace had been served with an affidavit on Friday and also with one that day.

Mr. Warnock, who appeared for Mr. Charles Allen originally, said that he had no instructions, and similar intimation was made that affidavits had been forwarded to England, but that no instructions had been received.

JUDGMENT.

Giving judgment, the judge said that there was no doubt the writs, or a writ, could have been served in time, but it remained in an office, so that when midnight came the writ would cease to be operative and the cause of action would fall to the ground. It was his view that reasonable efforts had not been made to serve the writs. Nor had any reason been given for not sending out the process-servers with the writs. There must be some reason of which he had not been told in the course of this ex-parte application, which he would dismiss. He could not extend the time.

A similar ruling was made in the motion, Kane and others v. Clark and others.

CURRAGH SWAMPED.

TWO WESTERN LOBSTER FISHERS DROWNED.

Two men fishing for lobsters were drowned off Aughris Point, Connemara, yesterday. They were Martin King (married), of Aughrisbeg, and John King (unmarried), of Bawnoges, near Cleggan. They were drowned when their curragh was swamped a short distance from the shore. The frail craft apparently was caught in a strong current. Both men were aged about forty-five. Their bodies have not been recovered.

PRISON FOR MOTORIST.

SEQUEL TO BELFAST COLLISION.

A girl, whose identity was concealed under the title "Miss H," gave evidence at the Belfast Commission yesterday before the Lord Chief Justice, when John R. Hamilton, of Cromwell road, pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of causing bodily harm to James B. Lewers on May 21st last by knocking him down with his motor car.

In opening the case for the Crown, Mr. M'Gonigal said that Mr. Lewers had lost his right leg and sustained some lesser injuries. On the night of the occurrence the accused man was driving a four-seater car, having a male friend beside him and a young lady whom he met at Cornmarket, and whom the would call "Miss H," at the back. She would tell them that the accused man was drunk. He drove to the Boulevard, and when he got to the Ravenhill road he drove so fast that "Miss H" had difficulty in keeping her seat.

Mr. Lewers was motor-cycling towards the city on his right side, when the accused man, at great speed, veered over and crashed into him. The defendant, instead of stopping, as "Miss H" besought him to do, drove on for a considerable distance and turned up a side road.

Evidence was given by "Miss H" and Mr. Lewers in support of Mr. M'Gonigal's statement.

The jury found the prisoner guilty and he was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

SECTARIAN DISORDERS IN LIVERPOOL.

Hundreds of police kept watch in the streets of the Everton district of Liverpool until daybreak yesterday after riots on Saturday night and Sunday between Roman Catholics and Orangemen.

There was a further outbreak yesterday, when several men appeared before the magistrates, and a woman was arrested.

In the evening more disorders occurred, and three arrests were made. It is alleged that the persons arrested, a girl and two men, molested several workers who were on their way to a mill.

Late at night a crowd threw stones at a Roman Catholic Presbytery, and broke a window before being dispersed by the police.

MR. SANDHAM'S ALLEGATIONS.

CHARGES AGAINST LABOUR MEMBERS RESENTED.

HOUSE OF COMMONS TAKES ACTION.

Earl Winterton yesterday drew the attention of the House of Commons to the remarkable attack on Labour members of the House, contained in the speech which Mr. E. Sandham, Labour member for the Kirkdale Division, is reported to have delivered at Manchester on Saturday last.

As soon as questions were disposed of, Earl Winterton said that he wished to call attention to a matter of privilege. In accordance with custom, he had given notice to the hon. member concerned of his intention to raise the matter. He moved:—

"That the speech of the hon. member for the Kirkdale Division of Liverpool, as reported in the Manchester Guardian of Monday, July 28, is a gross libel on hon. members of this House and a grave breach of its privileges." He quoted from the Manchester Guardian the report that:—

"Mr. E. Sandham, M.P., addressing the half-yearly conference, in Manchester on Saturday, of the No. 9 Divisional Council of the Independent Labour Party, of which he is the Chairman, made some remarkable charges against Labour M.P.'s, in the course of a reference to the recent Mace incident in the House of Commons."

THE CHARGES.

Mr. Sandham, he added, was reported to have said:—

"The sheer stupid tradition of this ghost-house has got most of the members in its deadly grip. Labour members can receive bribes to help to pass doubtful bills in the interests of private individuals; Labour members can get stupidly drunk in this place, but none of these things are against the sacred traditions of the House. In fact they are in keeping with them. It is known that Labour members accepted money from money-lenders, and other interests, and it is known that Labour members get drunk in the House. Our leaders see nothing wrong in that, or, at any rate, such conduct is not bad enough to create a demand for their expulsion."

"A GROSS LIBEL."

Then, added Lord Winterton, the hon. member went on to refer to an incident which occurred in the House a week or ten days ago. It is quite obvious, said Lord Winterton, that the gross charge made in this statement is that of bribery. (Hear, hear.) The House has never allowed one of its members or anyone outside to make such a charge, and I, as the words of my motion show, believe the charge made to constitute a gross libel. I think that belief is shared by all of us, whatever part of the House members may sit in. (Hear, hear.) I think it is really unnecessary for me to say anything more, except to add this: It has been intimated to me, through the usual channel, that the right hon. gentleman the leader of the House will probably move an amendment to my resolution to refer the matter to the Committee of Privilege. As far as I am concerned, I have no objection to such a course. (Hear, hear.)

The Speaker read out the motion, and looking to the Labour Benches, where the member for Kirkdale usually sits, called "Mr. Sandham," but got no response.

PRIME MINISTER'S MOTION.

The Prime Minister then rose and said: As it appears that the hon. member concerned is not present, and in order to give him the opportunity of being present—as he ought to be—(cheers)—I think it right to move the adjournment of the debate until to-morrow. (Hear, hear.)

The Speaker put the amendment for the adjournment of the debate, and it was carried

Sir W. Mitchell-Thomson (Conservative, Croydon)—Is it not in accordance with practice, Mr. Speaker, that you should cause a direction to be sent to the hon. member to attend in his place to-morrow?

The Speaker—The hon. member will be notified.

Sir A. Chamberlain—Ought there not to be the motion that he do attend?

The Speaker—I do not think so. There is no question of a charge against the hon. member.

DIGNITY OF THE HOUSE.

MODE OF DEALING WITH OFFENDERS.

The Press Association's Lobby Correspondent writes:—The modern practice of the House of Commons in dealing with libels and breaches of privilege is either to refer them to its own Committee of Privileges, which is set up each session, or, where a member is concerned, to try the case itself by hearing the member's explanations.

Reference to the Committee of Privileges involves an investigation, which is conducted in private.

If the House itself deals with an alleged offence that is brought before it, everything depends upon the member's explanations. If these are satisfactory the matter is allowed to drop; but, if the member fails to clear himself, the House immediately passes a resolution repudiating the affront to its dignity and censuring the member.

In the past members guilty of libels and breaches of privilege have been reprimanded from the chair, fined, imprisoned, ordered to be prosecuted by the Attorney General, or even expelled from Parliament.

A troop of 100 Boy Scouts from Liverpool, with bugle band, under the Rev. Father Dawson, a Waterford priest in the Liverpool Mission, arrived in WATERFORD yesterday to spend holidays at the Boys' Club Camp, Tramore.

THE ROUND-TABLE CONFERENCE.

OPPOSITION TO BE REPRESENTED.

FROM OUR LOBBY CORRESPONDENT.

The Government's long-awaited statement on the composition of the British representation at the Round-Table Conference on India will be made in the House of Commons to-day.

The original intention was to confine the British representation to members of the Government, but it has now been decided to include Conservative and Liberal nominees among the British representatives.

A further suggestion that Sir John Simon or some other member of the Indian Statutory Commission should be included in the British representation has not been adopted by the Government.

Viscount Burnham, who was a member of the Statutory Commission, intends to ask the Government, in the House of Lords to-day, whether the Report of the Commission will form the basis of consideration and discussion at the Round-Table Conference. It is expected that Lord Burnham's question will give rise to a debate.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Wedgwood Benn, Secretary for India, stated that the Round-Table Conference would be held at St. James's Palace at the conclusion of the Imperial Conference.

Asked by Mr. Fenner Brockway whether he had any information as to results of the recent interview with Mahatma Gandhi by Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar, Mr. Benn said that he was not in a position to make a statement.

MAHARAJAH'S VIEWS.

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.

BOMBAY, Monday.

The Maharajah of Kolhapur, speaking at a birthday Durbar, said that the assurances given by the Viceroy should satisfy all legitimate political ambitions. It was the sacred duty of Indians, both princes and people, to speak with one voice about their needs, and to help the Government to reach a satisfactory solution.

There need be no conflicting interests between British India and the States, the Maharajah said. Both sides could fully achieve political, economic and national greatness only by the advancement of India a a whole, and India could rise to her fullest height only by co-operation with the British Empire.

"I am confident that British statesmanship will prevail; the clouds will soon pass away, and, before another year is out, the States and British India will be firmly established in an enduring partnership with the British people to the benefit of India as a whole and of the Empire to which we are proud to belong."

BRITISH SERGEANT STABBED.

CALCUTTA, Monday.

Sergeant Ford, of the Calcutta Police, was stabbed in the back while on duty in the Burra Bazaar this afternoon. His assailant, who is believed to be an up-countryman, plunged a knife nearly a foot long between the shoulder blades of the policeman, and then stepped back into the crowd and escaped. The sergeant was removed to hospital, where his depositions were taken.

Sergeant Ford, who joined the police six months ago from the 14th Field Battery, Royal Artillery, had been on special duty in the Burra Bazaar for several weeks dealing with pickets.

GANDHI'S VICTIMS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MADRAS, Monday.

It is announced that ten thousand weavers at Coimbatore are idle because there is no demand for silk and cotton lace saris as a result of the civil disobedience movement. For the same reason the weavers in Salem are out of work.

THE PEACE TALKS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ALLAHABAD, Monday.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar continued their peace conversations with the Pundits Motilal and Jawaharlal Nehru this afternoon in Maini Jail. As the result of the talks Mr. Jayakar is going to Poona to-morrow with a note from the Nehrus to Mr. Gandhi.

APPOINTMENT FOR IRISHMAN.

CHAIRMAN OF LIQUOR CONTROL BOARD.

Mr. Henry B. Thomson, who was Canada's Food Controller during the war, has left London to become Chairman of the British Columbian Liquor Control Board.

Mr. Thomson, who is sixty years old, first went to British Columbia in 1893, and held managerial posts with several well-known concerns. During the war he was successively Chairman of the British Columbian Shipbuilding Commission, Food Controller for Canada, and Chairman of the Canada Food Board. Other important business and administrative appointments followed.

From 1906 to 1916 he represented Victoria in the Provincial Parliament, and was for ten years Whip in a Conservative Administration.

Mr. Thomson is a native of Newry, County Down.

IRISH GRAND PRIX LAP TIMES.

100 CIRCUITS AT OVER 85 M.P.H.

During the race for the Irish International Grand Prix in the Phœnix Park the 4¼ miles course was covered in less than three minutes (85.2 m.p.h.) no fewer than 101 times.

The drivers responsible were R. Caracciola, who had 45 laps above the 85.2 m.p.h. mark; Captain Malcolm Campbell (24 laps). H. R. S. Birkin (22 laps) and Earl Howe (10 laps). Birkin drove a Bentley and the others drove Mercedes.

Caracciola's best lap was at 91.3 m.p.h., Campbell's at 89.2 m.p.h., Birkin's at 88.7 m.p.h., and Howe's at 86.7 m.ph.

The best lap times of 1929 were beaten in all but the 750 c.c. and three litre classes. In the former, Gunnar Poppe's speed of 71.7 m.p.h. in last year's race still stands as the record, while K. Eggar's 80.3 m.p.h. in an Austro-Daimler was equalled, but not surpassed, this year.

The fastest laps in each class were as follow:—

THE LOUGH FOYLE DISPUTE.

AWAITING ACTION BY THE IRISH SOCIETY.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

There is apparently no modification of the position in the Lough Foyle fishery dispute. So far as can be learned, the Free State Government is content to await action on the part of the Irish Society. There is reason to believe that the Government does not regard the past action of the Foyle and Bann Fisheries Company as implicating the Irish Society, or hold that the proceedings of the lessees have in any way impaired the Irish Society's liberty of action.

There seems to be a conviction in Free State Government circles that the British Government is most desirous that the dispute should be settled in a normal way, and that the Government of Northern Ireland is of like mind.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS DEFENDED.

"EXAMINATIONS A NECESSARY EVIL."

Dr. Cyril Norwood, Headmaster of Harrow, distributing the prizes to the students of Dover College yesterday, said that modern people—and he used the word "modern" between inverted commas—people like Mr. H. G. Wells, Mr. Bernard Shaw and Mr. Bertrand Russell, had no use whatever for the public schools of this country. They said, among other things, that they were obsolete, devoid of conscious operative educational or moral efforts, and had no theory of education.

So far from being obsolete, the public schools had during the past fifteen years broadened and adjusted their curriculum and had considerably changed. If that was not a sign of life and energy, what was it?

The public schools of the coutry were awakening much more interest than ever before in the world in general. During the last term he had entertained, willingly and unwillingly, Germans, Austrians, Americans and Japanese who had come over to discover if they could learn something of the secret of English public school education. The public schools were crowded and full for years to come, and by that most accurate of tests they were secure. He claimed for them that they provided the best known system of education in the world at the present time.

In the past they had produced two results —firstly, teaching boys, and, therefore, men, the power to pull together; and, secondly, imparting something of the gift of leadership.

"Examinations," said Dr. Norwood, "are a necessary evil, but of some advantage later in life." During the last two weeks seventy thousand boys and girls, up and down the country, had been writing papers for external examinations in order that by that kind of machinery it might be discovered whether boys and girls at school had taken advantage of the education given them. The wisdom of the next generation might discover that they could get exactly the same results far more intelligently and thoughtfully if they were content with certificates given from a responsible school stating that a boy or girl had been there and finished a reasonable course.

WORCESTER ROYAL PORCELAIN.

WORKS TO RE-OPEN IN AUGUST.

Rumours that the Worcester Royal Porcelain Company's works have permanently closed down were yesterday denied by the receiver and manager, who stated that, while the annual holiday will be prolonged to enable stock to be taken, the works will re-open on August 12. The business is to be carried on with a view to consideration being given to various schemes for ensuring its continuance.

TEACHING APPOINTMENTS.

Colonel R. J. Howard, J.P., presided at a special meeting of DUNGANNON Regional Education Committee, at which Miss P. G. Jackson, Blackrock, Co. Dublin, and Miss Mary Leith, B.A., Dungannon, were unanimously appointed assistant teachers at Dungannon High School for Girls. Miss Dorothy Dawson of the Northern Ministry of Education, was appointed part-time art teacher. Secondary scholarships were awarded to R. Simpson, M. Reid, M. Sheeran, K. Muldoon, W. Atkinson and James Keenan, all of Dungannon, who were the highest in order of merit at the recent examination conducted by the Northern Ministry of Education.

COUNTY WICKLOW FEIS.

The County Wicklow District Feis was held at ARKLOW last Sunday under ideal weather conditions. A gathering of about 2,000 spectators were present, and the various competitions in language, story-telling, singing and dancing were well patronised. The Very Rev. M. Behan, P.P., Arklow, who presided, said that the Irish language itself brought history. There could not be a proper nation without a language. They could not do without the English language: it was the body, but the Irish language was the soul, and so, as the soul had no use in this life without the body, they could not do without the English language for the purpose of obtaining their bread and butter.

PEACEFUL DERRY.

The Commission of Assize for the CITY OF DERRY was opened yesterday, before Lord Justice Best, who was accompanied on the Bench by Sir Basil McFarland, Bart., City High Sheriff. Addressing the Grand Jury, the Judge said that their labours at those Assizes would be comparatively light. There were nine bills going before them, involving five persons, and the cases were such as might be expected in a community of the size of Londonderry. The state of the city was most satisfactory. He had an opportunity of seeing their most efficient City Commissioner, and he was satisfied with the way the people were conducting themselves. So far as crime was concerned since the last assizes, only five cases had been specially reported to the police.

TICKET-CHECKER SENTENCED.

At DERRY Assizes yesterday, before Lord Justice Best, a young man, John Molloy, ticket-checker and day man at the Derry Opera House, pleaded guilty to having on June 21 stolen £74 15s. 5d., the property of the Rialto Theatres, Ltd. Prisoner told the Judge that he spent the money backing horses. Mr. Begley handed in the defendant's Army discharge, and a statement by his officer that he was a good man, who served his country faithfully and was wounded in its defence. In reply to the Judge, the prisoner said that he had a pension of 12s. a week. The Judge asked had any of the money been recovered. Mr. Begley replied that £30 6s. 2d. had been recovered. The Judge said if this had been the prisoner's first offence he would have dealt with him very much more leniently than he could. He would send him to goal for nine calendar months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

DERRY POSTMAN'S LAPSE.

At DERRY Assizes yesterday, before Lord Justice Best, Robert Adams, postman, Bishop street, pleaded guilty to the larceny of two £1 Bank of England notes, the property of the Postmaster-General. Mr. J. O. H. Long (instructed by Mr. A. Robb), who appeared for the postman, said that in view of prisoner's previous good character, the fact that he was already punished by the loss of his job and the forfeiture of his pension, and the ill-health of his wife, he (counsel) asked the Judge to deal as mercifully as he could with the prisoner. The Judge said that this was a very serious offence. The prisoner had pleaded guilty to this charge. There was no other course open to him, because a trap was laid for him. He fell into the trap, and was caught within three hours of the money being posted. He sentenced the prisoner to six calendar months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

SUDDEN DEATH.

While rushing to catch the 7.30 train to TRAMORE last Sunday evening, Mrs. Annie Walsh, Ferrybank, had a sudden seizure, and, entering a Michael street shop, she collapsed and died.

COUNTY ARMAGH ORCHARDS.

Most of the County ARMAGH orchards promise good crops and good quality fruit this year, especially where spraying and time dressing have been thoroughly carried out. In some of the more exposed districts late frosts interfered with the setting, and this was mostly the case with the earlier blooming varieties. It is confidently expected that there will be a twenty per cent. increase in the local yield as compared with last year, and that the quality all round will be much better.

ANTI-PROHIBITION COUNCIL.

At a meeting of the Ulster Anti-Prohibition Council, which was held in the offices, Waring street, BELFAST, yesterday, Mr. S. W. Boyd, J.P., was elected Chairman, and Mr. Charles Lupane, Vice-Chairman. Mr. Boyd acknowledged the honour of asking him to accept the chairmanship of the Anti-Prohibition Council, and said that the former Chairman, Mr. W. H. Rattenbury was called away to London on promotion. He added that the utter defeat of the teetotal candidates at the general election was largely owing to the exertions of the Council.

LIMERICK CLERKSHIP.

At the LIMERICK Harbour Board meeting yesterday the results of the qualifying examinations of six candidates for the position of clerk in the Secretary's office at a commencing salary of £200 a year were sent in by the Principal of the Technical Institute. They were announced according to numbers, and the total number of marks out of a possible 600. Number 13, who received the highest number of marks (451), was elected on probation. The successful candidate was then stated to be Mr. Donald O'Brien, of Shannon View, Sarsfield street, Limerick.

EDUCATION IN TYRONE.

Proposals for the provision of new public elementary schools in the DUNGANNON area were discussed at a special meeting of the Dungannon Regional Education Committee, at which Mr. W. H. Welply, the Northern Ministry's chief inspector, attended, and at which Colonel R. J. Howard, J.P., presided. Mr. John Beatty, secretary, said that the Committee's proposals were to erect a new school at Moy to supersede Moy No. 2 public elementary school at a cost of £4,300; one at Eglish to supersede Eglish No. 3 public elementary school at a cost of £3,000, one to supersede Gortshalgan and Ballynakelly at a cost of £3,500, one to supersede Knocknaroy and Tyghan at a cost of £3,000, one to supersede Brantry and Dyan at a cost of £3,500, one to supersede Newmills, Lisnaglear and Gortnaglush at a cost of £4,000, one to supersede Castlecaulfeld at a cost of £3,000, and one to supersede Donaghmore and Kilnaslee at a clst of £4,300. It was decided to consult with teachers and those interested in education in the various districts, and consider the scheme fully at the next meeting.

AUSTRALIAN BUDGET.

OPPOSITION AMENDMENT DEFEATED.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CANBERRA, Monday.

In the House of Representatives to-day, Mr. Scullin, the Prime Minister, refused to accede to the Opposition's demands for economy and for a reduction of expenditure of £4,000,000, and curtailed the debate on the Budget, defeating Mr. Latham's amendment by 34 votes to 19.

After the rejection of an amendment for the withdrawal of the primage duty of 2½ per cent. on imports of fertilisers and sacks for agricultural products, Mr. Scullin indicated that the primage duty, which applies to all imports, might be renewed in three months' time.

WESLEYAN CONFERENCE

SUFFERERS IN ITALIAN EARTHQUAKE.

The pastoral session of the Wesleyan Conference was continued at Leeds yesterday. A telegram was received from the Chairman of the Italy district to the effect that the recent earthquake had seriously affected the neighbourhood of Rapolla. The circuit steward had been killed and some of the brethren had suffered loss.

For the vacancies in the stations thirty-six candidates for the ministry, who were received into its ranks last week, it was stated, were required for immediate circuit work. They will take one year of their probation in the active work before proceeding to one of the colleges.

NEWS SUMMARY

IRELAND.

Arrangements are now complete for the opening of the Dublin Horse Show on Tuesday next.—(Page 7.)

Vigorous protests were made at a meeting at Navan yesterday of farmers and others interested in the cattle trade against the new rates of transport for cattle on the railways.—(Page 7.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

The British airship R 100 was due to start for Canada this morning. Her route lay across Northern Ireland and the North Atlantic.—(Page 7.)

At the World's Poultry Congress in London yesterday Mr. A. W. Street, of the British Ministry of Agriculture, suggested the establishment of a British National Egg Board.—(Page 11.)

The House of Lords yesterday gave a first reading to the Finance Bill.—(Page 8.)

In the House of Commons yesterday the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs stated that His Majesty's Government, in view of their ultimate responsibility for the protection of foreign lives and property in Egypt, held strictly to account the leaders of both parties in the constitutional conflict in Egypt.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD.

There are now 26,000 workers on strike in Lille, and troops are parading the streets.—(Page 7.)

A widespread conspiracy against Spain has been revealed by the arrest of a large number of anarchists near Paris.—(Page 7.)

The United States has denied entry to ships loaded with pulpwood from Russia.—(Page 7.)

Chinese Communists have captured Changsha, the capital of Hunan. All foreigners were evacuated by British, United States and Japanese gunboats.—(Page 7.)

FINANCIAL.

A firm tone ruled at the opening on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday, but the tendency at the close was irregular.—(Page 8.)

Presiding at the Hibernian Bank meeting, Mr. Martin F. O'Mahony said the bank's general position was satisfactory. Profits for the half-year showed a recovery compared with the two preceding half-years. Replying to a shareholder, he said the directors were considering the matter of opening thrift accounts at their branches.—(Page 12.)

London Stock Markets were quiet and irregular. Gilt-edged things were firm, but British Rails were very weak.—(Page 12.)

In Lombard street loan and discount rates were easy. Silver lost the rise of Saturday, and gold was a farthing lower. At the Bank £221,917 in bar gold was sold to France.—(Page 12.)

Dublin was somewhat erratic. Great Southern issues were strong, but Great Northern Ord. was offered at 23, as compared with last closing price of 27½.—(Page 12.)

The Irish Railways.

Unprosperous railways mean an unprosperous land. This truth is illustrated by the protest which we print to-day—reasoned in its nature, moderate in its terms—against new increases in the Irish railway rates for the transport of live cattle. We can sympathise alike with the farmers of County Meath and with the Free State railways. On the one hand, the new rates add a formidable load to the taxation of the farmers' industry. On the other hand, the railways are in such dire straits that, for the sake of this immediate relief, they are taking the risk that the farmers may seek alternative means of transport. The Great Northern Railway Company has passed its interim dividend. At the end of this year the Great Southern Company's ordinary shareholders, if they are lucky, may get an annual dividend of one per cent. Moreover, that dividend will not be paid out of profits—which are non-existent—but from the fruits of strict and painful economies in the working of the line. While the farmers are merely indignant, having still at their backs a substantial and permanent industry, the Free State railways are distracted. On the one side is the appeal of their shareholders, including thousands of elderly people who watch with dreadful apprehension the steady decay of their sole means of support. On the other side are a huge and inexorable wages bill and the increasing competition of the roads. The sole consolation of these railways and of their shareholders—since misery loves company—is that they are not alone in misfortune. To an English railway shareholder, twenty years ago, a dream of the ordinary stocks of the great English railways, as they stand to-day, would have seemed a fantastic nightmare. The gross earnings of the London, Midland and Scottish and the London and North-Eastern Railways, which serve the most hardly stricken areas of British trade, show a decrease of more than £2,500,000 as compared with the first six months of last year.

There is a limit to railway savings, however ingenious—especially when the paramount and, by every law of economics, the most natural source of saving cannot be touched. Ireland suffers less than England from the depression of trade, but in both countries the railways carry the incubus of an enormous wages bill. In Great Britain that bill is more likely to increase than to diminish; for the 2½ per cent. reduction of wages, which all grades accepted voluntarily in 1928, came to an end two months ago. "It would be difficult," says The Times, commenting on this inopportune event, "to find a more instructive illustration of the harmful rigidity of the wage system in our sheltered trades, which, perhaps, more than any other single factor, has been responsible for the failure of our exporting industries to reduce their costs to a competitive level." Since railway wages in Great Britain and Ireland are more than one hundred per cent. above the pre-War level, "it is scarcely surprising"—again we quote The Times—"that the companies are obliged to maintain transport charges which, compared with those of our powerful competitors in world markets, must be considered as almost absurdly high." Here is plausible argument, but cold comfort, for the farmers of County Meath. The Free State railways are making no profits because the bulk of their income is absorbed by their wages bill. They are paying wages which have no economic relation to agricultural wages. They are so heavily overstaffed that, if they had a free hand, they could dispense easily to-morrow with at least twenty-five per cent. of their servants. It is the influence of the strongest of English trade unions which maintains these anomalous conditions—which has stabilised Irish railway wages in an arbitrary fashion that disregards alike the companies' interests and the farmers' needs. Within the last week the Free State Government has helped that union to extend its authority and to claim even the Free State roads as corners of an Irish field "that are for ever England." Yet—so curious are the paradoxes of Irish politics—the Free State Government rejects England's ægis in its candidature for the Council of the League of Nations.

Turmoil in Egypt.

Events in Egypt are marching rapidly towards another crisis. In spite of King Fuad's dissolution of Parliament last month, the Wafdists, on last Friday night, held meetings of both Chambers in the Saadist Club in Cairo, and passed resolutions calling upon the Egyptian people to withhold their taxes from the Government. The situation bears many analogies to that which existed in Ireland in the beginning of 1919. Agitators have been playing upon the feelings of the Cairo mob, which is one of the most unruly mobs in the world, and sooner or later a further outburst will become inevitable. In the House of Commons yesterday, Dr. Dalton, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, declared that His Majesty's Government held the ultimate responsibility for the maintenance of law and order in Egypt, and would hold the leaders of both parties responsible for any outbreaks that might occur. As matters stand at present, Britain must protect the lives and property of all foreign residents. Hitherto, Dr. Dalton assured the House of Commons, there has been no need for armed intervention; but the Government is taking no unnecessary risks. H.M.S. Ramillies has been sent to Port Said, H.M.S. Waterhen is at Suez, and the Queen Elizabeth is at Alexandria, where her presence already has had a salutary effect upon the minds of the natives. His Majesty's Government has done its best to maintain a strict neutrality in the squabble between King Fuad and Nahas Pasha, and has neither the right nor the desire to interfere in the constitutional issue. The safety of the foreign population, however, is an obligation of honour as well as of law, and Dr. Dalton's assurance that it will be observed will be welcomed everywhere.

Nobody—not even himself—seems to know precisely what Nahas Pasha wants. He is opposed bitterly to King Fuad, whose abdication he has been demanding for several months, and it is suggested that he would support the candidature of His Majesty's ten-year-old son under his own regency. The Diplomatic Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, however, publishes a rumour which is far more "sensational." It seems that Abbas Hilmi, who was Khedive until 1914, is on the scene again, and that a strong section of the Wafd is anxious to place him on the Egyptian Throne. Abbas Hilmi, who is a grandson of the notorious Ismail Pasha, became Khedive in 1892. He always was hostile to the British connection, and his sympathy with Turkey at the outbreak of war was so obvious that he was deposed. If the people of Egypt should decide to depose King Fuad, Britain would have no right to prevent them. The monarchy is purely a domestic affair with which Britain has no concern. Any attempt to influence Egypt in her choice of Fuad's successor would be highly improper, and we are convinced that Mr. Ramsay Macdonald would not entertain such a suggestion for a moment. The whole matter may be debated in the House of Commons to-day on the Foreign Office vote, but it is unlikely that the Conservatives will try to embarrass the Government. The situation in Egypt is exceedingly delicate. Every day the Wafdists are becoming more extreme in their demands, and the time is approaching when the King must make a stand. Nahas Pasha cannot be allowed to defy the Government with impunity. Already he has gone too far, and repressive measures must be taken. Britain's sole concern in the matter is the protection of her own and foreign interests; the Government of Egypt must deal with Nahas Pasha.

Fewer Emigrants.

Figures which we publish to-day have a significance for the student of modern Irish and American conditions. They reveal that, although the tide of emigration from the Free State to the United States continues to flow, the rate of its current has been diminished appreciably within the last few years. Two causes contribute to the decline. In the first place, the United States authorities, anxious to preserve a balance among the nationalities, reduced the Free State's immigration quota to a notable extent. Whereas 28,567 Free State citizens were permitted to enter in 1927-28, the quota for 1929-30 was reduced to 17,853. In the second place, it seems reasonably certain that there is less desire to emigrate to America; the United States unemployment figures furnish a strong hint that it is better to endure a mediocre existence in the old world than to cast one's bread upon the uncertain waters of the new. Furthermore, the Free State's return to normal conditions has discouraged the despair of which emigration is both the symbol and product. Within three years the proportion of rejected applications has increased to a notable extent, while, as we have observed, the figures in general have shown a decline. Thus, while the United States profits by the easement of its burden of unemployed, the Free State will benefit by the retention of her more valuable citizens. For many years Ireland's man-power has decayed, and her accumulation of wealth has not been great enough to redress the balance. The conclusion drawn from these figures is fraught with promise.

Spoken English.

Who is the arbiter of accent? Mr. F. G. Blandford, lecturing at a summer session in Cambridge University, stressed the immeasurable importance of a good accent as a social qualification. "In England," he said, "people regard good speech as good manners." Unfortunately, Mr. Blandford omitted to tell his hearers what constituted a good accent and where the best models could be found. The soft, if slightly flat, tones of educated Irishmen often fail to impress the Londoner. The nasal American twang—which, incidentally, has begun to exert a contaminating influence on English speech—repels the majority of Britons, while Mr. St. John Ervine contends that the harsh dialect of Ulster is the most attractive of all. There seems to be some evidence for the belief that spoken English is dividing into a "social" and an "ordinary" language. Social and commercial needs are evolving a "standard" English; and the same person, as Mr. Blandford remarked, can use either accent as occasion demands. Still the fundamental difficulty remains. Even if we grant that a standard English exists, what is it? Probably most people would reply that the accent of the British Broadcasting Corporation's announcers is both the "standard" and the "best" English. Trouble arises when one attempts to analyse that English, and to discover precisely what qualities make it "good." The trouble is increased when one notices that all those pleasant voices, although similar in type, have minor, but very definite, differences. We must be content with generalities.

ARRIVAL OF FRENCH MINISTER.

OFFICIAL WELCOME AT KINGSTOWN.

M. Alphand, the French Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary, recently appointed to the Irish Free State, arrived at Kingstown yesterday evening on R.M.S. Hibernia.

He was accompanied by Madame Alphand and Mlles. Suzanne and Marie-Victoire Alphand, his daughters.

Mr. J. P. Walsh, Secretary, and Mr. S. Murphy, Assistant Secretary to the Free State Ministry for External Affairs, received the French diplomat on behalf of the Minister at the Carlisle Pier. Monsieur Vacher Corbière, French Consul-General in Charge, and Madame Vacher Corbière, and M. André Leprévost, Commercial Attaché, and Madame Leprévost also went aboard the boat and welcomed the new Minister.

Mesdames Vacher-Corbière and Leprévost presented bouquets to Madame Alphand.

A GUARD OF HONOUR.

A military guard of honour of the 2nd Battalion, Portobello Barracks, under the command of Captain Keogh, Lieutenant McKenna and Lieutenant Lennon, was drawn up on the pier, with the No. 1 Army Band, under Lieutenant Doyle. As the French Minister disembarked the guard of honour presented arms and the band played the National Anthem of France.

Captain Keogh was introduced to M. Alphand, who inspected the guard of honour. M. Alphand with his family left the pier in a motor car which had been brought up close to the boat gangway. As the car passed all along the harbour-front the crowd gave the French Minister a cheer.

Amongst those who attended the arrival of the Minister were Captain Fosbery Holmes, R.N., Harbour Master; Mr. J. M. Irwin, Irish traffic manager, L.M.S. Company; Captain Cassidy, Assistant Harbour Master; Superintendent Clarke and Inspectors O'Riordan and Gilbride, F. Division, Civic Guards.

"SUPPLENESS AND TACT."

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Monday.

The Journal to-day has a leading article on the appointment of M. Alphand to be the first French Minister in Dublin. The paper says that no better choice could be made, his long tenure of the post of Director of the Office for Enemy Properties having given him an opportunity for practising suppleness and tact.

DUKE OF GLOUCESTER IN THE NORTH.

VISIT EXTENDED.

The Duke of Gloucester, the King's third son, who is at present on a private visit to the Marquess and Marchioness of Londonderry at Mountstewart, Co. Down, has decided to extend his stay in the North. He is not expected to leave before the end of the week. His Royal Highness is a keen golfer, and on Saturday he played over the Scrabo links, Newtownards.

Yesterday the Duke paid a surprise visit to Ballymena, and inspected a number of hunters belonging to Mr. John Bamber, the well-known exhibitor and prize-winner. He was accompanied by Lady Londonderry, her daughters, Lady Margaret and Lady Helen Stewart, and Captain the Right Hon. Hubert Dixon, M.P., the Chief Government Whip.

Guests at Mountstewart at present include Brenda Marchioness of Dufferin, the new Marquess and Marchioness and Lady Veronica Blackwood.

They were present at a touching Service at the church in Mountstewart demesne last Sunday, which was conducted by Canon Whatham, the rector of Greyabbey, who made a graceful reference to the late Marquess.

The members of the Dufferin family had been stopping in London with Lord and Lady Londonderry, who were greatly distressed at the death of Lord Dufferin, and they invited their friends to say with them at Mountstewart.

THE PRINCE OF WALES SEES NAVAL TATTOO.

TO-DAY'S VISIT OF THE KING AND QUEEN.

The Prince of Wales, wearing the uniform of a Naval Captain, occupied the Royal box at last night's performance of the Naval Tattoo at Whale Island, Portsmouth, held to commemorate the centenary of H.M.S. Excellent as a gunnery ship.

The Prince, who had motored over from Adsdean House, Chichester, where he has been visiting Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten, was accompanied by the Commander-in-Chief, Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes and Lady Keyes, Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten, Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey, Lord Queenborough, Vice-Admiral Larkin, Captain Royle, Captain of Whale Island, and others. He appeared greatly interested in the historic episodes dealing with the evolution in Naval gunnery through the centuries.

This afternoon the King and Queen propose to break their journey to Cowes to witness a shortened private performance of the tattoo.

THE DRUMM BATTERY.

AN EARLY PRACTICAL TEST.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

It would appear that the public is within measurable distance of learning something definite concerning the Drumm battery. The Free State Minister for Industry and Commerce is about to take his vacation, and is anxious to carry with him the assurance that the battery has proved equal to all that has been promised for it.

The railway coach which has been specially rebuilt to accommodate the battery has been completed, save for the fitting in of a hundred or more cells, and matters are so advanced that the conclusive test under practical conditions will be made within the next eight days or so.

THE FLOOD MENACE IN SIND.

SHIKARPUR TOWN STILL IN DANGER.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
KARACHI, Monday.

News from Upper Sind shows that the town of Shikarpur is still in imminent danger from the floods. The waters are now skirting the railway line between Shikarpur and Sultankote, and are heading towards the town.

Fifteen thousand refugees have been evacuated to Sukkur and Karachi in special trains and by road. Five thousand rupees have been sanctioned from the Sind Flood Relief Fund to meet the needs of the starving refugees. Hundreds of constables left Sukkur and Shikarpur yesterday to assist in the work of relief.

Cases of looting and robbery have been reported from Khanpur. The engineers propose to divert the flood-waters into the Khirtar head.

A house collapsed as a result of the floods at Shikarpur yesterday, burying its five occupants. All were extricated alive, although one is in a critical condition.

PREMIER AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald was received in audience by the King at Buckingham Palace last night. He remained at the Palace for about half-an-hour.

A Reuter message from Port Said states that Miss Amy Johnson landed there yesterday morning from the liner, Nalder, and was met by the Governor. She left for Cairo in the noon train.

LONDON LETTER.

ROYALTY ON VACATION.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

The London season, which has been more brilliant than many people expected, has come to an end. To-morrow all the members of the Royal Family will have left London for some weeks. The King and Queen will travel by special train from London to Portsmouth, where they will embark on the Victoria and Albert. The Prince of Wales will go to Portsmouth for the Naval Tattoo, whence he will proceed to Belgium on a visit to the King and Queen of that country, and will inspect the Antwerp Exhibition. The Duke and Duchess of York are at Glamis, where they will remain for some weeks, while the Duke of Gloucester and Prince George are making country visits. Princess Mary and Lord Harewood are spending the Goodwood Week with Lord and Lady Bessborough. Other members of the Royal Family already have left London for the country.

India's Affairs.

The Secretary for India, in reply to a question in the House of Commons this afternoon, said that the India Round-Table Conference would be held at St. James's Palace at the conclusion of the Imperial Conference. He was unable to state what the composition of the British representation would be. The statement arose out of what was really a little debate on Indian affairs. It was suggested from the Labour benches that a joint consultation might be arranged between Mr. Gandhi and the leaders of moderate opinion in India, but Mr. Wedgwood-Benn did not seem to approve of the idea, although he returned no answer when Sir A. Knox, a Conservative, asked whether official conversations with Mr. Gandhi, so long as he remained in prison, were not a confession of weakness.

Measures in Egypt.

The problem of Egypt followed, and, in reply to a question by Colonel J. Gretton, Dr. Dalton, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said that, in view of their ultimate responsibility for the protection of foreign lives and property in Egypt and the danger to public order, the British Government had decided to hold strictly to account the leaders of both parties in the present constitutional conflict in Egypt. The Government's communication was intended to make the position unmistakably clear. He added that the Government was satisfied that foreign nationals were receiving all the protection required. It had been unnecessary hitherto to call on the British troops in Egypt to take any part in events. Dr. Dalton's answers were considered to be quite satisfactory, and it is now uncertain that there will be a debate on the Egyptian question.

Mr. Sandham's Allegations.

The speech made by Mr. Sandham, the Labour member for Kirkdale, wherein he made certain suggestions about his fellow-members, was mentioned in the House of Commons this afternoon. Lord Winterton rose after the question hour to draw attention to the speech, pointing out that it should be regarded as a gross libel and a breach of privilege. Further discussion, however, was out of the question, since Mr. Sandham was not present. It is understood that the matter will be raised again to-morrow, when it is hoped that the member for Kirkdale will be in his place. In the lobby this afternoon there was much discussion of Mr. Sandham's speech, and members were inclined to the view that he must have been misunderstood.

Broadcasting and Politics.

Once again the question whether political speeches shall be permitted by the British Broadcasting Corporation will be considered to-morrow in the House of Commons, when representatives of the three political parties will meet and endeavour to come to a satisfactory arrangement on this matter. In the past the Government of the day has claimed the right of reply to every speech broadcast by its opponents, which meant that the Government secured two talks for every one made by the Opposition parties. It now appears that all three parties want to make use of the wireless system for political propaganda, and it is their hope that a series of regular broadcasts may be arranged to take place.

Luxury Trades.

The business depression is beginning now to affect luxury trades, and many of the West End shopkeepers complain that it is difficult to carry on while conditions remain so bad. A number complain that during the season they have had few customers, while the rents and upkeep of great shops in the central thoroughfares are very considerable. It appears that when there is a depression, financial or industrial, it is the basic industries which suffer first, after which the trouble extends to the luxury trades. The development is regarded as a clear indication that the depression is serious. Many business houses are carrying on in the hope that the autumn will see an improvement in conditions generally, but it is feared that there will be nothing of the kind while the present Government continues to spend the public's money as it is doing now.

R 100.

Everything is ready for the departure of R 100 on her voyage over the Atlantic to Canada. The journey to Montreal is expected to occupy three days, but provisions will be taken on board for five days. These will include bacon, meat, three hundredweights of bread, dried vegetables, butter and jam. The R 100 will be given a great reception when she arrives at Montreal, and several members of the Dominion Government will be present at St. Hubert's to meet her. The airship will remain in Canada for several weeks, and will make a number of passenger flights while she is there.

The Cecil's Site.

The Hotel Cecil, acquired earlier in the year by one of the big oil companies, has struck a distinctive note in the architecture of the Strand since it was opened in 1896. Now it is to be demolished, and a block of offices will be erected on the site. By reason of its proximity to the river on one side and its frontage to the Strand on the other, the new building will be one of the most prominent landmarks in London. The price paid by the owners for the land, buildings, fixtures and fittings was over £1,500,000, and for some weeks past auction sales have been in progress for the disposal of the furniture, fittings and wines. During the war the building known as the Air Board Office was the headquarters of the Royal Flying Corps and afterwards of the Royal Air Force.

Freightage Rates.

Shipping as an industry is subject to somewhat violent fluctuations, and for some time past has been in a decidedly depressed state. Fortunately, however, there are indications of an improvement. The most notable recovery is in the case of freight rates from South America; and homeward rates from other parts are higher. Whether outward rates become correspondingly firmer remains to be seen; but for the present it is regrettable that the decrease in exports from this country reveals itself so distinctly in the low level of outward freight rates.

BRENDA, MARCHIONESS OF DUFFERIN AND AVA.

It was announced from Clandeboye, Co. Down, last night that the widow of the Marquess of Dufferin and Ava wished to be addressed in future as Brenda Marchioness of Dufferin and Ava.

PROTEST AGAINST NEW CATTLE RATES.

SERIOUS INCREASES ALLEGED AT FARMERS' MEETING.

DEPUTATION TO RAILWAYS COMPANY.

PROPOSED ALTERNATIVE SCHEME FOR TRANSPORT OF STOCK.

FARMERS and others interested in the cattle trade met at Navan yesterday, and vigorously protested against "the recent serious increase in rates on transport of live stock by rail, both for home markets and cross-Channel traffic."

It was suggested that, if the Free State Government, which had power under recent Acts, took the necessary steps, there would be no necessity for any war between the farming community and the railway and shipping companies.

A resolution was passed, in which it was stated that the meeting viewed with alarm the considerable increase in the cost of transport of stock, and urged that steps be taken to deal with the situation immediately.

It was decided to send a deputation to interview the Great Southern Railways Company relative to the increased rates, and, if the interview was not successful, to call a conference of the Farmers' Union, cattle dealers, feeders and farmers; and that the conference devise a scheme for alternative transport of stock, to take effect on a date to be named, without any further negotiations with the railway company.

Another resolution was passed "calling upon parliamentary representatives to impress on their respective parties the necessity of bringing pressure to bear on the railway and shipping companies to withdraw the recently increased railway and shipping rates."

A CALL TO THE GOVERNMENT.

FROM OUR REPORTER.
NAVAN, Monday.

Mr. Charles McKenna presided at the meeting, at which there was a large attendance.

The Chairman said that the railways and steamship companies had made a very big increase in rates and freights on what were already over high. He did not think it would be fair to the railway companies and to all concerned to start a fighting scheme, but from what happened recently the railway company seemed to have the whole thing in their hands.

They had started to increase rates at a time when, in his opinion, it was more difficult than ever for the ordinary farmer to live. He had been feeding cattle for a long time, and this year he had got less gross profit on his cattle than ever before, and expenses had very much increased.

As a shareholder he said that the railway company was killing the goose with the golden egg. Up to this they had been plucking the goose, but now they were going to kill it, and he supposed that it was up to the poor goose to make some sort of a fight for its life. Some years ago, when the railway passenger fares were increased to an enormous extent, 'buses were started in opposition, and now the railway company brought a passenger from Dublin to Navan for 2s. 6d.—as low a rate as ever they had. They might also have to squeal about the carrying freights.

INDUSTRY IN PRECARIOUS CONDITION.

This was a time for nursing and helping an industry that was in a very precarious condition. Heretofore they had a waggon rate for sheep, but no head rate, from Navan to Birkenhead. The former waggon rate was £6 13s. 6d.; now it was £8 2s. 6d. There was a head rate for cattle from Navan to Birkenhead of 15s. 10d., but that had now been abolished, and now the waggon rate was £8 2s. 6d. A waggon would take about eight cattle, so that it meant an increase of between four and five shillings a head.

If they were not able to bear the previous burden, he did not know how they were going to bear this. People were not going to stand it, and steps were under weigh to deal with the matter. The railway company should see that the people were thoroughly in earnest, and that they would not be squeezed out.

The Government, which were the advisers and servants of the people, had full power under recent Acts to take the necessary steps in the matter. If they would take these steps then he thought there would be no necessity for any war between the farming community and the railway and shipping companies.

Various resolutions would be proposed, and he hoped that they would give them due consideration. In no circumstances was it wise to make charges which they could not substantiate, nor to make threats which at the present time it was not necessary to carry out. (Applause.)

The hon. secretary read the following alterations in rates of cattle from Meath stations to Dublin:—Navan, same rate; Bective, 9d. increase; Kilmessan, 5s. 2d. increase; Drumree, 3s. increase; Batterstown, 3s. 7d. reduction; Dunboyne, 3s. 2d. reduction; Gibbstown, 2s. 8d. increase; Wilkinstown, 2s. 11d. increase; Athboy, 3s. 6d. increase; Nobber, 1s. 8d. increase; Kingswood, 1s. increase; Kingscourt, 10d. increase; Trim, 4s. 3d. increase.

The rates from Western and Southern fairs to Meath line stations were mostly increased. From Ballinasloe to Drumree the increase was 11s. 3d. per waggon, and to Navan £1 1s. 3d. a waggon, and the increase became greater on to stations towards Kingscourt and Athboy.

The rate from Navan to Birkenhead was £8 2s. 6d. a waggon, an increase of £1 9s.

SITUATION VIEWED WITH ALARM.

Major Collins Gerrard proposed a resolution, that the meeting viewed with alarm the considerable increase in cost of transport of stock, and that the necessary steps be taken to deal with the situation. He said that the chairman had given them the right lines on which they ought to go. He had not come to speak on the general question at all, but he would give them some figures as to charges from his own railway station—Gibbstown.

From Navan to Amiens street, G.N.R., a waggon cost £1 14s. 5d., and a half-waggon £1 3s. 6d. On the Great Southern, from Navan to Liffey Junction, the charges were the same; while from Gibbstown to Liffey Junction a waggon cost £2 5s. 0d., and a half-waggon £1 8s. 4d. As regards passenger fares they were: third class, single, on G. N. Railway, from Navan to Amiens street, 2s. 6d.; and Great Southern Railway, Gibbstown to Dublin, 4s. 6d. by train and 2s. 6d. by 'bus. From Gibbstown to Navan the train fare was 6d., and from Navan to Dublin 2s. 6d. (Laughter.)

REDUCE RUNNING COSTS.

Admiral Craig Waller, in seconding, said that he thought the effect of that meeting, if it was unanimous in coming to some decision, ought to be very considerable. He thought that it was an awful pity that a meeting like that should be called, and that they should be simply beating the air, and nothing come of it. It would be a great pity if a resolution were passed recommending some course of action, which in the end could not be carried out.

The railway companies, no doubt, were hit very hard, and the reason why they were hit was because they were in the hands of a very powerful organisation, known as the N.U.R., and unless very strong pressure was brought to bear from outside the railways would not be able to do anything. Anyone who was a railway shareholder knew that the profits made were very small, and that railway companies in order to save themselves, had "passed" dividends. The proper way for a railway company, of course, to deal with the matter was to reduce the running costs. Anyone examining the cost of running railways now knew that they were out of all proportion to pre-war rates. They were altogether out of proportion, taking the rise generally in the cost of living. Employés of railways, as far as he could gather, were far better off relatively than they were pre-war.

HIGH COSTS.

Although the price obtained for cattle and live stock generally was considerably more than before the war, it was not nearly so great, in proportion to the cost of living, as it should be. Consequently, taking the very high rates they had to pay, the high income tax and high cost of foodstuffs for live stock, the high cost of labour and the running costs of a farm, the profits were gradually diminishing, and in many cases they had disappeared altogether and they were run at a loss. That was a very bad thing for agriculture, which was the mainstay of the country. No doubt one of the very big reasons for that was the very high cost of transport. He thought that they should make very strong representations on the matter and endeavour to bring it to a head and ensure that the railway companies would reduce their rates to a reasonable economic condition. (Applause.)

A CLEAR UNDERSTANDING.

Mr. John Leonard, in supporting the resolution, said that he had been for a long number of years interested in the question of transport charges, and particularly since 1912. He had close relation with the cattle trade, and had come into contact with various transport companies and various Governments. He had the honour of going on deputations to Governments, shipping companies and railway companies, and what remained most clearly in his mind was that there had been a constant and heavy increase in charges. Not always was it in the way of freight by boat and rail, but there was an accumulating high tide of increasing charges for food, driving, veterinary inspection, tagging, etc.

The Railway Tribunal sat last year, and he was before it, and there was a pretty clear understanding that, though they increased the charges on merchandise, they would not increase freights on cattle. They went away, if not happy, at all events contented. About a month afterwards the Tribunal said that they had the right to increase rates on cattle, and, having the right, they proceeded to do it.

Mr. N. Tully said that the one cure was nationalisation of the railways.

The resolution passed unanimously.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE SUGGESTED

Mr. A. Brogan proposed that, if the public protest made at that meeting be not effective and successful in having rates reduced to an economic figure, a conference be called of representatives of the Farmers' Union, cattle feeders and farmers of the county, and that the conference devise an alternative scheme for the transport of stock, to take effect from a certain date, without further negotiations with the railway company.

The Duke de Stacpoole seconded the resolution. They might find several alternative ways of dealing with this problem. One was to drive the cattle, and have carts for animals not able to walk long distances. He instanced the case of a dealer who had a hundred cattle driven from Cahirciveen to Killarney rather than pay the increased charges which were demanded, and he was told that the cattle did not suffer by the journey. If an individual could do that, surely an organisation could do it.

Mr. O'Donoghue asked what about sending a deputation from that meeting to the railway company?

The Chairman said he would receive the resolution.

Mr. O'Donoghue then proposed that a deputation be sent to the railway company before taking any further action.

It was suggested that Mr. O'Donoghue's resolution be embodied in Mr. Brogan's resolution.

This was agreed to, and Mr. Brogan's resolution then read: "that a deputation be appointed to interview the Great Southern Railways Co. relative to the increased railway rates, and if the interview is not successful, that a conference be called, representative of the Farmers' Union, cattle dealers, feeders, and farmers from the county, and that the conference devise a scheme for alternative transport of stock, to take effect on a date to be named, without any further negotiations with the railway company."

The Chairman thought that they should tackle the railway companies and shipping companies.

Mr. J. Roundtree suggested tackling the Great Southern Railways Company only at first.

Major Gerrard agreed with this view.

Mr. A. Matthews, T.D., also agreed, and SOVIET GOODS NOT WANTED.

U.S. DENIES ENTRY TO SHIPS.

FIRST MOVE IN BIG TRADE WAR.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NEW YORK, Monday.

The first direct breach of trade relations between the United States and Soviet Russia came to-day, when the Deputy Surveyor of Customs refused entry to two ships loaded with pulpwood from Russia.

The ships which were denied entry were the Christian Bors, a Norwegian freighter, and the Grelisle, a British cargo boat, both from Archangel.

The cargo of the first vessel was consigned to the Amtorg Trading Company, the official Soviet trade agency here.

It is understood that the refusal of entry was made on direct orders from Washington, and the action is regarded as the opening move in a great trade war involving the products of convict labour under Soviet rule.

WASHINGTON ATTITUDE.

Another British steamer, loaded with 3,200 cords of pulpwood, arrived to-day at Portland, Maine, after a seventeen days' race across the Atlantic, but she arrived forty-eight hours too late to be able to discharge her cargo. Orders prohibiting the discharge of such cargoes came into effect two days ago.

Treasury officials in Washington to-day indicated that the Government would make a thorough investigation before taking any action in response to requests for embargoes against Soviet products, including lumber and manganese.

The American Manganese Producers' Association announced on Saturday that it had asked the United States Government to place an embargo upon Russian manganese on the ground that it was being dumped in America at prices with which American producers could not possibly compete, because of the "slave labour" used by the Soviet. Wood pulp loaded by Russian convicts has already been banned.

The New York Times states that a movement has begun among American workmen to hold a protective conference, with a view to "stopping all Soviet exports from entering the United States by means of a general embargo."

The conference, which will be held in connection with the American Federation of Labour, will consist of representatives of the national and international trade unions, with a membership of half a million workmen.

An embargo, to become effective on January 1st next, will be sought under the provision of the new tariff law banning goods made by convict, forced, or indentured labour.

COMMUNISTS CAPTURE CHANGSHA.

GUNBOATS EVACUATE FOREIGNERS.

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.
SHANGHAI, Monday.

As a result of the movement of a large force of Communists from Kiangsi into Hunan, the capital, Changsha, is in danger. The Government troops are retiring to the west and foreigners are being taken away by the British gunboats Apis and Teal, the Japanese gunboat Futami and the United States gunboat Palos. There may be some difficulty for these vessels in getting out of the Siang river (the main waterway of Hunan) owing to the falling of the water.

Another large Communist force is threatening Nanchang, the capital of Kiangsi, and many refugees are arriving at Kiukiang, which is denuded of troops owing to the operations for the relief of Nanchang. A force of bandits is known to be only twenty miles from Kiukiang.

"REDS" ENTER CHANGSHA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
SHANGHAI, Monday.

It is learned on trustworthy authority that a force of Chinese "Reds" has captured Changsha. All the foreigners are believed to have been evacuated by British, American and Japanese warships.

ANARCHIST ARRESTS IN FRANCE.

ORGANISATION'S PLOT AGAINST SPAIN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Monday.

The examination of the sixty-one Spanish anarchists arrested in a meadow near Paris yesterday afternoon went on throughout the night at police headquarters, and was resumed later in the morning. Searches have been carried out at the homes of several of the prisoners, and documents have been seized.

It transpires that in the course of speeches made at the meeting it was announced that agents of the organisation in the Toulouse and Perpignan districts were carrying on active propaganda with a view to stirring up the Spanish anarchist forces of Southern France. This done, it was proposed to send the anarchists quietly into Spain, there to proceed to large centres, including Barcelona, Seville, Cadiz, Malaga, Saragossa and Santa Cruz de Teneriffe, in the Canary Islands, to incite the population to revolt.

Eight of the arrested men have been detained for disobeying expulsion orders, and similar orders will be asked for in the case of fifteen others.

SCOTT WELL BEATEN.

VERY EASY VICTORY FOR YOUNG STRIBLING.

At the Wimbledon Stadium, London, last night, Young Stribling, the American boxer, had a very easy victory over Phil Scott, whom he knocked out in the second round. In the first round Scott was down four times, three times for counts of nine, and on the last occasion he was still prone when the round ended as the referee called "eight."

There was really no boxing in the second round, Scott hanging on to Stribling until the latter with a punch to the stomach brought the bout to an end. Scott never landed a blow. It is probable that Stribling will now be matched with Max Schmeling for the world's championship, which the latter holds as the result of his victory over Jack Sharkey a few months ago.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
LILLE, Monday.

The Lille textile workers, affiliated to the General Confederation of Labour, decided yesterday upon a general strike for to-day. They are ready to accept the application of the new insurance law, but are asking for an increase of wages based on the present cost of living.

The strike order appeared to have been generally followed this morning. In addition to the 15,000 strikers in the textile industry here, there are 11,000 men out in the local metallurgical industry, bringing the total up to 26,000.

Troops on horseback and in lorries are parading the streets in case of disturbances.

R 100 STARTS FOR CANADA TO-DAY.

ROUTE VIA NORTH OF IRELAND.

SEVENTY HOURS' JOURNEY.

FORTY-FOUR PERSONS ON BOARD.

The airship R 100 was due to leave her base at Cardington at 3.30 a.m. to-day for Montreal. The Air Ministry last night stated that the airship will probably follow a northerly route across the Atlantic, via the North of Ireland.

Elaborate arrangements have been made to supply weather reports to the airship when she is on her great experimental flight.

R 100 is bound for St. Hubert Air Station, Montreal, Canada, a distance of 3,242 Statute miles in a direct course, with forty-four persons on board.

As the flight will be governed by many conditions, the giant airship will cover a much larger distance, and will be at least seventy hours in the air.

The Atlantic has been flown before. The R 34 did it in July, 1919, from east to west and back again. The German ZR 3 followed, and the Graf Zeppelin repeated the feat last year.

Practically all these flights were made with the sole purpose of testing the reliability and the behaviour of the airships.

R 100 has a greater task. She has already carried out flying trials amounting to more than 100 hours. What is wanted of her is the invaluable data necessary for the development of airships for commercial purposes. Her greatest task will be the forging of the links of communication between the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The airship has proved herself in her flying trials, but her Canadian trip cannot be recognised as anything but an experiment. Her construction and design were commenced at a time when airships were only half the size she is now. Many novel features have been incorporated in her.

R 100 is flying into the most difficult route in the air. She will fly through a prevailing wind and practically unchartered meteorological seas.

SAFEGUARDS.

Special attention has been paid to the provision of adequate meteorological information during the flight, and her course will be decided upon the information in these reports.

The Air Ministry will broadcast regular synoptic messages. The meteorological centre at Cardington, ships at sea, Greenland station, and the Canadian and United States Weather Bureaus will also assist.

Private transmitters are requested not to attempt to get into communication with her, as her receiving apparatus will be fully occupied.

Every possible factor conducive to safety has been considered.

She carries five days' supply of food—three days' ordinary rations, one day's reserve, and one day's emergency rations. Altogether the weight of food is 2,000 lb., and there are also 500 gallons of water for drinking and washing. The ordinary rations include such dainty dishes as bacon, sardines, preserved meat, tinned fruit and dried fruit. The supper menu is simply bread, cheese, cocoa, milk and sugar. Dinner and breakfast are a trifle more appetising. One or two of the dainty dishes are added. The reserve day's ration is mostly preserved meat, condensed milk, tinned fruit, chocolate, meat cubes and sardines, and the emergency ration contains chewing gum.

The five officers on board may carry 30lb. of personal luggage each, and the thirty-two men 15lb. each. Various officials who are also on board are similarly restricted.

DISTINGUISHED OFFICERS.

Squadron-Leader R. S. Booth is in command. Major E. H. Scott is on board in the capacity of Assistant Director of Flying, and Wing-Commander R. B. B. Colmore, the Director of Airship Development, represents the Air Ministry.

Squadron-Leader Booth, the captain of the ship, commenced his experience of airships in 1915, when he was transferred from the Royal Navy to be captain of non-rigid airships. In 1918 he was appointed first officer of the rigid R 24, and later commanding officer of Mullion Airship Station. He will be best remembered for his brilliant navigation of R 33 when she broke away in a gale from the mooring mast at Pulham, Norfolk, with a badly broken bow in 1925, and drifted over the North Sea.

He was appointed to the command of R 100 last year.

Wing-Commander Colmore evolved a scheme during the Great War for combating the submarine menace by a system of combined patrols of airship, seaplanes, airplanes, and surface craft, which proved highly successful.

Major Scott is one of the best known of the airshipmen. He was the captain of R 9, the first British rigid airship to fly in 1917. Two years later he took R 34 from Scotland to the United States and back. He invented the mooring tower, and planned the airship base at St. Hubert. He has carried out the extended trials of R 100 and R 101.

Squadron-Leader Booth was born in 1895 at Hughenden, Bucks; Wing-Commander Colmore, at Portsmouth, in 1887, and Major Scott, at Catford, Kent, in 1888.

VEGETABLE ORGANISMS TEST.

Experiments with a new method of weather map transmission will be carried out during the flight, and arrangements have also been made to ascertain if there are vegetable organisms in the upper air over the Atlantic. These tests will be carried out with "petri" dishes, a form of flat dish, coated with a preparation of gum, which hold the organisms and allows them to breed. This experiment will be made on behalf of the Cambridge School of Agriculture.

R 100 is 709 feet long, with a maximum diameter of 131 feet and a maximum height of 133 feet. She has a cubic capacity of five million cubic feet and a gross lift of more than 156 tons. During her trials she developed a speed of about 81 miles per hour.

She was built for the Air Ministry by the Airship Guarantee Company, Ltd., at Howden, Yorkshire, and launched on December 16, 1929. She has six of the latest Rolls-Royce "Condor" III. B. engines with a maximum available total horse-power of 3,900.

Two members of the crew of R 100 were on R 34 when she crossed the Atlantic, and three were on board the R 34 when she broke away from her moorings.

Fourteen of R 100's crew on the Canadian trip have had no previous flying experience.

The crew includes Mr. F. Hodnett, Youghal, Co. Cork, who is a steward.

The crew, with the exception of two officers and one N.C.O., is entirely civil personnel. In addition to Wing Commander Colmore and Major Scott, Mr. F. M. Wade—who was born at Glasgow—Inspector, will be one of the officials from the Royal Airship Works, RESPONSIBILITY IN EGYPT.

ATTITUDE OF GREAT BRITAIN.

STATEMENT IN HOUSE OF COMMONS.

In the House of Commons yesterday, Dr. Dalton, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, stated that the High Commissioner in Egypt reported on July 23rd that all was quiet, and no further disturbances had since taken place. The only serious damage to property reported since July 23rd was damage to a municipal station at Port Said. In view of the disturbances, H.M.S. Ramilies had proceeded to Port Said, and H.M.S. Waterhen to Suez. H.M.S. Queen Elizabeth remained at Alexandria.

Mr. Hore Belisha (Liberal) asked whether foreign nationals were having adequate protection, and whether any instructions had been given to the British Army.

Dr. Dalton—Yes, sir; we are satisfied that foreign nationals are receiving all the protection called for in the circumstances. I am glad to say that hitherto it has been unnecessary for the British troops to take any action.

PROTECTION OF FOREIGNERS.

Replying to other questions, Dr. Dalton stated that, in view of their ultimate responsibility for the protection of foreign lives and property in Egypt, His Majesty's Government held strictly to account the leaders of both parties in the constitutional conflict in Egypt. His Majesty's Government's communication, by dealing in a practical manner with the circumstances, was intended to make this unmistakably clear.

Mr. Wardlaw Milne (Conservative) asked if there was any precedent for this course of holding leaders of parties not in office responsible for what had happened.

Dr. Dalton—There may not be a precedent for the action; that does not prove that the action was not well advised. Nahas Pasha is the leader of a large majority of the Egyptian Parliament.

Mr. Wardlaw Milne asked what the Government meant by "ultimate responsibility."

Dr. Dalton—The immediate responsibility rests upon the Egyptian Government and Egyptian authorities. If they fail to do their duty, then the ultimate responsibility rests upon us.

POLICE RAID ON WAFD CLUB IN CAIRO.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
CAIRO, Monday.

The police yesterday evening searched the Saadist (Wafd) Club for copies of the Wafd proclamation of non-co-operation, which is signed by Nahas Pasha, the ex-Premier.

Publication of the proclamation in the Press has been prohibited by Sidky Pasha, the Prime Minister.

It is learned that a few copies were found and destroyed.

"ITALY'S BACKBONE FRACTURED."

AN EXPLANATION OF THE EARTHQUAKE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
ROME, Monday.

In an interview published in the Giornale d'Italia Professor Alfano, Director of the Pompeii Observatory, attributed the recent earthquake, which had its epicentre near Avellino, to internal combustion within the earth, which, he says, has gone on for thousands of years ever since prehistoric days.

That process, he adds, gradually raised what are now known as the Apennine Mountains from the bottom of the sea to thousands of feet above sea level. After earthquakes of more recent times long fissures have been discovered along the tops of the mountains at the epicentre of the disturbance. The one resulting from the Avezzano earthquake in 1915 was found to be twenty-eight miles long. "In other words," says the Professor, "the disasters are attributable to the fracture of the backbone of our Apennine system."

"MELFI RESURRECTED."

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
POTENZA, Monday.

It has been definitely decided to reconstruct the town of Melfi, which was one of the worst sufferers in the earthquake, on a ridge of hills near the site of the old town, where no earthquake has ever been felt. Small shockproof houses will be built, and the new town, which will go by the name of Melfi Risorto (Melfi resurrected), will be completed in about three months' time.

The following telegram has been received by the Prime Minister (Mr. Ramsay Macdonald) from Signor Mussolini:—"I greatly appreciate the sympathy which Your Excellency has so kindly shown with the Italian nation in the grief which has overtaken them. I beg to express my deepest gratitude."

EARTH TREMORS IN BULGARIA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
SOFIA, Monday.

Slight earthquake shocks have been felt during the past few days in what may be described as the earthquake zone in Southern Bulgaria. They are, however, not more serious than shocks which have been felt from time to time during the past year in the same district.

No damage or loss of life is reported.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

FREE STATE AND SEAT ON THE COUNCIL.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

Dominion opinion is understood to be more or less in favour of the Irish Free State Government's claim to a seat on the Council of the League of Nations. There are, however, others who are seeking the support of the big nations.

Mr. McGilligan, Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, Count O'Kelly, Free State Minister at Paris; Professor Binchy, Free State Minister at Berlin, and a number of permanent officials will represent the Irish Free State at Geneva.

THE IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.

President Cosgrave, it is understood, may attend the Imperial Conference. It is probable that as many as five Free State Ministers will be present during some part of the proceedings. The appointed delegates of the Irish Free State are the Minister for Finance, Mr. Blythe, and the Minister for Education, Professor O'Sullivan, and they will be accompanied by a number of permanent officials.

The Minister for Agriculture, it is understood, will also attend the Conference in view of economic questions that may arise.

LATE NEWS.

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH "THE TIMES."

A NEW EFFORT.

COST OF UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE.

In a leading article The Times to-day says—An inter-Party Committee began an examination yesterday into the cost of unemployment insurance. This is the first occasion on which all parties have collaborated upon any aspect whatever of the problem of unemployment, and it affords welcome evidence of a readiness to sink the political in the national importance of the problem. Nevertheless, the scope of the committee's work should not be exaggerated. It owes its existence to Miss Bondfield's confession during the debate last Wednesday that she was deeply concerned with the danger which threatened the principle of insurance, and was at the same time at a loss to know how best to avert the danger. The committee, therefore, is not going to suggest plans for the improvement of employment; it is not even going to make a further attempt to define what is "genuinely seeking work." The objections, chiefly that political opinions on these large questions were too sharply at variance, which proved fatal to the calling of an inter-party conference some weeks ago, are still valid.

The present Committee does not replace the conference which Mr. Baldwin refused to enter. It seeks only to divide the total number of unemployed into categories to decide which are properly insured and which are not; to study the incidence of the cost of maintaining them, and to see whether some less burdensome system can be devised. The task of the Committee, like the task of the Blanesburgh Committee, will be to see whether the principles of insurance can be saved by agreed measures. It may be hoped that the analogy with the Blanesburgh Committee will end there. The recommendations made by the representatives of all parties of that Committee were either disregarded or carried out in a manner which nullified the whole spirit of their report. The result had been that the principle of insurance, instead of being rendered inviolable, has become further debauched by its ever closer association with poor relief. In this case history must not repeat itself.

THE TASK.

The Committee should decide to suggest a strict insurance scheme, adds The Times, within the present scope of insurance. Then they will have to frame a new plan for the maintenance of those who fail to qualify for benefit. They will start with the desire to separate insurance from relief. The reason why this has not been done long ago is partly, no doubt, because, although people may have exhausted their right to benefit, they are still classed as belonging to insurance trades, but also because no unemployed person should be separated from the work-finding machinery of the Ministry of Labour.

Neither of these arguments is to-day an insuperable bar to the creation of a new and separate machinery to deal with the temporarily uninsured. The Local Government Act specifically charges Public Assistance Committees with the relief of the able-bodied poor. The recent Relief Regulation Order urges local authorities to provide test work, physical training and institutional courses wherever possible. Clearly, therefore, the Public Assistance Committees can combine the provision of relief with relief work. If, in addition, representatives of the Labour Exchanges were associated with them, the unemployed would be kept in touch with chances of normal work, and the central authority, which, in view of the serious embarrassments of local authorities in distressed areas, will have to find most of the money, will have what could be made a controlling voice in administration. No changes of this kind can materially lessen the burden of the unemployed upon the nation, but, in anticipation of a more effective unemployment policy, every sound canon of administration dictates that some such change should be made.

THE CANADIAN ELECTIONS.

The News-Chronicle to-day states:—It is extraordinarily difficult for an outsider to get any clear idea of the line which really divides the two parties between which Canadians are now deciding at the polls. The introduction by the Liberals of a tariff widely extending Imperial preference has blurred the line between the two parties extraordinarily. It may be true—it probably is—that the Dunning tariff was intended mainly as a reply to the new high tariff of the United States; but it makes it impossible none the less even to pretend now that one party is "Imperialist" and the other not.

A HISTORIC BOOK.

The Daily Telegraph to-day, commenting on the announcement that the Bedford Book of Hours had been saved for the nation, says:—The departure of art treasures from this country across the Atlantic has to be accepted with resignation. Its prohibition by law would be against the spirit of our institutions. Nor is it to be forgotten that much of what we have lost is the work of foreign masters acquired by British owners at far less cost than American collectors are willing now to pay. But these gems of old English art are in another category, and their retention as national property is a triumph for which all who played a part in it are entitled to honour.

THREE-PARTY CONFERENCE.

The Morning Post to-day remarks:—Mr. Macdonald has invited, and the other two parties have accepted, a three-party conference to inquire into the insolvency of the Unemployment Insurance Fund. The situation of the fund is, indeed, desperate. No ingenuity of sophistry can absolve the Socialist Government from direct responsibility for the hopeless bankruptcy of the fund. Our unemployment insurance legislation now utterly obscures the line which divides insurance from poor relief. The entire system is in urgent need of overhaul, root and branch

THE FOURTH TEST MATCH.

HALF AN HOUR'S PLAY.

AUSTRALIA	345
ENGLAND (for 8)	251

The third day of the fourth Test match at Old Trafford, Manchester, yesterday, will be memorable for a remarkable demonstration of British phlegm. For eight hours 14,000 people sat in sunshine and rain waiting, good-humouredly and patiently, for the battle between England and Australia to be renewed. Even when at long last the players took the field rain was falling gently. How the crowd cheered when Woodfull appeared with his men, and what a reception was given to Tate and Leyland! They might have been England's opening pair.

The cheers had hardly died away when they were replaced with a groan. Leyland was out—clean bowled. It was a bitter blow to the Lancashire partisans after their eight hours' vigil.

After only half an hour or so play came to an end.

U.S. FIRM ACQUIRES BIG BRITISH SOAP COMPANY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT
CINCINNATI, Monday.

Messrs. Proctor, Gamble and Co. confirm the report that Messrs. Thomas Hedley and Co., of London, soap manufacturers, have been brought under Proctor Gamble control. Officials say that the London concern will continue the manufacture of the kind of soap that it has always made, in addition to making Proctor Gamble products for European distribution.

READY FOR THE HORSE SHOW.

THIRTEEN HUNTS TO COMPETE.

THE DRAW.

COMPOSITION OF ARMY TEAMS.

Except for some small details, arrangements for the great Horse Show of the Royal Dublin Society next week are now complete.

As Mr. Edward Bohane, Director of the Society, remarked in his broadcast from 2RN last night, "when the entrances to the Showyard at Ballsbridge are opened on Tuesday, August 5th, it will be found that for quantity and quality the 'record' number of 1,088 horses, gathered together from all the noted studs in Ireland, will enable the 1930 Horse Show to rank as an epoch-making event.

"In addition to the 1,088 horses in the Show premises, the Society's Blood Stock Paddocks will house during the four days of the Show no less than 700 yearlings, all to be offered for sale by auction, and who can say but that Shaun Goilins, Tipperary Tims, etc., may again be picked up at Ballsbridge bargain prices."

A GREAT SALE MART.

The popularity of the Dublin Horse Show is largely due to the fact that eighty per cent. of the horses entered are shown there for the first and last time, as the event is a great sale mart. This enables the Society to annually present the most original and greatest Horse Show in the world.

Although the motor has been displacing the horse for transport and haulage purposes during the past twenty years, the following official figures, in periods of ten years, for the past fifty years, prove that this country is maintaining her horse population in a remarkable degree:—

TWO YEARS AND UPWARDS.
1881	422,145
1891	458,438
1901	435,345
1911	486,081
1926	424,304
1927	428,614
1928	433,621
1929	436,088

In Ireland there has been a marked revival in horse-breeding, and especially those suited for cross-country work. With so many of her best half-bred mares taken away during the world war, Ireland had to begin all over again from correct foundation stock, and to-day the country is in a position to breed the best.

Small farmers are now finding it profitable to keep a mare whose foal may bring him a fortune. Hence, there is a strong upward tendency in the number of single entries. The number of exhibitors of horses at this year's Show is 508, an increase of nearly 100 on former years, and all of these represent the small horse-breeder. Of the exhibits, 601 will be Irish-bred made hunters, four years old and upwards—the greatest cross-country horses in the world.

EARLY ARRIVALS.

All the horses from the North will reach the showyard on Saturday evening next, and also horses from long-distance stations. A couple of trains will carry horses to Ballsbridge siding on Sunday, while the final lot of horses will reach their destination on Monday. Every year one observes a growing desire on the part of exhibitors to have their stock in the showyard two or three days before the Show opens, so as to have their animals rested.

Formerly, it was customary for at least two-thirds of the horses to leave the showyard each evening for stabling outside. During the past few years, owing to the excellent accommodation provided by the Royal Dublin Society, hardly 50 horses leave the premises each night.

To relieve the pressure in the veterinary department on Tuesday, when most of the judging takes place, it has been arranged, on the suggestion of Mr. Justice Wylie, to commence "vetting" the exhibits on Monday afternoon.

TO EXPEDITE JUDGING.

It is hoped by this means to expedite the judging, because it will obviate the long wait between thinning out classes for veterinary purposes, and returning the eligibles for re-examination. In order to carry out this arrangement, veterinary surgeons and stewards have been asked to report for duty on Monday morning. Thus, it will be necessary only for late comers to be "vetted" on Tuesday.

The veterinary paddock is now ready, including a ploughed gallop and a new concrete road for the necessary "hards" for complete veterinary examination.

In the Bloodstock Sales Paddock, a sale ring surface similar to that of last year will be provided, while a like precaution is being taken in the final collecting ring. What the Royal Dublin Society did in this direction last year was copied at the Newmarket Sales a few months later.

THE MILITARY TEAMS.

For the International Military Jumping competitions the teams representing the different countries will be as follows:—

BELGIUM—Captain Ecuyer de Brabandère, Captain Misonne, Lieutenant Ganshof van der Meersch.

FRANCE—Colonel E. Haentjens, Lieutenant Clavé, Lieutenant du Breuil, Lieutenant Bizard.

GREAT BRITAIN—Major J. Hume Dudgeon, Captain the Hon. A. M. A. Baillie, Lieutenant G. C. Gray, Lieutenant J. A. Talbot Ponsonby.

ITALY—Colonel Tappi, Major Count A. Bettoni, Captain Lequio, Captain Lombardo.

Mention has already been made of the increasing demand on the Society's premises. A further example is afforded by the fact that fifty applications for boxes had, with regret, to be refused.

IRISH INDUSTRIES.

At noon on the opening day the Governor-General of the Free State will declare open the exhibition of Irish manufactures in the new Pembroke Hall. This building is 425 feet long by 25 feet wide, consisting on the ground floor of a fine line of horse boxes, with a 12-foot covered promenade, and on the first floor an exhibition hall, in which the display of Irish manufactures will be made to its full capacity. All the ornamental stand frontages have been installed by the Royal Dublin Society to ensure the symmetrical display of exhibits, and so demonstrate to visitors the strides made in a few years in the establishment of industries. This is not the first time the Society has arranged an industrial exhibition. It introduced such events as far back as 1733, when an industrial display was held in the vaults of the old Parliament House, Dublin.

FUTURE DEVELOPMENT.

In order to meet the insistent demand for further accommodation at Ballsbridge, the Horse Show Committee at last week's meeting agreed on the necessity of continuing the double-decker principle of buildings for future shows immediately following the coming Horse Show, and this notwithstanding the new Pembroke Hall, built since last Horse Show and used for the first time at the Spring Show in May.

In consequence of the recent rain, the judging rings, foliage and flowers at Ballsbridge are looking their best. Of late years the Society has been faced with a dry period up to the date of the Show, with a breakdown during the week of the Show itself. This season rain has come earlier than usual, and all that is wanted is a brief spell of drying weather to place the grounds at their best.

Referring to the recent threatened trouble on the Great Southern Railways, Mr. Bohane, in his broadcast statement last night, said it was exceedingly gratifying to feel that through the intervention of Mr. McGilligan, Free State Minister for Industry and Commerce, both the railway company and their employés were brought together in a conference, which resulted in the withdrawal of the strike notices, and might eventually provide a happier era in the Irish railway world.

DEMAND FOR THE HORSE.

The horse, he said, was far from being a spent force, and as an economic proposition in short haulages could still hold its own, and continue to be in demand for such. Our best would likewise occupy pride of place in the world's hunting, racing and Army stables. The Horse Show, of which Dublin was proud, brought to a conclusion each year's work of the Royal Dublin Society. The Society's membership had quadrupled in eight years, and was now closed, with a long list of waiting candidates. Ballsbridge headquarters had been transformed, and by the outlay of over £200,000 in the past five years had become the finest show premises in the world.

OBITUARY.

SIR FRANCIS TRIPPEL.

The death occurred yesterday at Great Witchingham, Norfolk, of Sir Henry Francis Trippel, whose name has been associated prominently for many years with the promotion of philanthropic movements. Sir Francis, who was in his sixty-fifth year, had been in failing health for some time. During the South African War he helped to raise a field force fund, and some years later was active in promoting the Union Jack Club, established in Waterloo road, London, S.E., by public subscription as a national memorial to those who had fallen in the South African War and other campaigns. The club, which is open day and night for the benefit of sailors, soldiers and airmen when on leave or passing through London, was opened by King Edward in 1907. Since that date the club has been considerably extended, bringing the number of beds available to 816, as compared with the total of 208 when the club opened.

Sir Francis Trippel, who received his knighthood in 1909, organised the fund campaign in 1907, and also originated and edited The Flag. In 1905 he interviewed headmasters of public schools in support of Lord Roberts's universal rifle practice movement, and in the year following secured the continuance of the United Services College, taking charge of the management. He had also been proprietor of Richmond (Surrey) Military College. Among many other interests Sir Francis was honorary secretary of King Edward VII. British-German Foundation (United Kingdom Branch). He married in 1890, Lillian, daughter of Major William Amphlett-Moss, the issue of the marriage being one daughter, who married, in 1917, Major Herbert Ernest Cumming, M.C., Canadian Army Medical Corps.

MR. R. N. MONTGOMERY.

The death of Mr. Richard Nathaniel Montgomery, B.A.I., A.M.I.C.E., has occurred at 10 St. Mary's road, Ballsbridge. The late Mr. Montgomery, who was for many years Surveyor to the Pembroke Urban Council, had been ill for some time. He was one of the most popular officials in the Council and enjoyed the fullest confidence of all the members of that body. At the time of his death Mr. Montgomery, who had been responsible for many schemes for the improvement of Ballsbridge and district, was engaged on a scheme for the widening of Donnybrook road and bringing it virtually into line with the Stillorgan road. He had also drawn up plans for the widening of the Ringsend Bridge, and was always anxious to prepare economic schemes to provide work for the unemployed men of the district.

BURNING VESSEL ABANDONED.

ANOTHER STEAMER PICKING UP CREW.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Monday.

The correspondent of the Associated Press at Rio de Janeiro reports that the Swedish steamer Kronprins Gustaf Adolf, 3,702 tons, was abandoned yesterday off Victoria, Brazil, with her cargo of coal burning furiously. A vessel, whose name is given as the s.s. Vandyck, is reported to be picking up the officers and crew of the Kronprins Gustaf Adolf.

REVOLVERS AND KNIVES IN AUSTRIAN RIOTS.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

VIENNA, Monday.

Seven persons have been taken to hospital with injuries sustained in a furious fight between Heimwehr and Socialists, at Puntigam, a few miles from Graz, in Styria, last night.

The combatants fought with revolvers and knives. The riot was this time started by the Socialists, who attacked the lorries in which Heimwehr detachments were returning from festivities at Redkersberg, on the occasion of the anniversary of the delivery of the town from Yugo-Slav occupation.

Police from Graz at length restored order.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT

FINANCE BILL IN THE LORDS.

LAND DRAINAGE BILL.

From Our Parliamentary Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Monday.

The House of Lords was asked this evening to consider numerous bills which had been sent up from the Commons, and there was a protest from the Marquess of Salisbury and Lord Banbury against having to rush through public business. Lord Salisbury declared that it was little less than a scandal, and he appealed to Lord Parmoor to use his influence to persuade the Government to try to find a remedy. He suggested that power should be given to carry over bills from one session to another, instead of sacrificing them for the purposes of prorogation.

Lord Parmoor agreed that there was a good deal to be said for the suggestion, but it was hardly a matter that could be discussed at the present stage.

Lord Jessel, a Conservative peer, considered that, on the whole, the Government had treated the Opposition very well this session in regard to the arrangement of business, and he hoped that the Conservatives would do as well when they returned to office.

The Finance Bill was given a first reading, and among the other business considered was the Public Works Loans Bill, which contains a provision for the continuance of the Commissioners for a further period of five years.

The bill was read a third time and passed.

In the House of Commons, the Land Drainage Bill, which has already passed through the Lords, was considered on report. There were twenty pages of amendments on the Order Paper, but nearly all were directed to points of detail, and were of little general interest.

THE CANADIAN ELECTIONS.

BIG INCREASE IN NUMBER POLLED.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

OTTAWA, Monday.

After a strenuous election campaign, lasting two months, the electors of Canada voted to-day under generally favourable weather conditions, and with the prospect that the total vote will be approximately 4,000,000, or nearly three-quarters of a million increase on the last polling in 1926.

Two members have been elected unopposed. There are ten women candidates—two from Quebec, five from Ontario, one from Manitoba, and two from Saskatchewan.

The position of the parties at the dissolution was:—

Liberals	123
Conservatives	90
United Farmers of Alberta	11
Liberal Progressives	9
Progressive Party	7
Labour	3
Independents	2

The total necessary for a straight majority for either major party to control the new House of Commons is 123.

THE FIRST RETURNS.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

6.15 p.m.

The first returns in the Dominion general election are now to hand.

Mr. Ralston, the Minister of Defence, has been re-elected.

In S. ohn, New Brunswick, two Conservatives have been re-elected. No change.

The first Conservative gain was registered from Victoria-Carleton, a New Brunswick constituency.

The Liberals gained one seat from the Conservatives in Colchester, Nova Scotia.

Two Conservatives were elected to the dual constituency at Halifax (no change).

Other returns, which are beginning to come in from the maritime provinces, indicate that there is no particular sweep for either party.

The election of Mr. R. B. Hanson (Conservative) for a New Brunswick constituency means that there has been no change.

ROUND-EUROPE AIR RACE.

TWO GERMANS RESCUED FROM THE SEA.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

MARSEILLES, Monday.

The two German airmen, Kurt Strack and R. Neininger, who fell into the sea off La Nouvelle while taking part in the light aeroplane tour of Europe, were brought into port to-day in the steamer Guercif. The airmen were on the lap from Barcelona to Nimes, when they had engine trouble, and fell about a hundred yards from the ship.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

BERLIN, Monday.

The Frenchman Arrachart and the German Dinort have arrived at Tempelhof Aerodrome on the completion of the round-Europe flight. They were followed by the Irish airwoman, Lady Bailey, and the English competitor, Miss Winifred Spooner, both in Moth 'planes.

PARENT TRUST ACTION

RECORD TO BE WITHDRAWN.

In the King's Bench Division, London, yesterday, Mr. Justice Roche had before him the action Windsor and Mabey v. the Parent Trust and Finance Co., Ltd. Mr. Robertson, who appeared for the plaintiffs, said that terms of settlement of the action had been agreed between the paries, and he asked that the sum of £162, which had been paid into court, should be paid out to the plaintiffs.

The terms of settlement provided for taxation of the costs and payment of the plaintiffs' costs of the action, and he (counsel) asked for an order in respect of that.

Later in the day Mr. Robertson appeared before his lordship to ask for a variation of the order. Counsel said that it was part of the terms of settlement that the record should be withdrawn, and neither he nor counsel on the other side, who was appearing for Mr. Valentine Holmes, attached importance to the form of the order. Mr. Valentine Holmes had since informed him (Mr. Robertson) that he attached some importance to the withdrawal of the record. Similar orders had been made in similar actions relating to the same matter. An order for taxation of costs, added counsel, was not now required, as costs had been agreed; the only order required was that the money paid into court should be paid out.

His Lordship—You can have that order, and the record will be withdrawn on the other terms agreed.

CATTLE RATES.

said that they would have greater hope of success if they simply took the railway that affected that county more than any other.

The Duke de Stacpoole seconded Mr. Brogan's amended resolution, which was passed unanimously.

The following were appointed as a deputation:—Major Gerrard, Mr. J. Leonard, the Duke de Stacpoole, Mr. J. Roundtree, Mr. Brogan, Admiral Craig Waller, and the Chairman, with Messrs. Matthews and M. O'Reilly, T.D.'s.

Mr. Mackin proposed:—

"That we call upon our parliamentary representatives to impress on their respective parties the necessity of bringing pressure to bear on the railway and shipping companies to withdraw the recently increased railway and shipping rates."

The resolution was passed.

A NATIONAL STANDPOINT.

Mr. M. O'Reilly, T.D., said that transport was a national problem and affected everybody, and he did not think that any solution would be found unless they looked upon it from a national standpoint. He believed that the only solution would be found amongst the people. They should not take it at all that the railways and shipping companies were in such a powerful position. They were simply carrying companies, living by the people. He advised them that, whatever action was to be taken, let them be determined to take that action.

If big companies combined day after day to extort further sums from the people, and to inflict hardships on them, then it was the people who were to blame. He believed that they ought to set up a good standing committee to inquire into this whole question of rates and charges, and to watch the movements of the railway and shipping companies, and be in a position to take action immediately when necessary, and it would have a good result. As long as railway and shipping companies gave efficient service at reasonable rates they were a profit and a benefit, but the moment they ceased to do that they should be scrapped. The people should not let themselves down. Farmers themselves were not free from blame—their system of marketing produce was not anything like what it ought to be. There should be some form of combination amongst farmers, so that railway companies could estimate more accurately the amount of traffic they would carry. If a railway company sent seventy waggons to a fair and had only forty waggons of stock, the cost of bringing the other thirty waggons would be borne by the forty waggons.

HIGH OVERHEAD CHARGES.

A certain organisation ought to exist between railway companies, producers and cattle dealers. Their railway system was about three times too colossal, and the overhead charges were naturally very high. Cheap and efficient transport was in the power of the people to get, and it was the only means by which the country could develop economically. (Applause.)

Mr. A. Matthews, T.D., apologised for the absence of the Ministers who were invited, but who could not attend. He said that he did not know exactly what the new rates would cost the County of Meath, but he thought that it would be reasonable to assume that it would be between £40,000 and £50,000 a year.

Taking the general question of transport, he really believed that their difficulties arose eight or nine years ago. They spent a large amount of money on roads, and gave facilities for motor traffic in a country where the volume of traffic was not sufficient to support or keep up two means of transport with a chance of running them economically. Therefore, he thought that if, at that time, what he might call a luxury way of transport had not been cultivated or encouraged, that they would have a volume of traffic for railways and cheaper rates. The position was now that the railways were virtually dependent upon the cattle trade, because motor traffic was not suitable yet for carrying cattle, but he really believed that the position of the railways and the economic condition of the railways had arisen from what began seven or eight years ago.

As regards the steps taken that day, he believed that they were the only effective way to get their freights back at least to what they were before the 1st of July.

He quite agreed with the resolution proposed by Mr. Brogan. The Railway Tribunal was a statutory body set up by the Ministry of Industry and Commerce. It had power to negotiate with railway companies and to fix rates. He would write to the Minister for Industry and Commerce, and try and have an interview with him and put before him the views expressed at that meeting. (Applause.)

Those present, in addition to the speakers, included:—Captain R. H. Fowler, J. Brady, Alex. Thom, R. Williamson, W. P. Smith, J. Cregan, P. Farrell, M. F. Delaney, H. Loughran, D. Smith, T. Daly, M. Daly, J. Mullen, P. J. Kavanagh, J. J. McCarthy, W. Carpenter, J. Davis, M. Matthews, W. Bloomsbury, L. Steen, D. Stapleton, J. O'Rourke, James Casey, P. Mullen, T. O'Toole, P. Lenehan, P. Delaney, Phil Smyth, Peter Austin, Major Meagher, W. D'Arcy, Pat. Boyle, M. Brady, J. Bates, Pat. Leary, J. Meade, P. Clarkin, etc., etc.

HIGH SHIPPING RATES.

Senator John J. Counihan wrote that he had been asked by the Executive Committee of the Irish Cattle Traders' and Stock Owners' Association to attend the meeting, but was unable to do so. He pointed out that the shipping freights between any part of the world and Great Britain, except Ireland, were now only 16 per cent. over prewar rate for all classes of goods, while freights between Ireland and Great Britain were nearly 200 per cent. over pre-war charges.

Holding protest meetings and passing resolutions were waste of time, and he was convinced that the only effective way to deal with the matter was to start an opposition line of ships. This should, and could, be done, and he hoped that the meeting would devise ways and means of accomplishing that object.

Mr. William Field, President, Irish Cattle Traders' and Stock Owners' Association, wrote, regretting he could not attend. He stated that the present high rates on railways constituted a serious charge on the animal industry of Ireland, which was their chief financial asset, and an organised cooperative effort should be inaugurated to obtain redress.

AIRSHIP COMMANDER FINED.

VESSEL FLOWN AT TOO LOW AN ALTITUDE.

What was stated to be the first case of its kind in England, that of flying an airship at too low an altitude, was heard at Consett, County Durham, yesterday, when Captain J. Arthur Deckford Ball was fined two guineas, and was ordered to pay £4 18s. costs.

Mr. Brown Humes, prosecuting, said that Captain Ball was employed by the Airship Development Company at Cramlington as a pilot, and on May 31 was flying over Ebchester, the airship being used as an advertising medium. While flying over Domain farm, Ebchester, a mare attempted to bolt. It was frightened by the noise of the airship, and it was so injured that it had not been able to work since.

Evidence as to the height of the airship varied from eighty to one hundred and fifty feet.

Captain Ball, in evidence, said that in the whole of his voyage over North-West Durham the airship was never lower than a hundred and fifty feet, and he considered it was quite safe to stop over Consett and Ebchester at that altitude.

SHAMROCK V. "O.K."

A message says the Daily Telegraph, was received yesterday, stating that Sir Thomas Lipton's steam yacht Erin, which is accompanying his America Cup Challenger, Shamrock V. across the Atlantic, had called at the Azores in order to coal. The weather being favourable she went ahead for the purpose. Shamrock V. was then proceeding on her course without mishap, although heavy weather had been experienced, and everything was reported "O.K." The Erin will get into touch with the yacht later.

R 100'S VOYAGE.

Cardington. Lieut. Commander Sir C. Dennistoun Burney, Managing Director; Mr. N. S. Norway, of the constructing firm, and Lieut. Commander R. St. J. Prentice, R.N., from H.M. aircraft carrier Courageous, representing the Admiralty, will also travel.

A relief watch of eleven men was sent to Canada some time ago.

LAYING IN THE STORES.

As soon as the announcement to start was made the men in charge of the stores at once began to lay in provisions on the airship. Careful watch was being kept to see that there were no stowaways on board, and an officer was specially assigned to keep a check on every person who is to make the voyage.

The possibility of an unauthorised passenger was not regarded seriously, although if such a person were to make his appearance during the voyage it would be a serious matter, inasmuch as it would affect the carefully compiled data regarding wind, passengers and food supplies.

Few of the people at Cardington went to bed last night, as, although R 100 was not due to start until dawn, an immense amount of detail work had to be carried out before she could leave.

Many people arrived by motor car from outlying districts, and parked in the fields around the aerodrome. They had brought sandwiches and flasks containing hot drinks. Many of the occupants of the cars had gramaphones, and they whiled away the long hours by dancing.

The members of the crew were in fine spirits, and many of them were in the town of Bedford until a late hour. They were the heroes of the moment. The officers, too, were in town before going to say good-bye to their families.

MAJOR SCOTT CONFIDENT.

Major Scott, who was the first to fly the Atlantic in a dirigible, said to a reporter: "I am very happy and confident. The ship throughout has behaved admirably. She is as steady as being in a hotel lounge.

"The weather prospects are extremely good. We are likely to have a following wind. We shall take the most northerly route, and, without any ceremony, shall make the pace the moment we are free from the mast.

"We shall take the 'gap' over England in order to avoid the Peak district, and that will take us over Crewe, and possibly Liverpool, but we are not out for any display, and shall take the best route according to the weather conditions. We expect we shall arrive about midnight on Thursday or on Friday morning. We are looking forward to a very pleasurable trip."

There are quite a number of mascots on board. Squadron-Leader Johnson, the navigator of the ship, told a reporter that he will carry in his breast pocket a photograph of his wife which he has kept for eighteen years. "It has always brought me luck, and you can bet your bottom dollar we are going to be lucky this time," he said.

IN THE EARLY HOURS.

It was an erie scene during the early hours of the morning. A bright starlight night showed up the graceful lines of the airship, which looked like a dull monster with two bright red lights shining at the head-like eyes. All around, excepting for the dim lights in the shed and a small light in the control cabin, was darkness. Wives and sweethearts of the crew strolled over the aerodrome ground to say good-bye. But there was no sadness in the parting; for all were confident that the ship would reach her destination safely.

About one o'clock a car drove up and from it stepped Sir Dennistoun Burney, the designer of the ship. Lady Burney was with him. Sir Dennistoun was full of confidence, and told a reporter that he fully anticipated a voyage which would be much more comfortable than on an Atlantic liner. He declared that, if they could do the outward voyage, as he hoped, in sixty hours and the return in fifty, it would prove that they were "getting on top of things," and that the time was approaching when airships would be a commercial means of transport.

His idea of the future airship was one of a displacement double that of R 100, and one that could travel at 85 to . . miles per hour cruising speed. When such a ship was built they would be able to guarantee a regular paying service across the Atlantic.

Sir Dennistoun added that he was taking with him as a mascot a small ring which had been given to him by his wife, who had possessed it since she was quite a child.

The members of the crew stood at the place of the mooring mast and had their last smoke before going on board. The next smoke they will enjoy will be when they land on Friday morning.

DEPARTURE OF R 100.

LORD THOMSON'S MESSAGE.

Lord Thomson, Minister for Air, sent the crew a message, which was taken on board by Wing-Commander Colmore:—"R 100 is setting out on the first flight yet made by an airship to a mooring tower erected by one of the great overseas Dominions, and I confidently hope it will be the prelude to a new development in Imperial communications. I wish you all on board a quick and prosperous flight."

SUBMARINE IN COLLISION.

FLOATING BRIDGE AND LAUNCHES INVOLVED.

The submarine L 25, of the Fifth Flotilla, a floating bridge and three launches were in collision in Portsmouth Harbour yesterday. There were no personal injuries, but the submarine was damaged, and two of the launches were beached to ascertain the extent of their damage.

L 25 and other submarines, it was stated, were being taken out of Haslar Creek to clear the way for a submarine floating dock when L 25 fouled one of the fairway buoys. This disabled her machinery, and the tide carried the submarine against the floating bridge, which is laid up on the Gosport side, and to which three launches—Princessa, Sandringham and Viva—were moored.

The collision was severe, but fortunately the moorings held. Dockyard craft hurried to assist the submarine, which was towed up harbour with a heavy list. The propellers and rudders of the Sandringham and Princessa were damaged.

STOCKS IRREGULAR.

Reuter's Telegrams.

NEW YORK, Monday.

A firm tone ruled at the opening, but with week-end trade reports disclosing further recessions in business, operators for an advance encountered increasing resistance and occasionally flurries of selling. Nevertheless, the list worked irregularly higher as bullish operations shifted from Industrials to Utilities, this group not being so thoroughly exploited during the past week. Warner Brothers, which early broke 5 points on adverse rumour, temporarily unsettled the market, while U.S. Steel was under considerable pressure, evidently reflecting the growing doubt that one dollar extra would be declared on the dividend. The President of the American Tobacco Co. told the shareholders that the 1930 earnings would probably be the best for nineteen years. Steel mill operations in the Youngstown area are estimated to be at 58 per cent. capacity, against 60 per cent. last week. The tendency at the close was irregular. American and Foreign Power, Standard Gas, Columbia Gas, North American, American Waterworks, Brooklyn Union Gas, Allied Chemical, Western Union Telegraph, and Electrical Power and Light advanced 2 to 4 points, while Eastman Kodak declined 4½, and Auburn Auto, Case Threshing Machine, U.S. Steel and Worthington Pump lost 1 to 2 points. Government Bonds dull. Railroad Bonds steady. The day's sales totalled 2,423,000 shares.

Money on call closed steady at 2 per cent. bid and 2¼ per cent. asked; all business during the day was concluded at 2 per cent. Prime mercantile paper was quoted at 3 to 3¼ per cent. Sterling exchange firmer. Silver ½c. down at 34⅞.

WINNIPEG GRAINS.

WHEAT opened barely steady and ⅜c. to ⅛c. lower on a bearish weather forecast, together with a very small export demand. Cable advices state that Russia is offering more freely with estimates of 18,500,000 bushels available for early shipment, and this, coupled with favourable official German and Hungarian crop reports and selling by cash houses, caused further sharp recessions. NEW YORK COTTON.

COTTON opened steady and 7 to 10 points higher, and further advanced on advices of continued hot, dry weather in the drought area, and also on firm Liverpool cables. A reaction ensued on a forecast of cooler weather and possible showers in the north of the western belt, liquidation and southern selling. The absence of serious crop damage reports caused bear selling in later dealings, and the market closed barely steady, with old contracts 28 to 17 points and new deliveries 19 to 16 points lower. Spot quiet at 20 points less. At New Orleans futures opened 10 points higher, and closed 18 to 15 points down. Spot declined 16 points.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Monday.

WHEAT opened easy and 1½c. to ⅜c. lower, and was further depressed owing to a very poor export demand over the week-end, and on a report that black rust damage in the North-West was only light. A private estimate indicating that the winter wheat yield will be at least 600 million bushels, coupled with an increase in visible stocks, were further bearish features, and the market closed weak at 1¾c. to 1⅞c. loss.

MISS FLORENCE JACK, author of

"Cookery for every Household"

TO MAKE everyday meals varied, appetizing, satisfying . . . What a problem for women who must puzzle over ways and means!

Small wonder, then, that housewives everywhere have greeted Stok — the wonderful new gravy preparation — so enthusiastically.

"It's the flavour of meat that gives zest to meals," says Miss Florence Jack, the famous cookery expert, "and Stok is a valuable gravy preparation because it contains real meat extract. To the simplest cottage pie or stew — Stok adds a delicious meaty flavour and extra nourishment."

Ten famous cookery experts helped to formulate Stok — and now this wonderful new gravy maker exactly meets their requirements. "We enthusiastically recommend Stok," they say.

Try Stok yourself today. See how the addition of Stok to your soups, stews and gravies, makes everyday meals extra delicious — and twice as interesting.

Stok flavours, thickens, colours all at once. Your grocer has Stok — 2½d. and 7½d., or write for it to The Aintree Company Limited, North John Street, Liverpool.

YOUNG LOOKS & LOVELY HAIR

(Mrs. Mills writes :—)

DEBILITY WEAKNESS and EXHAUSTION disappear after a few doses of PHOSFERINE which restored youthful vigour, generated vitality to regrow hair, and established glowing health.

MISS MADELEINE CARROLL.
"Whenever my mirror disappoints me, I always turn to Phosferine."

"AFTER a very serious illness which very nearly cost me my life and left me with my nerves very exhausted, I am writing to say how greatly Phosferine has benefited me. For months after I had got over the illness, I seemed to get no stronger, and I used to nearly fall down with the attacks—also I lost most of my beautiful hair, for which I have taken a prize. It greatly upset me, as I was left nearly bald, so I thought I would try a course of Phosferine, and I felt much better after a few doses. Phosferine made a great difference to my hair, causing it to grow lovely and wavy again, with natural curls. I was a complete wreck until I took a course of Phosferine, and people say it does not seem possible I had such a serious illness just over a year ago. I have a little boy five years old and Phosferine has helped me to keep him the picture of health, as I am sure it restored my health, and gave my system the vitality to renew my hair. I am 31, but I look even younger than I did last year, as Phosferine has helped me so much, and I am more my natural, cheerful, lively self now, thanks to your wonderful tonic." Mrs. G. Mills, 3, Ratcliffe Road, Lexden, nr. Colchester.

DEFECT IN SHANNON SCHEME STAMP.

It was learned yesterday that the Shannon Electricity Works will be formally transferred to the Free State Government in the course of a month. This formality appears to have been delayed owing to circumstances over which the German contractors had no control.

It will be recollected that the Government decided to mark the occasion with the issue of a specially-designed postage stamp. Owing to the discovery of a defect in the Irish lettering on the stamp the plate has had to be remade, and this has caused delay.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

THE START AT GOODWOOD.

STEWARDS' CUP TO-DAY.

GRANDMASTER FANCIED.

GOODWOOD, Monday Night.

The race for the Stewards' Cup to-morrow looks like being a trifle open. There was a call-over of the card this evening in London, when Grandmaster was made joint favourite with Fleeting Memory. Mr. Joel's horse has, however, developed a habit of starting slowly, and, as the Stewards' Cup is generally run at a strong pace, he may not be good enough to win on this occasion. Present ideas of the race are that it will rest between To You and Grandmaster, and the preference is for GRANDMASTER.

The Richmond Stakes may be won by the MISS MATTY C., and the Ham Stakes by LUXOR.

BREEDING OF CROTALO.

WINNER AT THE CURRAGH.

At the Curragh on Thursday last the Goff Sale Stakes was won by Mr. I. J. Blake's Crotalo, the brown two-year-old son of Sir Rowland and Sweet Sounds, the latter being half-sister to Short Grass, who won the Liverpool Cup and many other races. Crotalo is the third produce of his dam, she having previously bred Lindberg, who carried Mr. W. Rankin's colours successfully in 1928, and Mozart, winner of several races in Canada in 1928 and this season. He was bred by Mr. J. Connolly, of Cashel, and was sold at last Ballsbridge Yearling Sales for 310 guineas. Sweet Sound's very good-looking yearling filly by Stratford is for sale at Ballsbridge during Horse Show week, and is Lot 449 in Messrs. Goff's catalogue.—(Advt.)

GOODWOOD TO-DAY: PROBABLE STARTERS AND BETTING.

FLEETING MEMORY FANCIED.

The ever-popular Sussex Fortnight, which opens at Goodwood to-day, gives promise of reasonably good weather. The principal handicap of the week, the Stewards' Cup, is down for decision this afternoon. Top weight will be carried by Oak Ridge, who is in tip-top form just now, but who could probably be better suited by five furlongs than six.

There will be no doubt on that score where Tag End is concerned, as his form in the Portland Handicap at Doncaster indicates that he can keep up the gallop after five furlongs have been covered, and his two failures this year have enabled the handicapper to give him a very generous handicap mark. In the Portland Handicap he defeated Reedsmouth by a head when conceding 24lb., more than weight for age, with Oak Ridge, in receipt of 11lb., sixth. Now he meets Oak Ridge on 12lb. and Reedsmouth on 6lb. better terms. If he is at his best he should be concerned with this finish, but in his previous races this season he has not run up to his best form.

Fleeting Memory is another whose claims, on his best running, are undeniable. He won the Stewards' Cup last year when receiving 7lb. from Oak Ridge, and as he now receives 13lb. his connections cannot complain of his weight. When he contested the Royal Stakes over the Epsom six furlongs last month he was left several lengths, and yet managed to finish fourth. He was then conceding 10lb. to To You, 14lb. to Fingle Bridge, and 7lb. to Rattlin the Reefer. Here he has 11lb. the better of the weights with To You, 3lb. with Fingle Bridge, and 1lb. with Rattlin the Reefer. This advantage suggests that, with better luck at the start, he will be a fighting factor at the finish of to-day's race.

To You, of course, is such a speedy colt from the gate that he will be a danger to the best, but Grandmaster, the recent Wokingham Stakes winner, will have to improve considerably to have an outstanding chance, as Fingle Bridge meets him on 15lb. better terms than at Ascot. In fact, Fingle Bridge is so well treated that I feel sure he will finish in the first three. In the Empire Handicap at Newbury he defeated both Songe and Fleeting Memory, and I select that form as providing the key to to-day's race. My selection, therefore, is—

FLEETING MEMORY ... 1
FINGLE BRIDGE ... 2
TO YOU ... 3

Le Phare, who represents the Whatcombe stable, Knight Error and The Masher are other genuine candidates, well trained and fancied by their connections.

The remainder of the racing will be up to its usual standard. Cyllarus may take the Charlton Handicap, and Lindos Ojos is expected to win the Ham Produce Stakes.

Charlton Welter Handicap—Cyllarus.
Ham Produce Stakes—Lindos Ojos.
Stewards' Cup—Fleeting Memory.
Richmond Stakes—Four Course.

THE RUSHBROOKE TOURNAMENT.

OPENING DAY'S PLAY.

Play in the Rushbrooke Tennis Club's annual tournament, which commenced yesterday, was, with the exception of a few showers, favoured with brilliant sunshine. Toogood, C. A. Jackson and H. F. Cronin. Of the ladies, the strongest players are the Misses Haughton, Miss A. Byrne, Miss N. Moore and Miss Mary French.

YACHTING.

ROYAL THAMES REGATTA.

WESTWARD OUTSAILS LULWORTH.

The Royal Thames Yacht Club concluded their first class regatta yesterday at Ryde in a moderate to fresh breeze from about S.S.W. The conditions were in favour of the schooner Westward, and she led the fleet of large yachts throughout, and won handsomely. Britannia was, owing to her mishap of last Saturday, prevented from competing. The breeze was a little too strong for full canvas, and nearly all the competitors carried reef.

Iris scored a popular win in the 12 metre race for her new owner, Mr. A. C. Wilson. The eight-metre Emily was, however, unfortunate in losing her mast.

The big yachts levelled in the breeze, and covered their course in excellent time. Lulworth and Westward allowed White Heather II. 1 min. 24 secs., Candida 5 mins. 15 secs., Astra 5 mins. 36 secs., and Cambria 5 mins. 57 secs., over 42 miles.

Westward outsailed the fleet, and led home, to win by 7 mins. 38 secs. from Lulworth. Astra, which finished fourth, took third prize on handicap. The corrected times were:—

	H.	M.	S.
Westward (winner)	1	51	11
Lulworth (2nd prize)	1	58	49
White Heather II.	2	5	50
Astra (3rd prize)	2	2	42
Candida	2	8	7

THE COOPER CUP RACE ON LOUGH ERNE.

The race for the Cooper Cup (presented by Mr. James Cooper, Crown Solicitor) was held on Lower Lough Erne, under the auspices of the Enniskillen Yacht Club. The race was over the No. 8 course starboard, and started from Rossclare in a fresh northerly breeze at 4.5 p.m. The finishing times were:—

Iris (Colonel Richardson)	5	48	15
Pastime (Major and Mrs. Irvine)	5	50	25
Storm (Mr. Geoffry Irvine)	5	53	18
Doreen (Dr. James Herbert)	5	53	51
Cygnet (Messrs. R. and C. H. Herbert)	5	56	33
Fay (sailed by Lord Loftus)	5	57	29

GAELIC GAMES.

"SCENE" AT WEXFORD PARK.

Between four and five thousand spectators were present at Wexford Park last Sunday, when the four principal senior teams in the county met in the opening ties of the Football League (County Championship). Enniscorthy Starlights (holders) defeated Wexford Harriers by 2 goals and 5 points to 1 goal and 3 points. Ballyhogue, last year's beaten finalists, opposed St. Fintans (1929 Junior champions). About seven minutes from the end spectators encroached on the ground, following displays of bad feeling among players and the referee, and the match was suspended. The scores were—Ballyhogue, 2 goals and 6 points; St. Fintans, 1 goal and 2 points.

ANGLING.

TYRONE RIVERS.

The Mourne is dropping again and more rain is badly needed to help angling. The river is teeming with salmon and grilse, the run having been the finest for twenty years or more. On 12th July, the Hon. Charles Mulholland, M.P., had three, 13lb., 12lb. and 7lb. 19th, the Hon. Charles Mulholland, one, 10lb.; 20th, the Hon. Charles Mulholland, one, 11lb.; Lady Brooke, three, averaging 11lb.; Dr. Bryce Smith, nine, heaviest 16lb.; Mr. Carson, five grilse. Several grilse were killed on the Beltrim Castle waters of the Glenelly and one or two on the Strule, and several on the Finn. Plenty of sea trout are up from the Foyle and well distributed over the river and its confluents. The Ballinderry and the Blackwater are in fair trim, and a good many patches of trout are reported on the Clogher Valley reaches of the latter.

GOLF.

NEW COURSE FOR OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP.

The Championship Committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, St. Andrews, announced yesterday the venues for next year's championships.

The amateur championship will be played on the course of the Royal North Devon Club at Westward Ho, and the probable date is May 25th and following days.

The open championship will be played at Carnoustie, Forfarshire, probably on June 15th and following dates. The qualifying rounds of this championship will be played at Carnoustie and the Panmure course, Barry. The definite dates will be announced at a later date.

Westward Ho last "housed" the amateur championship in 1925, but the decision to hold the open event at Carnoustie makes a departure from the rota of championship courses. Minor championships have been decided at Carnoustie, but this will be the first occasion on which either of the classic events has been staged there.

In the ordinary course of events the open would have been played at Prestwick, but it may be recalled that when the open championship was last held at Prestwick in 1925 the crowd was so great that it became almost unmanageable.

THE TEST MATCH.

A COSTLY TIME FOR ENGLAND.

45 MINUTES' PLAY: THREE WICKETS LOST FOR 30 RUNS.

M'CABE THE BOWLER OF THE DAY.

The situation in the Test match is that England, with two wickets to fall, are 94 runs behind.

S. McCabe.

To the great disappointment of a company of fully 20,000 people who gathered at Old Trafford yesterday, no play was possible in the Test match until after half-past five. Despite a few showers during Sunday night the wicket was in quite a good condition early this morning, and on the gates being opened at half-past eight a large number of enthusiasts passed into the ground. Unhappily, rain set in shortly after 9 o'clock, and fell so heavily for nearly an hour that all idea of proceeding with the game at 11 o'clock had promptly to be abandoned. Such a lot of water lay on and near the pitch, which had been covered only at each end, that squeegees were brought into use, the water being pushed towards one spot, where it was lifted in shovels and poured into a footbath. The difficulty the water had of getting away, and the fact that squeegees could be utilised with advantage, demonstrated in no uncertain fashion how hard the ground must be under the surface. Following upon an hour of fine and occasionally bright weather, Chapman and Woodfull went out to see what matters were like, but at once announced that no play would be possible before lunch.

At mid-day there was another storm, which lasted for three-quarters of an hour, and, following a second inspection by the captains, they stated that they would have another look at 4 o'clock.

At that hour they made their promised visit to the pitch. They spent a few minutes at the wicket, but, as might have been expected, differed as to the possibilities of play, and so Chester and Hardstaff were called in to decide the question. Speedily the umpires came to the conclusion that at the moment the conditions did not admit of cricket, and announced that they would make a further inspection at 5 o'clock. Not only did the weather remain fine during the next hour, but a fairly fresh breeze sprang up. In these circumstances the umpires, when in due course they went out, found the conditions so considerably improved that they ordered preparations to be made for play. A wide brush was passed over the turf, the pitch mown and rolled, and at 5.20 came the welcome sound of the pavilion bell. A few spots of rain caused some apprehension that after all nothing would be possible, but these soon ceased, and just at half-past five Woodfull led his men to the field.

AN EARLY DISASTER.

Disaster immediately befel the home side, for, with only a single added to Saturday night's total of 221 for 5 wickets, Leyland was bowled by the fifth ball sent down. The Yorkshireman, who had batted so soundly for two hours, played inside a ball from McCabe that took the off bail. In this way England found themselves with distinctly the worst of the game, being 123 behind and having only four wickets to fall, when Nichols joined Tate. The light had turned rather poor, but for a few minutes the two batsmen shaped quite well against both Wall and McCabe. Fifteen runs were added, and then Tate, hitting out at McCabe, fell to a good catch by Ponsford at mid-on, the seventh wicket thus going down at 237. Peebles had just arrived when Nichols appealed against the light, but the umpires did not allow it. Accordingly the match proceeded, and, with the Englishmen exactly 100 in arrears, a third wicket would have fallen if Richardson had taken a catch which Peebles offered very low down in the slips. By this time the light had turned even worse than when the appeal had been made against it, but no protest was made, and two runs later a smart catch at second slip disposed of Peebles. Duckworth, enthusiastically cheered as he made his appearance, only just arrived when there came a very proper appeal against the light. This the umpires allowed, and thus the brief spell of play came to an end.

In three-quarters of an hour three wickets had fallen and 30 runs had been scored, England consequently being 94 runs behind and having only two wickets to fall. For the success which attended their efforts and gave them so much the best of matters Australia had to thank McCabe, who in seven overs dismissed three batsmen at a cost of 14 runs.

Rain fell heavily within a few minutes of the players leaving the field.

MOTOR CYCLING.

SIX DAYS' TRIAL IN THE ALPS.

SEVERE TEST OF SKILL AND COURAGE.

BRITISH WOMEN'S TEAM ENTERED.

The timely intervention of local motor cyclists saved the international six days' motor cycle reliability trial, which begins at Grenoble to-day, from what might have become a complete fiasco. When the British riders, comprising half the eighty-eight entries, arrived ready for the 1,200 miles test over some of the most difficult passes in the Alps, many declared that their equipment did not fulfil the requirements of the French motor laws, and it appeared likely that the British entries would be depleted.

Local garages did what they could to supply the deficiency—electric head lamps, which would throw a beam at 120 yards. These were soon sold up, and urgent messages to adjacent towns failed to meet the demand. One dealer, a sporting Belgian, however, took the lighting equipment off all the machines in stock, while local motor cyclists lent their lighting sets. All the competitors were then passed in the preliminary examinations.

The British riders had, for the most part, conformed to the regulations, in that they carried head lamps and rear lamps; but, since the whole of the road work is done in daylight, the quality of the light was not brought into question until the examination revealed this requirement of the French law. Then began the scuffle, and even on the eve of the trial there are many Britishers who are not certain that their lighting equipment will stand the test of the severe trial.

Teams from Belgium, Holland, Czechoslovakia, Italy and France are challenging Britain for the international honour, while entrants from Germany and Switzerland add to the strength of the opposition for the individual race.

The test is probably the most severe one ever undertaken, and is likely to prove too much of a trial of stamina for the seven British girls. There is one British team composed entirely of women riders—Miss Foley (A.J.S.), Mrs. L. McLean (Douglas), and Miss B. Lermite (Rudge).

HAIR-RAISING BENDS.

Miss Cottle, who probably has won more honours than any other lady rider, has been omitted from the British team, but she is an individual competitor.

The riders have to cover about 200 miles a day for the next six days at an average speed of nearly 28 m.p.h. They are given no intervals for meals, which must be taken at the roadside buffets in their own riding time. Virtually the whole course is in the adjacent mountains, whose snow-capped peaks threaten danger to the riders.

The race will call for a wonderful display of fine riding and perfect judgment. Especially will this be in evidence in the long descents, with their loose surfaces and hair-raising bends, when lack of control might send machine and rider hurtling into space.

It is on the down grades that time has to be made up, for the gruelling climbs of mountains twice as high as Snowdon pull down the average speeds of the finest riders.

The highest pass is the Col de Rousset, which is about 4,500 feet high. On this ascent the riders must climb through a tunnel more than half a mile long in the mountain side.

The prospects, with the rain pouring down last night, were appalling, and riders are preparing themselves for a wet and adventurous journey.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

CHARGES AGAINST THE BRITISH TEAM.

PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN SPECIAL.

AUCKLAND, Monday.

Mr. E. McKenzie, Chairman of the New Zealand Selection Committee, sensationally attacked the methods of the British Rugby team at a complimentary dinner to the teams, charging them with deliberate obstruction, shepherding, and also of illegal tackling by holding their opponents' jerseys. His speech, made in answer to a graceful tribute to the "All Blacks" by C. D. Aarvold, created tension in what was at first a convivial atmosphere, and was only relieved when C. Porter, the New Zealand captain, said that he only wished tests against such a fine sporting team could be drawn rather than won.

The Auckland Rugby officials, the hosts on the occasion, were at a loss to understand Mr. McKenzie's attack, which, till Porter began speaking, was followed with frozen silence, signally without hand-clapping.

Mr. Hollander, the referee in four of the matches in which the team has taken part, including three tests, scouts Mr. McKenzie's charge, saying that the occasional obstruction or illegal tackling was merely inadvertent, and not pronounced.

The British team has arranged to play an extra match in Australia against West Australia at Perth.

PIGEON RACING.

The first Young Bird Race of the season, under Mid-Ulster Federation auspices, was flown from Malahide (Co. Dublin) to Lurgan (70 miles). Club results:—

BOXING.

SCOTT KNOCKED OUT.

DOWN FIVE TIMES IN TWO ROUNDS.

STRIBLING'S CHANCE WITH SCHMELING.

At the Wimbledon Stadium, London, last night Young Stribling knocked out Phil Scott in the second round.

No better setting could have been decided upon for Phil Scott's match against Young Stribling, the American, than the Wimbledon Stadium, London. Not a hall in the country could have held the thousands who packed the terraces and covered stands and occupied the seats in the field around the ring hours before the first contest was put on. The capacity of the ground, ordinarily given over to dirt-track and greyhound racing, is over 40,000, and the interest in the attempted "come-back" of Phil Scott was evidenced by the fact that there were nearly 20,000 people present two hours before the big fight was due to begin.

Fully 40,000 people were in the Stadium half-an-hour before the big fight.

The fight was described as an eliminating contest for the world's title, the winner being promised a match with Schmeling. On the showing Stribling would appear to have more than a good chance of becoming champion of the world. His methods have never yet been called into question in nearly 300 fights; so that the many friends he made last night will be with him when he gets that chance of the world title.

LITTLE TO BEAT.

Scott's showing definitely proved that he is not of the class of champions of the past which England had produced. The Englishman, if truth be told, appeared weak with his leads, and was unable to make up his mind to go in and fight, as Jimmy Johnson, his American manager, repeatedly called him to do. Stribling had very little to beat. That he beat that little in so decisive a fashion, without showing a single mark of a blow, speaks well for the American in his possible match with Max Schmeling, the world's champion.

Scott never once landed a blow. Four times in the contest he flicked Stribling's face with his open glove, but in the main the Englishman merely waited for those fierce rushes which had even taken the giant Carnera by surprise when he met Stribling in London.

Mr. Sam Russell was referee.

SCOTT DOWN IN FIRST ROUND.

The opening exchanges were almost of a heated order. Scott became worried, and each man seemed to be keen on fighting at the closest range. After Mr. Russell had sternly cautioned both men, Scott went down to a count of nine. He reeled, but got to his feet once more, and in less than a minute he was down for nine more seconds. A hard right to the jaw meant that Scott was in severe trouble once more, and down he went for a third time. About this stage Scott was shaking his head anxiously, and towards the end of the round he went down a fourth time. Eight had been counted when the bell sounded the end of the round, and apparently saved the situation for Scott.

Young Stribling.

SECOND ROUND—AND LAST.

Scott continued to box in anything but scientific fashion, and so acute did the situation become that once Stribling actually retreated with the Englishman hanging on to him, and Stribling looking appealingly to the referee to break the pair. There were derisive shouts as Scott once swung a left, which missed by nearly a foot. The end came in a manner which was not surprising, although it was keenly disappointing. There had not been one blow or series of operations which could possibly be construed as savouring of first-class boxing. The fact was that Stribling quite obviously had not had the opportunity to send a blow which was to his liking. On the other hand, it is questionable if Scott once landed anything but the lightest of blows on the American. There came another period of work which was far from nice, and amidst a roar from all around Stribling landed a left to the stomach.

HOW THE END CAME.

Scott's features twittered. Mr. Russell stood over the Englishman counting the seconds, and the spectators apparently were waiting for Scott once more to rise just short of the beat of the tenth second. Certainly it appeared that Scott was in very little worse plight than he had been on the occasions of his earlier visits to the floor. He made an effort, which to all outward appearances was successful, to regain his feet, but by the time that he was upright once more Mr. Russell had counted the tenth second and ordered Scott to his corner.

That instruction he gave in turn to Stribling, who was declared the winner of what can only be described as an utterly disappointing contest, even from the most generous viewpoint.

The second round lasted 2 mins. 35 secs..

Four Rounds Contest.—Seamen Atkey (Portsmouth) and Jerry Daly (Wales) boxed a draw.

Six Rounds Contest.—Gunner Bennett (Redbourne) beat Marine Trinder (Portsmouth) on points.

Six Rounds Contest.—Reggie Meen (Desborough) beat Dick Power (Wales) in the second round, the referee stopping the fight.

Six Rounds Contest.—Jack Fifeford (Portsmouth) beat Mick Hill (Tooting) on points.

Ten Rounds Contest.—Kid Francis (France) beat Phineas John (Wales) in the third round, the referee stopping the contest.

CARNERA'S SUSPENSION LIFTED

CINCINNATI, Monday.

Primo Carnera, the giant Italian boxer, who was suspended last spring by the National Boxing Association, following his bout with the negro boxer, Maurice Chevalier, was provisionally reinstated to-day. The lifting of the suspension was conditional upon Carnera disposing of the services of his manager, M. Leon See. In a statement to the United Italian Society earlier in the month, General Glennin, Chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, said he was willing to recommend the reinstatement of Carnera providing he changed his manager.

SANDYCOVE SENIOR CHAMPIONS.

CLONTARF WIN JUNIOR LEAGUE MATCH.

The return matches in the Senior and Junior Leagues between Sandycove and Clontarf took place at the Blackrock Baths last evening before a large crowd. The weather was threatening, and a strong wind from the city goal did not help towards accurate passing.

Before the game commenced Sandycove had virtually secured the senior championship; and they made their leadership certain by a pronounced victory over the North side team, winning by five goals to nil. Clontarf, however, although clearly the inferior side, should not have lost by so wide a margin, at least three easy chances to score being missed by poor combination.

In the Junior League Clontarf again beat the champions of 1929, and have now a clear lead of six points in the table, with the maximum points for all their matches. They should have little difficulty in regaining the championship.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

SANDYCOVE ...... 5 CLONTARF 0

Sandycove were early on the attack, but Horlacher, well placed, missed an easy chance. Clontarf invaded in turn, but tried long shots, which did not trouble Flanagan. McCormick receiving from Judd swam down to open the score, and in subsequent play Poole in the Clontarf goal made several brilliant saves. Near half-time Judd scored a second.

With a man out for an infringement in the second half, Sandycove were kept on the defensive for a while, but Brady twice essayed long shots where passes to Grier, unmarked, might have become effective. Horlacher scored a third, and O'Brien a fourth from a penalty. O'Brien added a fifth near the close.

Sandycove—J. F. Flanagan; N. F. Judd, G. C. Higginbotham (capt.); W. J. McCormick; J. Allen, M. O'Brien, and F. Horlacher.

Clontarf—W. Poole; J. S. Brady, J. Quinn; W. L. F. Maguire (capt.); B. Gaffney, C. Grier, and O'S. Roche.

Referee—Major M. A. O'Connor.

LEINSTER JUNIOR LEAGUE.

CLONTARF 2nd... 3 SANDYCOVE 2nd... 1

From the throw in Clontarf got possession, and a quick movement resulted in Lewis beating Fagan with a splendid shot. Clontarf had the better of the subsequent play, but shot badly; and on the interval Cullen seized a chance to equalise with a smart effort.

Against the wind Clontarf had more defensive work in the second half. Sandycove had chances to go in front, but showed a poor idea of combination. Nevertheless, O'Grady was severely tested on three occasions, when he saved well. Lightfoot swam clear from a Sandycove attack, and went on to beat Fagan with a hard shot. Sandycove again attacked hotly, but were beaten off, and Glass made the issue safe for the leaders with a third goal over Fagan's head.

Clontarf 2nd—K. O'Grady; E. J. Lightfoot, L. O'Mahony; P. J. Lavery; B. Mulally, J. V. Glass, E. Lewis.

Sandycove 2nd—W. Fagan; J. F. Doran, J. Doran, W. Healy (capt.); S. Healy, H. Cullen, L. Hughes.

PRESENTATION TO MR. C. R. BATT.

At Half Moon Battery last Sunday a large number of well-wishers took the first available opportunity after his return from America to congratulate Mr. C. R. Batt on his recent marriage.

The President of the Half Moon Club, Dr. C. M. O'Brien, in making the presentation of a parlour clock and Foxford rug, said it was a small token of their esteem of companionship and friendship of years. When life was endangered Mr. Batt's skill had asserted itself in a remarkable manner.

Mr. Batt replied, and said the happiest days of his life were spent amidst that environment and with the members of the Half Moon Club.

INLAND NAVIGATION.

DEPARTMENT AND LIMERICK HARBOUR BOARD.

At Limerick Harbour Board meeting yesterday—the Mayor presiding—a letter was read from the Free State Department of Industry and Commerce on the subject of the resumption of canal traffic via the Abbey River. Certain works included the removal of existing obstructions in the river which affected the navigation at low tide. The Department had, it was stated, carried out every undertaking given on its behalf. Other matters, such as the stopping of the traffic at Park Bridge and provision for water supply and similar services, were for the consideration of the City Surveyor, and not for the Department.

The proposal to construct a lock and sluices at Matthew Bridge would, the letter stated, cause heavy expenditure, as it would mean a new sewage system for a large section of the city. The Grand Canal Company hoped to be able to resume traffic when the arch of Park Bridge was removed and when the dredging under the bridge had been done. It was announced that the Corporation had decided to close the bridge in three weeks' time.

Mr. J. P. Goodbody said that the Department's letter was full of inaccuracies, and should be replied to. It was not at the present moment correct to state that all the obstructions were removed.

The Department's letter was referred to the Navigation Committee of the Board for the purpose of framing a reply.

ENNIS MAIL BAG FOUND.

MISSING REGISTERED LETTERS.

When the Dublin and Cork night mail arrived in Limerick last Thursday it was found that a bag for Ennis was missing. Inquiries were instituted by the Civic Guards, and last Sunday, in an empty wagon at Limerick Junction, the missing bag was found. It appeared to have been tampered with, as some registered letters are missing. The bag now is in the hands of the Guards, who are making further inquiries.

GERMAN GENERAL'S PLIGHT IN BOLIVIA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Monday.

The correspondent of the Associated Press at Arequipa, Peru, states that Mrs. Hans Kundt, the wife of the German General who was chief of the Bolivian Army before the revolution, has arrived at La Paz, accompanied by her daughter. They are both on their way to Europe. Mrs. Kundt said that her husband was still taking refuge in the German Legation at La Paz.

CIVIL SERVANTS' COMPENSATION.

CLAIM BY FORMER COURT CLERK.

Judge Davitt presided at a further meeting of the Civil Service (Compensation) Board held in Dublin yesterday, when the case of Mr. P. J. Troddyn, Barrister-at-Law, late Deputy Chief Clerk in the Metropolitan Police Court, was considered.

The claimant was represented by Mr. Frank Monks (instructed by Mr. W. J. M. Coulter).

Giving evidence, the claimant stated that he had served in the Police Court for twenty-five years up to 1st September, 1926. Prior to that he had been for three years a school teacher under the National Board. He had been before the Wylie Board, and his claim was postponed for six months, by which time the Board was no longer sitting. While this claim was pending he had been offered the position of Chief Clerk on the condition of his signing a certain document connected with the renunciation of the Treaty rights of civil servants. This he refused to do. He was receiving £500 per annum on his retirement, when actually he was acting as Chief Clerk.

THIRTY-EIGHT YEARS' SERVICE.

Mr. Monks maintained that, in addition to his twenty-five years Police Court service, his client was entitled to compensation based on two years of his service as a teacher, and with the extra ten years added for abolition—thirty-eight years' service in all.

To Mr. Lavery, K.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), who, with Mr. T. Finlay, K.C., and Mr. B. McGuckin, appeared for the State, claimant said that he had received no written appointment to the position of Chief Clerk. The Department of Justice had not approved in writing of his retirement. After two letters to the Department, in the last of which he gave notice of his intention to discontinue his services, he remained away from work on the 1st September, 1926, and had not gone back since.

Mr. Lavery submitted that the office of Mr. Troddyn was not abolished by the Courts Act of 1926, and that Mr. Troddyn should have continued to hold his office. His leaving the office was entirely his own act, and not the act of the employer.

HOUSEKEEPERS' CLAIMS.

Mr. Alfred Dickie, K.C., with Mr. C. Roche (instructed by Messrs. William Roche and Sons) appeared on behalf of a number of housekeepers and cleaners who applied for compensation consequent on loss of employment. Mr. Dickie pointed out that they had all been appointed under the British régime by either the then Lord Chancellor, Chief Justice, or one or other of the constituted authorities. The original documents relating to the employment of quite a number were available, but a number had been destroyed in the Four Courts. The number involved was forty-two.

Evidence was given by a number of the claimants.

WORLD'S POULTRY CONGRESS.

SUGGESTED NATIONAL EGG BOARD.

The need for a national over-riding body to promote efficient marketing in the poultry industry was mentioned by Mr. A. W. Street, of the British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, in the Economic Section of the World's Poultry Congress, at the Crystal Palace, London, yesterday. In recent years, he said, the world had realised the necessity for grading agricultural produce, and for establishing common standards of quality and packing, in order to facilitate trade and safe-guard the reputation of the products. In this country the national mark scheme, as applied to poultry and eggs, provided a guarantee of home production and quality, but a number of factors militated against more effective support of the scheme.

So far as the marking scheme for eggs was concerned, it was found that among the discouraging factors were lack of knowledge of the nature and purpose of the scheme, indifference, if not opposition, and lack of confidence. A vast and unparalleled effort had been made by the Ministry of Agriculture to explain the scheme to producers, but there was evidence that only a fraction of the producers understood the nature of the scheme, and many had never heard of it at all. The surplus egg-producing areas—Cornwall, Devon, Somerset, East Anglia, for instance—were in a position comparable with that of the egg-exporting countries of the world. If their eggs were to compete successfully with the produce of those countries it was necessary to adopt similar marketing methods.

Every producer would benefit, directly or indirectly, from the operation of an efficient national standardisation and organisation programme, and it seemed that there was a need for a National Egg Board, representative of, and controlled by, the industry. Such a board would not only provide a "brain" for the industry, but would be able to deal with the difficulties and obstacles which now hindered reform. It might eventually act as a central marketing agency, with immense bargaining powers, capable of handling the main flow of home-produced eggs. All over the world the selling side of agriculture tended to become regulated by national commodity organisations, both trading and non-trading. Such a body for the egg industry of Great Britain would infuse into the producers a feeling of a united purpose, the lack of which had been a great hindrance to agricultural development.

TIENTSIN CUSTOMS INCIDENT.

MR. SIMPSON LIABLE TO BE EXECUTED.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SHANGHAI, Monday.

Discussing the position of Mr. Lenox Simpson, the writer, who is better known as "Putnam Weale," and the Customs Commissionership at Tientsin, the Chinese Press states that the foreign legal adviser to the National Government is of opinion that Mr. Simpson "would be liable to capital punishment if the National Government should get hold of him."

The Chinese Press adds that eminent lawyers consider that Mr. Simpson is liable to prosecution at least for two offences under the Order in Council of March 17th, 1925, section 80, paragraph 1, and section 75, paragraph 1.

It is considered that there is not the slightest doubt that Mr. Simpson's action in connection with the seizure of the Tientsin Customs constitutes an aiding and abetting of rebellion against the existing Chinese Government, which is recognised by all Powers, including Great Britain.

The Chinese Press asks if the Order in Council is a dead letter.

On June 16th Mr. Lenox Simpson informed Lieutenant-Colonel Hayley Bell, Nationalist Commissioner of Customs at Tientsin that he was to take his place. When Colonel Bell arrived at the Customs office the Chinese superintendent formally notified him that the administration had been taken over by the Shansi party at war with the Nationalist Government, and introduced Mr. Simpson as the new Commissioner appointed by the insurgents.

RACING MOTORIST KILLED BEFORE WIFE'S EYES.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WOODBRIDGE, NEW JERSEY, Monday.

Before eight thousand spectators, including his wife and baby, Bob Robinson a racing motorist, of Daytona Beach, Florida, was killed in an accident during a race here yesterday. He was travelling at eighty miles an hour and occupied third place in a fifty miles race, when a rear tyre burst on the car just ahead of him which was driven by Rick Decker, of Staten Island. Decker's machine swerved, and Robinson's struck it a glancing blow. Robinson's front wheels were deflected, and his car shot up an embankment and then plunged thirty feet to the ground outside. He was killed instantly.

As the result of a heavy rainstorm at Clontarf, Co. Dublin, yesterday afternoon, the roadway beyond Fairview was flooded to the extent of over twelve inches. Tramway and 'bus traffic was temporarily dislocated until the flooding subsided.

THE ROWLAND HILL BENEVOLENT FUND.

SOUND FINANCIAL STATE OF FREE STATE BRANCH.

ANNUAL REPORT OF TRUSTEES.

The first annual meeting of the Rowland Hill Benevolent Fund of the Irish Free State was held in Wynn's Hotel, Dublin last evening. Professor Michael Hayes, T.D., Speaker of the Dail, presided as the Chairman of the Trustees. The other Trustees present were Mr. Charles Eason, M.A., and Mr. J. X. Murphy, T.D.

The Chairman said that the purpose of the meeting was to receive the annual report and statement of accounts of the Fund, in accordance with the requirements of the trust deed. The Fund, although revived in the Free State for little more than a year, was quite a long established institution. It was founded in 1882 out of a surplus of monies collected by public subscription for the erection of a memorial statue to Sir Rowland Hill, the founder of the penny post. The Fund was administered by a body of Trustees, who, under the terms of the trust deed, must be persons who had not any other connection with the Post Office. The object of that Fund was to aid Post Office servants of both sexes, established and unestablished, whether still in the service or retired, who, from sickness, age, or other causes, were in adversity; its purpose was to help also the widows, orphans or dependents of such employes when in need of help.

The Chairman went on to explain the working of the Fund, and said that the applications eventually came before a recommendation committee, composed of officers of the Post Office, but the grants were actually authorised by the Trustees.

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

Mr. H. J. McDonagh, the hon. secretary of the Fund, then presented the annual report, which, he stated, covered the period, rather than the year, ended March 31, 1930. In making clear the present position of the Fund, he said that on the change of Government in 1922 the original Rowland Hill Fund, which till then had operated throughout Ireland as well as Great Britain, ceased its activities in the newly-constituted Irish Free State. Thereupon negotiations were entered on with a view to securing a fair proportion of the assets of the original Fund for the purpose of establishing a separate Fund for Saorstat Eireann. These did not come to an end till late in 1928 when, by an Order of the British Court of Chancery an agreed sum of £4,965 was transferred for investment as the nucleus of the new Saorstat Fund. It was largely due to the efforts of Mr. Joseph Booth, Assistant Secretary to the Department of Posts and Telegraphs, that the negotiations were brought to such a satisfactory issue.

TRANSFER FROM BRITISH FUND.

Another item which was the subject of protracted negotiation was the transfer of the benefit from the British Fund to the Saorstat Fund of an investment of a sum of £1,139 17s. 6d. in British 2½ per cent. Consolidated Stock. This investment represented unclaimed shares in an Irish section of the now defunct Post Office Employes Mutual Guarantee Association. The investment, together with interest accumulating from 1922, had been transferred to the Saorstat Fund, under an indemnity to the British authorities from the Government of Saorstat Eireann.

The Saorstat Fund had in this manner been placed in a favourable financial position at the outset, but as the income from investments alone would not ordinarily enable the trustees to meet all the demands that are made on the Fund, it has been necessary, as in the case of the British Fund, to invite the staffs to contribute small weekly or monthly sums; and the response had been splendid. In this connection very much credit was due to the Executive of the Post Office Workers' Union, and especially to its general secretary, Mr. W. Norton. The local representatives of the Fund and the Postmasters had also done very good work in the matter of gaining support for the Fund.

GRANTS.

Continuing, Mr. McDonagh said that it would be observed from the balance sheet that the disbursements in respect of grants amounted to only £253 10s. during the period under review, but that figure was not at all representative of what the normal liabilities under that head would be. It was necessary, at the beginning, to proceed cautiously in fixing the amounts of the grants; these were in consequence small at the outset, but as the staffs' support of the Fund grew, so did the number of grants and the amounts of the individual grants grow.

WORKERS' CONTRIBUTIONS.

Proposing the adoption of the report, Mr. William Norton, the general secretary of the Post Office Workers' Union, spoke of the able manner in which the Fund had been organised and administered up to the present. He ventured, however, in the interests of all, to criticise the way in which the grants had been given, having regard to the fact that the Post Office workers had contributed more than £700 to the Fund, while the grants amounted to only £253. This would seem disproportionate when they remembered all the income in dividends from investments. There was now, he thought, no need for such rigid economy.

Mr. F. Keenan seconded.

Supporting the motion, Mr. P. McMenamin, Controller of the Dublin Postal District, as a member of the Recommendation Committee, said that under the circumstances that existed at the inauguration of the Fund in the Irish Free State the Committee had to be careful, but they would find that according as the income increased from contributions and other sources, the grants made would also increase.

INCOME AND EXPENDITURE.

The Chairman, putting the motion, pointed out that whereas in March, 1929, the Fund had disbursed grants to the extent of £1 5s., in March, 1930, it had disbursed grants to the amount of £92 3s. 6d. The real reason why so little had been given out in grants at the beginning was because the trustees did not know how they stood as regards income, and also because the Fund was not known and they had not received the applications.

On behalf of the trustees, he thanked all those who, in one way or another, had helped the Fund. Special thanks, he said, were due to Mr. McDonagh, the honorary secretary, to whose energy, experience and shrewdness they owed so much. The motion was passed.

Mr. M. Dalton having taken the chair, a vote of thanks to Professor Hayes was passed on the motion of Mr. McMenamin, seconded by Mr. J. Buckley.

MORE UNEMPLOYMENT IN GERMANY.

MAY TOTAL THREE MILLIONS THIS YEAR.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Monday.

The industrial depression in Germany was emphasised to-day by the announcement of Messrs. Siemens and the General Electric Company, which employ thousands of workers, that ten per cent. of the employes of the former firm will be dismissed and that the same fate awaits twelve and a half per cent. of the workers of the General Electric Company.

The number of unemployed workers in Germany, which is already huge, will be swollen, therefore, by a large number of electrical workers. The total number of unemployed workers is expected to reach three millions by the end of the year.

Messrs. Borsig, the locomotive manufacturers, are also reducing their staff, whilst the electrical firm of Bergmann have informed their employes that they will not be needed on Saturdays, nor will weekly wages include payment for that day.

Smaller firms in the metal industry are expected to follow this example, which will doubtless cause great discontent, and possibly swell the ranks of the extremist parties at the general election, to be held on September 14th.

ADMIRAL BEATTY AT KIEL.

Much interest has been aroused here by the news of the arrival of Admiral of the Fleet Earl Beatty. His lordship has come in an English motor yacht, which is moored at the old anchorage of the Imperial Yacht Club.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN FINALLY WEAKER.

NORTHERN RAILS DEPRESSED.

There was still a marked lack of business orders on 'Change owing to the discouraging trade and employment statistics, coupled with the unfavourable weather and holiday influences. Prices at the earlier market, however, gave promise of improvement in certain directions, but later on these gains were modified or lost. Government National Loans were again erratic. The First 5 per cent. Loan improved ¼, but the Second 5 per cent. Loan lost ⅜ of the week-end rise. Land Bonds closed dull. Consols improved, as did Funding 4 per cent. and India Stock, but War Loan Fives were steadily realised at easing prices. Corporation, etc., issues remain very firm and good in tone and trend, with little business resulting. Banks were inclined to ease at the close, with Bank of Ireland Stock finally a point lower. National were a few pence cheaper. Guinness "Units" opened slightly better, despite the further fall in export returns for the past week, but later an odd lot was picked up at a slight concession. Cables and wireless stocks remain without recovery or dealing. Movements in prices of Great Southern Rails were erratic. The Ordinary Stock was brisk and higher practically all day. The Preference eased at the close, and the Debenture Stock slipped back nearly 2 points, but the Guaranteed Stock was firm and higher. Great Northern issues were again drawn blank, but the official closing price of the Ordinary, on the recent passing of the interim dividend, was 23 sellers, against 27¼, the last price dealt in. Probably, however, 20 to 23 would be a more correct rendering of the market if pushed to closer quarters, although only 15 was bid unofficially. Dublin United Tram issues were dull; the Ordinary eased a trifle, but the 6 per cent. Preference fell back nearly 2s. 6d. to 100s. x.d. for the £10 shares. The Debentures were all on sale. Alliance Gas shares were higher. Leading Tobaccos varied a little, with "Bats" weaker on news from the East. Courtaulds were supported quietly at a lower price. It was interesting to note that the reported cut in Rayon prices in the United States scarcely affected the market in this company's shares. Quiet, but steady, support was offered for Dunlop Rubbers at higher prices. Irish-American Oil Preference established a further gain. Lever Bros. 7 per cent. Preference did not hold the recent rise. Burke issues were quietly firm.

LONDON QUIET.

HOME RAILWAYS WEAKER.

Rather quiet conditions characterised the London Stock Markets yesterday, the fact that the present account is of three weeks' duration, coupled with the prevailing depression, generally exercising a restricting influence on business. As a consequence irregular conditions prevailed, with Home Rails an outstanding weak market. Contrary to expectations, dealings did not commence in the Ulster Loan, the allotment letters apparently having not been sent out. The firm tone manifest in the Gilt-edged descriptions at the week-end continued yesterday, and higher values resulted in several directions under the lead of the Conversion issues. Foreign Government Stocks attracted but scanty attention, and, generally speaking, Friday's levels were repeated, though French Fours stiffened a trifle. Home Rails, as mentioned, provided an outstanding feature of weakness, fresh selling being apparent, and substantial declines were registered. Midland Ordinary dropped no less than 3 points, while North-Eastern 5 per cent. Preferred Ordinary and Great Westerns were 2 points and 1 point lower respectively. Southerns also were depressed, and the Preference issues lost ground. Little of interest transpired among Colonial and Foreign Rails, and, apart from fractional losses among Argentines, quotations were much the same as before. A fair volume of transactions was put through in the Industrial sections, and some firm spots were evident. Anglo-Americans strengthened in the morning, but subsequently drifted again.

DUBLIN BUSINESS DONE.

BANK STOCK, TRAMS, "BATS" AND COURTAULDS LOWER. RAILS ERRATIC. IMPERIAL TOBACCOS, GAS AND OILS FIRMER.

Government National 5 p.c. Sterling rose to 101⅜, but ditto Second 5 p.c. fell ⅜ to 102 and Land Bonds 4½ p.c. ⅛ to 92¼; but National 4½ p.c. (New) repeated 94, and the partly-paid scrip fell to 1/16 prem.

In British Funds, Consols rose 7/16 to 55 7/16, Funding 4 p.c. 1/16 to 90¼, and India 3½ p.c. ⅛ to 60¼, but War Loan 5 p.c. fell to 103 7/16, ⅜, 5/16. Consols 4 p.c. Loan closed 87⅞, and Conversion 4½ p.c. 1940-'44 98⅜.

Dublin Corporation New 5 p.c. was again strong at 97, or 1½ prem. on the issue price, and for the £50 10s. scrip 1½ prem. was also bid. The other 5 p.c. issues were actively asked for at higher prices.

In Banks, Bank of Ireland Stock fell 1 to 315, after earlier dealing at 316, and Nationals 3d. to 47s. 6d., but Provincials Old shares were marked 1/16 higher at 27 1/16, and the so-called "New" shares 3/16 higher at 22 bid. Munster and Leinster shares were 1/16 easier round 6 1/16 without changing hands.

In Breweries and Distilleries, Guinness Ord. fell 3d. to 106s. 9d. for a small lot, after earlier dealing at 107s., 107s. 3d.

Rails were in a fluctuating mood. Great Southern Ord. opened unaltered at 20¼, and later business was at 20⅜, ½, ¾. The Pref. was ¼ better at 44¼, but later 43¾ was current, while the Debs. slumped 1⅞ to 62⅛, and the Guaranteed rose ½ further to 54½. Great Northern Ord. was called about 4½ lower at 23 sellers, but 15 or more was unofficially bid.

Dublin Trams were dull. The Ord. fell 6d. to 41s. 6d. and the Pref. 2s. 5d. to 100s. x.d.

Alliance Gas shares rose ⅛ to 9½, and the Debs. remain 65 ineffectually bid.

In Drapery shares, Roches Stores (Henry Street Warehouse) again quoted 12s. 3d.

Among Commercial and Industrial issues, British-American Tobaccos fell 1s. to 106s. 9d., but Imperials rose 6d. to 98s. 9d., and ditto of Canada quoted 37s. 7½d. Burke Ord. repeated 31s. and the Deb. 7½. Courtaulds opened 9d. lower at 41s., and then realised 41s. 4½d., 41s., 41s. 3d. Dunlop Rubber shares were 4½d. better at 12s. 7½d., but Dockrell Pref. fell 3d. to 12s. 6d. Lever Bros. 7 p.c. Pref. fell a [illegible] to 22s. 10½d., 23s., but Irish-American Oil Pref. rose a further 3d. to 22s. 6d.

Other business done included Taylor, Walker and Co. at 37s. 6d.

INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

BREWERIES CHEERFUL.

WARING AND GILLOW FLAT.

Most departments of the Industrial market had a dull appearance yesterday, but Breweries remained cheerful, buyers coming forward on dividend anticipations. Guinness and Watney Coombe finals are imminent, and the interim announcement, of course, is also due this week. The outstanding feature was the continued weakness of Waring and Gillow Ord., which finished a nominal market, disappointment being expressed that no official statement had been issued.

Apart from Radio Corporation, which developed fresh strength in the late dealings, and finished around 46¾, the trans-Atlantic favourites still seemed undecided. The record leaders moved within narrow limits, and showed little change on balance. Cables and Wireless Stocks ruled fairly steady, with the "B" Ord. slightly better at 11½. Marconi Marines hardened to 40s. and Canadian Marconis to 20s.

Iron and Steel descriptions showed little variation. Electricals also remained on the quiet side, with prices generally fairly well maintained.

Brewery shares were again seen to advantage, although a little profit-taking was noticeable at times. Mitchell and Butlers attracted most attention on the increased profits, advancing 1s. 9d. to 56s. 9d., with buyers in evidence for Allsopps at 26s. 9d., Guinness at 107s. 3d., Ind. Coope at 67s. 9d., and South African Breweries Ord. at 61s. On the other hand, Bass receded to 67s. 9d., Distillers to 63s., and Watney Defd. to 65s. 3d.

Tobaccos were quietly steady. International Teas closed the turn lower at 20s. 9d., as did Home and Colonials held at 13s. 1½d., Liptons and Maypole Defd. being without variation at the close.

Waring and Gillow Ords. became a nominal market, dealings being a matter of negotiation. The shares were finally called 5s. lower at 7s. 6d. to 8s., being the lowest recorded bargain. Harrods encountered sellers and gave way 2s. 6d. to 55s. Rayons and Textiles generally lacked supporters. Courtaulds remained around 2 1/16, American Celanese Common at 2¾, and Canadian Celanese at 1¾. British Celanese Ord. dwindled to 9s. 6d. Of the Textile leaders, Fine Spinners steadied to 21s. 3d., but Wardle and Davenport receded to 32s. 6d., and Listers came on offer at 11s.

Most of the interest in the Banking section centred round Williams Deacons shares, the "A" advancing to the extent of 1/16 to 2 1/16 and the "B" 1/16 to 2 1/16. In the Shipping group, P. and O. Defd. shed a few pence to 44s. 3d.

Kreuger and Toll hardened to 28⅛, and Swedish Match were maintained at 15. Dunlops kept around 12s. 6d., but United Molasses closed with a loss of 1/16 at 1 11/16.

RECENT ISSUE DEALINGS.

Courage Debs. hardened to 1¼ prem., and South Metropolitan Gas Debs. to 1 prem., while Kelly's Directories Debs. also closed better at ½ prem. Dealings are expected to commence in Skoda Works new Debs. this morning. It is anticipated that the opening quotation will be on the basis of 2½ discount.

OIL SHARES SATISFACTORY.

A satisfactory tone continued to prevail in the Oil share market yesterday. Buying orders were on a rather better scale than on Friday, but the demand is still comparatively small. The market being short of stock, however, prices responded easily, and most of the leading shares recorded increases on the day. Paris came in a seller of the Eagle issues, but the shares were well taken, and the quotations were sustained. Venezuelans were on the dull side. The British Controlled issues continued to attract little attention, production during the past week showing further decline. V.O.C. had a slight set-back, mainly owing to lack of demand. Trinidads shared in the general tendency, Leaseholds and United British being firm.

RUBBER SHARES IDLE.

Quiet conditions prevailed in the Rubber Share Market, and the tendency was to lower values still further, several of the losses recorded at the close being of quite substantial proportions. Dull conditions ruled in the commodity section, but little material change was shown in values. Spot and August fetched 5⅛d. per lb., October to December 5 5/16d. to 5½d. per lb., and January to March 5 11/16d. to 5¾d. per lb. London stocks of raw material showed an expansion of only 31 tons, but Liverpool stocks were 255 tons higher.

LONDON "STREET" MARKET.

Business was on a small scale in Shorter's Court, with the tendency rather irregular. Nickels proved most active and closed at the best of the day, namely, 25⅞, a rise of ⅛. Radios fluctuated within narrow limits, being finally ½ lower at 46¾. Colgraphs and H.M.V.'s ruled unchanged. Hydros put on ⅛ to 40, though Brazil Tractions eased ¼ to 40¼.

LONDON MINING MARKET FIRM.

COMPARATIVE STRENGTH IN KAFFIRS.

Although dealings remained on a rather modest scale in the Mining Share market yesterday, a firm tone prevailed in most directions. Kaffirs were comparatively strong, mainly due to the changed attitude of the Cape, that centre being a supporter of several of its specialities. Paris also was more cheerful, not a single decline could be recorded throughout the list, and much brighter views were entertained as to the outlook generally.

A fair business was in progress in Rhodesian, particularly in the Northern descriptions, Congo Border were finally £1 to the good, while N'Changa, Rhodesian, Anglo-American, Bwana M'Kubwa and Roan Antelope were up to a lesser extent.

Although the outlook for the tin industry remained obscure there was a slightly better demand for the metal, which moved up £1 3s. 9d. to £135 18s. 9d. per ton. There was, however, little change in the attitude of the Share market, except that real selling appeared to have ceased, and there was less disposition to go on the bear tack.

The price of copper fell back 10s. to £48 16s. 3d. per ton, but there was still a moderate demand for Rio Tinto, partly on Paris account, and the quotation further improved.

The tone in the Miscellaneous department was firm, and Mining Trust were in good request and appreciably higher. Minerals improved in sympathy with Congo Border, and Burma Corporation and Santa Gertrudis benefited from the steady improvement in the price of silver.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

ROYAL BANK OF SCOTLAND.

A special general court of the proprietors will be held at Edinburgh on the 20th August for the purpose of considering, and, if so approved, sanctioning the increase of the capital stock from £2,500,000 to £3,800,000 by the creation and issue of additional stock to the extent of £1,300,000. This is to enable the bank to acquire the shares of Williams Deacon's Bank.

ASSOCIATED LONDON PROPERTIES.

At an extraordinary meeting, following the annual meeting of Associated London Properties, a resolution to increase the capital of the company from £825,000 to £1,000,000 by the creation of 87,500 Preference and Ordinary shares, each of £1, was passed unanimously. The new shares are to rank respectively pari passu with the existing Preference and Ordinary shares, and are to be issued at the discretion of the directors. Shareholders desiring to subscribe for the new shares should notify the secretary in writing to that effect.

ARGENTINA CROPS.

In their cable reports circular, dated July 26, the Anglo-South American Bank, Ltd., state that there have been seasonable frosts over the whole agricultural zone in the centre and south of Argentina, and some snow fell in the interior. Wheat sowing is practically finished in the centre and north. Ploughing and sowing for linseed is proceeding actively generally. Oats are still being sown in the south. Weather conditions are favourable for the crops already sprouted, and for the shelling of maize, which continues generally. The camps are in good condition in all districts.

BASS, RATCLIFF AND GRETTON.

The Secretary of Bass, Ratcliff and Gretton denies the rumour that a director of the firm is in London, Ontario, conferring with the officials of Carling Breweries. The report, it was stated, had given rise to a report that English interests may enter into the Canadian brewing industry through the acquisition of Carlings. We are officially informed that there is no foundation for the rumour.

STOCK EXCHANGE VALUES.

In view of the continued gloom in stock markets, some surprise will, no doubt, be felt that the index of Stock Exchange values compiled by the "Bankers' Magazine," actually shows a rise in variable dividend securities for the month ended July 18. The gross amount of the increase exceeds £29,500,000, and the position is partly explained by the fact that of this total nearly £28,000,000 is accounted for by an improvement in U.S. railway stocks. Nevertheless, there remains a small rise in British securities still to be accounted for, and it is rather encouraging to find that miscellaneous industrials, iron, coal and steel shares, shipping investments, and British bank and insurance shares are all higher on the month. This index does not of course include any recently formed companies, but apart from this there is no reason to suppose that the shares selected are such as to give an unduly favourable view of the situation. It is, however, to be feared that a part of the recovery has been lost in the last ten days, and, despite the index, it seems early yet to look for any real improvement in the situation.

WEAKNESS OF HOME RAILS.

Fuller consideration of the Home Railway interim dividends, and references to the small chance of a material improvement in the current half-year, have not helped the market for the Stocks, which yesterday was almost as weak as it has ever been. In more than one case new low record prices were established, London, Midland and Scottish Ordinary having fallen to 38⅝, London and North-Eastern Preferred to 19⅝, and the Deferred to 6½. What these prices mean may be gathered from the fact that, if the dividend for the current year on London and North-Eastern is the same as before (which, of course, is extremely unlikely), the yield on the Stock would be over 15 per cent. There is some reason to believe that the fresh market weakness is not entirely due to sales by disappointed holders, but that professional operators, taking advantage of the unfavourable outlook, have sold short. The existence of a bear position will help the market ultimately, and real holders would be foolish to sell at the present level. The unsatisfactory dividend record enforces the importance to the railways of a real improvement in trade, especially in the northern area.

AN INVESTMENT SELECTION.

At present the public demand for Stock Exchange securities is mainly for those regarded as safe, and where the yield is something more than that accorded by British Government and Corporation Stocks. A fund available for investment could be profitably spread over about half a dozen securities. These could include Courage and Company 5½ per cent. Debentures and Edmundsons Electricity 5 per cent. Debentures, both new issues, and yielding 5½ and 5¼ per cent. respectively. Another well-secured investment is Dunlop Cotton Mills 6½ per cent. Preference. The interest on these is more than twice covered by the company's own earnings, and, in addition, there is the guarantee of the Dunlop Rubber Company. At the present price of 21s. 3d. x.d., the yield is £6 2s. per cent. A shilling above that figure can be obtained from Furness Withy Ordinary, which can be included in a selection of sound securities owing to the strength of the financial position. Another good choice would be Imperial Tobacco Ordinary, which on the assumption that the dividend for the current year will again be 23 per cent., tax free, gives a net yield of 4¾ per cent., equal to 6¼ per cent., less tax, allowing for the interim dividend in the price. The last selection is Shell Transport 7 per cent. Second Preference. These were issued at 25s. each, and the 15s. paid share could probably be obtained at a little below that figure, thus yielding £5 12s. per cent. The average yield on these six securities, all of which may be regarded as quite sound, is nearly 5 11/16 per cent. The selection has the merit of spreading risks over widely different Stocks.

CABLE TELEPHONE AND GENERAL TRUST.

An extraordinary general meeting of the above-named company will be held at Donington House, Norfolk street, London, W.C.2, on Wednesday, the 6th August, for the purpose of considering and, if thought fit, passing the following extraordinary resolution:—"That the capital of the company be increased to £1,300,000 by the creation of a further 150,000 Preferred Ordinary shares of £1 each, ranking pari passu with the existing Preferred Ordinary shares, and a further 50,000 Ordinary shares of £1 each, ranking pari passu with the existing Ordinary shares."

RISE IN NEW YORK EXCHANGE.

In the closing foreign exchanges there was a further rapid advance in the New York cable rate, which left off at 4.87, as comparde with Saturday's closing level of 4.86¾. Spanish pesetas were further sold, and depreciated to 43.35.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOANS AND DISCOUNTS EASY.

HEAVY GOLD MOVEMENTS.

Despite the scarcity of Treasury bill maturities credit remained in plentiful supply yesterday, most borrowers obtaining all the accommodation they needed until to-day at 1½ to 1¾ per cent. Renewals were also made at these rates. Weekly loans were arranged at 2 per cent.

The tendency of discounts remained weak owing to the good demand for the "hot" Treasuries. These were changing hands at 2 11/16 per cent. to under. Most houses continued to quote 2 1/16 per cent. for fine three months' bank bills, but business was reported at lower rates.

China was a seller of silver, and the price declined 1/16d. for spot and ⅛d. for forward delivery to 16¼d. and 16 5/16d. per oz. respectively. Gold was quoted at ¼d. lower at 85s. 0¾d. per oz. fine.

At the Bank of England £8 in bar gold was bought and £450,000 in sovs. was received from South Africa. On the other hand, £221,977 in bar gold was sold to France, £2,000 in sovs. was taken for export, and £400,000 in sovs. was set aside.

By far the most important of the movements in the foreign exchange market yesterday was that of the sterling dollar rate, which, after opening at 4.86 11/16, closed at nearly 4.87. Canadian dollars cheapened by 1/16c. to 4.86⅛. The Continental exchanges were substantially more favourable to London. Francs closed at the highest at 123.75, as against 123.70. Belgas were finally quoted at 34.79¼, Italian lire were 2c. cheaper at 92.92, while pesetas weakened considerably, the closing rate being 43.35, as against 42.62½. Argentine dollars depreciated by 1/16 to 40 11/16, and milreis were a weak market at about 5⅛.

HIBERNIAN BANK MEETING.

SATISFACTORY POSITION.

INCREASED PROFITS.

The half-yearly general meeting of the shareholders of the Hibernian Bank, Ltd., was held at the head office, College Green, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. Martin F. O'Mahony, Chairman, presiding. Other directors present were:—Messrs. T. L. Moore, P. J. Brady, William R. Nolan, Charles H. O'Connor and A. T. Collins, general manager.

The Chairman said:—In moving the adoption of the report and statement of accounts, I may, as usual, touch briefly on the main features of the statement submitted to you.

The bank's general position, as set forth in the balance sheet, can be regarded with satisfaction. I may point out that, notwithstanding exceptional circumstances which led to special withdrawals during the half-year, our deposit, current and other accounts, standing at £11,575,646, have been maintained at almost the same level as that of June, 1929, there being but the comparatively slight decrease of £120,000. Our consolidated notes in circulation, amounting to £388,527, show an increase of about £64,000 on the figure for June, 1929.

THE ASSETS.

Turning to the assets side of the balance sheet, and comparing the figures with those for the corresponding period last year, it is seen that our cash and investments, together amounting to about £6,505,000, show an increase of £358,000, and bear the satisfactory ratio of about 54 per cent. to our liabilities to the public. The total of our advances under all heads, £6,581,000, shows a reduction of £364,000. This reduction is not attributable to any curtailing by the directors of the usual facilities afforded by the bank to the trading and farming community. Some large advances granted for short periods have been repaid; the requirements of various public bodies are not at the moment so heavy; and a substantial reduction has been effected as the result of the taking over by the Land Commission of lands in respect of which relief has been given by that body to the purchasers. The bank premises account stands at a slightly lower figure, the allocations made out of profits in reduction of the account having more than met the extra expenditure charged to the account.

INCREASED PROFITS.

As regards the profit and loss account, you may remember that our net profits for the two preceding half-years had worked out to a figure below the average. You have, no doubt, noted with pleasure that the profits for this half-year show a satisfactory recovery, and with the balance, £25,192, brought in from last account, provide the sum of £78,382, as set forth to credit of the profit and loss account. We are thereby enabled to pay the usual dividend at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum, to apply £5,000 in reduction of bank premises account, to add £10,000 to the resrve fund, bringing it up to £680,000, and to carry forward to the next account the balance, £32,132. I feel sure these allocations meet with your full approval. I may mention that we have recently made arrangements for preparing claims for recovery and for adjustment of income tax, which will, no doubt, prove of welcome assistance to the customers and friends of the bank.

In conclusion, it affords me much pleasure to give expression to the Board's appreciation of loyal services rendered by the staff during the half-year, and of the part taken by them in the maintaining of the bank's business. (Applause.)

I now beg to move that the report and statement of accounts now read be received, adopted, and entered on the minutes.

Mr. P. J. Brady seconded the proposal, which was adopted.

The resolution declaring the payment of the dividend of 12½ per cent., less income tax, was carried.

Mr. Tench, solicitor, a shareholder, said that the real criterion of the prosperity of a bank was its gross profits. Their gross profits, as compared with expenses of management, justified the directors in recommending the dividend mentioned in the report. He pointed out that a bank or salvagor advanced money to pay land annuities and other charges, and if the person had to borrow money for the purpose he had to pay 6 or 7 per cent., but the court only allowed 4 per cent. It was a matter that should be taken up by the banks.

The Chairman replied that he did not think it was a case for the banks to take the matter up, but it was more for the solicitors concerned to make representation to the courts.

Answering Mr. Healy, a shareholder, the Chairman said that the directors would bear in their minds the matter of opening thrift accounts at their branches.

The meeting concluded.

CABLES TRAFFICS.

IMPERIAL AND INTERNATIONAL COMMUNICATIONS.

	1929.	1930.
	£	£
January	566,062	517,485

June	484,525	413,886
Total	3,108,149	2,807,723

In the figures previously published it was not found possible to include comparative figures for the West Indian companies. These, however, are now available, and have been incorporated on both sides of the present statement, and will be included in future returns.

It is hoped in future to publish these estimated message receipts in the Press on the fourth Tuesday in each month.

It will be remembered that in the annual report of the Imperial and International Communications Company reference was made to the receipts of the telegraph companies as being a barometer of trade. When that report was published a table showing the relation between the Communications Company's traffic receipts and the foreign trade of the United Kingdom. The figures were calculated on a daily basis, and are reproduced below, with the necessary correction in the case of the Communications receipts for the inclusion of the West Indian Companies, and with the addition of the figures for the month of June.

	Imperial and International Communications Ltd. Traffic Receipts, £000 per day.		United Kingdom, Imports and Exports, Excluding Re-exports, per day.

The close relation between trade and telegraph receipts was referred to again by Mr. J. Denison Pender, in his speech at the annual meeting of Cables and Wireless, Ltd., when he also mentioned the experience of the Western Union Telegraph Company, the Communications Company's great American competitors.

The Western Union's figures for the first six months of 1930 are now available, and show the following results, which indicate clearly that the falling-off in receipts is not peculiar to the British companies:—

Gross revenue, including dividends and interest, 1929, $72,803,162; 1930, $69,054,195. Net income, 1929, $7,622,569; 1930, $4,326,068.

ALLIED STORES.

MAYPOLE DAIRY CO., LTD.

By order of the Court separate meetings of the holders of the 5 p.c. Cumulative Preference shares, the 20 p.c. Cumulative Preferred Ordinary shares, and the Deferred Ordinary shares of Maypole Dairy Company, Ltd., were held yesterday at the Hotel Metropole for the purpose of submitting a scheme of arrangement.

Sir James Martin, J.P., who presided, said that the scheme of arrangement, together with the circular letter sent to each shareholder, gave full information in regard to the terms of the proposed amalgamation of the businesses of the Home and Colonial Stores, Meadow Dairy, Maypole Dairy, Pearks' Dairies, International Tea Stores, and Lipton, Ltd. The amalgamated undertaking would be vested in a new company called Allied Stores, Ltd., to which the businesses of all the companies mentioned, except Lipton, Ltd., would be transferred outright, in exchange for shares of the new company, the shareholders of Lipton, Ltd., having an opportunity also of exchanging their shares for shares in the new company.

It was provided that the shareholders of the Maypole Dairy Company should receive fully-paid shares in the new company as follows:—(1) Nineteen "A" 6 p.c. Preference shares of £1 each of the new company for every twenty 5 p.c. Cumulative Preference shares of £1 each of the Maypole Company held by them respectively; (2) one 15 p.c. Preferred share of £1 of the new company for every three 20 p.c. Cumulative Preferred Ordinary shares of 5s. each of the Maypole Company held by them respectively; (3) two Ordinary shares of 5s. each of the new company for every five Deferred Ordinary shares of 2s. each in the Maypole Company held by them respectively. It was proposed that the Maypole Dairy Company should continue to pay on its existing shares dividends at the rate of 5 p.c. per annum on the Preference, 20 p.c. per annum on the Preferred Ordinary shares and 17½ p.c. per annum on the Deferred Ordinary shares until the shares in the new company were issued and ranked for dividend.

In regard to the directors, it would be observed that the Maypole Company had a very equitable representation on the new board, which included two of its managing directors and two other of his colleagues who had been identified with the organisation for many years. It was to be regretted that all his colleagues could not go on the new board, but their advice and assistance would not be wanting in other directions.

The experience gained in this connection was such that the board were confident that in the larger merger now proposed still greater economies could be effected. Unnecessary competition in the opening of new shops could be eliminated; warehousing, transport and overhead expenses could be reduced, and the resulting reduction in costs should enable them to offer still greater value to the shopping public, thereby ensuring the steady growth of the turnover, on which increased profits must depend.

The Chairman having replied at considerable length to a number of questions from shareholders, the resolution adopting the scheme was put to the meeting, and was carried by a large majority.

Similar resolutions were approved at the meetings of the Preference and Preferred Ordinary shareholders, respectively.

HOME AND COLONIAL STORES, LTD.

By order of the Court, separate meetings of the holders of the 6 per cent. Cumulative Preference shares, the 15 per cent. Cumulative Preference shares, the 15 per cent. Cumulative Ordinary shares, and the Ordinary shares of the Home and Colonial Stores, Ltd., were held yesterday at the Hotel Metropole, London, for the purpose of submitting a scheme of arrangement.

Mr. William May, who presided, said that the scheme had for its object the amalgamation of the company with the Meadow Dairy, Maypole Dairy, Pearks' Dairies, International Tea Company's Stores, and Lipton, Ltd. The amalgamation would be effected, as regarded the first four companies and themselves, by the transfer to a new company, called Allied Stores, Ltd., of their respective undertakings in exchange for fully-paid shares of the new company, and as regarded the Lipton shareholders, by an exchange of their shares into fully-paid shares in the new company.

The five companies concerned, with their subsidiaries, had over 4,500 shops spread over the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State for the sale of food products. Their success and continuous growth of business might be attributed to the high quality and cheap prices at which they had been able to supply the public, but they had no monopoly in this respect, and competition was keener every year. To maintain and increase profits in these conditions increased turnover was necessary, and working costs had to be kept as low as possible compatible with efficiency. The directors believed that this result could best be achieved by the amalgamation now proposed and the elimination of useless competition.

The shareholders in the Home and Colonial would receive fully-paid shares in the new company as follows:—(a) For each 6 per cent. Preference share of £5 now held five new 6 per cent. Preference shares of £1 each; (b) for every twenty 15 per cent. Preference shares of £1 twenty-one new 15 per cent. Preferred shares of £1; (c) for every Ordinary share of £1 one new Preferred share of £1; and (d) for each Ordinary share of 4s. one new Ordinary share of 5s. Shareholders were to continue to receive dividends for the current year at the same rate as last year until the new shares ranked for dividend.

As to the directorate of the new company, Sir James Martin, who was Chairman of the Maypole Dairy and Lipton, was the Chairman of the Board. He (the speaker) had been appointed Vice-Chairman, and the other directors would include Mr. Greig and Mr. Purves, who would be two of the managing directors. Mr. T. W. Davidson, their senior managing director, did not appear among the list of directors of the new company. The sole reason was that he contemplated, after many years' service in their company, retiring altogether at an early date, and at his express wish he was making room for younger men.

Questions having been answered, resolutions approving the scheme were adopted at all four meetings by large majorities.

CATTLE EXPORTS TO BRITAIN.

HEAVIEST SINCE 1924.

INCREASE IN FAT PIG SHIPMETNS.

Exports of each description of live stock from Ireland to Great Britain and the Isle of Man for the half-year ended 30th June last have been above the average for five years, and, with the exception of sheep and lambs, larger than in the corresponding period of last year. The comparative figures are:—

Jan. to June.	Cattle (inc. Calves.)	Sheep and Lambs.	Pigs.
1924	465,983	230,988	119,969
1925	343,456	160,146	22,431
1926	295,090	139,839	37,101
1927	295,209	200,409	132,092
1928	335,564	259,235	150,234
Avge. 1924-1928	346,660	198,123	92,369
1929	397,237	238,344	123,114
1930	431,100	215,346	144,216

The total exports of cattle (including calves) in the first six months of the current year have amounted to 431,100, an increase of nearly 34,000, or 8½ per cent., compared with the corresponding period of 1929, and over 84,000, or 24 per cent., in excess of the five-year average. The rate of export has been, in fact, the heaviest recorded since 1924. There has been little alteration in the numbers of fat cattle shipped from Ireland in the first half of the last three years, although, owing to the relatively low exports in 1925 to 1927, the total this year to date (123,197) has been substantially in excess of the average.

THE MAIN INCREASE.

The main increase, however, has occurred in other descriptions of cattle, which represents the total of stores, milch cows, springers and calves. The combined shipments of these descriptions have numbered some 307,900 this year, an increase of over 33,000, or 12 per cent., compared with the first six months of last year, and nearly 68,000, or 28 per cent., in excess of the average. The greater part of these animals are classified as stores, exports of these having been about 241,700 this year, or 30,000 more than in the first half of 1929, and nearly 40,000 above the average. Exports of milch cows have been 23,760 to date, which, although little different from the 22,455 recorded in the opening half of last year, is some 8,500 in excess of the average. Springers sent across from Ireland have numbered 6,723 this year, or rather fewer than in the corresponding period of 1929; but a further increase has been recorded in calves, the exports of which have been 35,673, against 33,412 in the first half of last year, and the five-year average of 17,279 only.

FEWER SHEEP AND LAMBS.

Fewer sheep and lambs have been sent from Ireland than in the six months ended June, 1929, the reduction amounting to 23,000, or 10 per cent., although the total has been about 9 per cent. over the five-year average. In spite of the variation in exports from year to year, it is noticeable that lambs have tended to form an increasing proportion of the total exports, shipments of lambs at 151,848 having represented 71 per cent. of this year's total against a proportion of 62 per cent. in 1924. Fat sheep sent from Ireland have numbered 61,835, a decrease of some 8,700 compared with the corresponding period of last year and over 5,000 below the five-year average. In addition, there are small exports of store sheep, this year's total of 1,663 having been rather larger than usual.

MORE PIGS EXPORTED.

There has been a recovery in the rate of exports of pigs from Ireland, and the total this year has been, with one exception, the heaviest recorded in the period covered by the table. The increase compared with the first half of last year exceeds 21,000, or 17 per cent., while owing to the small exports in 1925 and 1926 the current year's total exceeds the average by nearly 60 per cent. The pigs sent from Ireland are almost entirely fat, exports of stores in the periods under consideration averaging about 3,000.

RUSSIAN TRADE FOR SCOTLAND.

SOVIET DELEGATE'S APPEAL.

An appeal for a trade rapprochement between Scotland and Soviet Russia was made to Glasgow business men assembled under the auspices of the Glasgow Chamber of Commerce yesterday, by Mr. Saul G. Bron, Chairman of the Soviet Trade Delegation. "We do not limit ourselves as to how far we are willing to go in making purchases in this country," said Mr. Bron. Scottish steel, iron, machine tool making and boiler making industries could participate in the industrialisation of Russia, he argued, and future collaboration between Scottish and Soviet industries could be carried through by signing with Scottish firms contracts which would combine the placing of orders for the equipment of factories and works with technical advice and supervision of the construction of the factories for which the equipment was required.

A Soviet commission now in England would shortly be negotiating the possibility of placing orders for oil tankers, motor ships and steamships for carrying timber, dredgers, trawlers, cargo and passenger steamers. A large programme of orders for big ships would also be negotiated, and a special commission of experts would make a tour of Scottish works shortly.

THE LORANG CASE.

FINANCIER AGAIN IN COURT.

The hearing was resumed at the Guildhall, London, yesterday of the charge against Francis Lorang, director of the Blue Bird group of companies, who is accused of fraudulently converting £317,000. Evidence had been given by Mr. L. Valentine Walters, accountant of the Board of Trade, that there was no record of the receipt in the books of the Blue Bird Motor Company of £36,775 which the Blue Bird Petrol Company paid for pumping apparatus, but a receipt was produced for that amount. An entry in the motor company's minute book purported to authorise Lorang or his nominee to receive the £36,775 for use at his discretion.

Mr. Walters, giving evidence yesterday, produced a statutory report, dated June 14th, 1927, of the Blue Bird Oil Importers, Ltd., in which there was stated to be a balance of £92,713 standing to the credit of the company. On examining the books of the company he found that only £6,729 was actually standing to their account. The main part of the difference appeared to be accounted for by cheques (which he produced) totalling £88,675, which were shown in a private ledger as debited to Mr. Lorang's personal account.

Referring to the accounts of Blue Bird Holdings, Ltd., which was formed to hold shares in the other four companies, Mr. Walters said that the sum of £434,642 was shown as allocated for subscriptions, whereas the total received by the company was only £88,671. On February 7th there was a cheque drawn by M. Piejus for £2,000, which went into Lorang's private account. On the following day a cheque for £4,000 was drawn by M. Piejus in the same way, and paid into Lorang's account, and there were cheques drawn by Lorang personally upon the company's account.

Lorang was remanded until Thursday.

EXPORT OF OLD HORSES.

A statement issued on behalf of the Committee of the South County Dublin Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says:—The feeling all over Great Britain and Ireland that live horses should not be exported for butchery is increasing steadily and surely. It must be remembered that, in spite of the improved conditions of transport and strict veterinary inspection at the ports of embarkation, nothing can eliminate the risk of sickness and injury during the long sea passage, and that once the horses are on foreign soil they are no longer protected by our legislation. The standard of humane treatment in foreign countries is not at all the same as our own; nor are the laws for the prevention of cruelty to animals enforced as they are in our own country. The Enniscorthy Urban Council has the honour of being the first public body in the Free State to publicly condemn this traffic. At a recent meeting of the Council a resolution was passed, and a copy forwarded to the South County Dublin S.P.C.A., asking them to give the matter publicity, and hoping that other public bodies would also take it up.

PROBLEM OF PURE MILK SUPPLY.

THE ERADICATION OF TUBERCULOSIS.

Mr. P. F. Dolan, M.R.C.V.S., Chief Veterinary Inspector under the Dublin Corporation, delivered an important address yesterday to the Dublin Rotary Club in Clery's restaurant, on the subject of our food supplies, with special emphasis on the dangers of milk from cows that are affected with tuberculosis.

Mr. Dolan said that it was absolutely essential to the public health that the standard of our food supplies should be raised considerably. Important points in connection with our food supplies were:—Prices, freedom from disease carrying power, cleanliness, and the understanding of what cleanliness means. With reference to our meat supplies, improvements had been made in recent years, and the general tendency of traders was to endeavour to put on sale a reasonably sound article. With reference to freedom from disease, it was necessary to have ante-mortem and post-mortem inspection, for it was found that tuberculosis in cattle and pigs forms the big obstacle to efficient inspection, and that if this disease were absent in these animals inspection would be a much lighter matter. The handling of fruit also was important.

THE MILK SUPPLY.

It was to the milk supply and its quality that Mr. Dolan devoted the greater portion of his address.

It is clear, he said, from the work and opinions of members of the medical profession, in particular those of Dr. Stanley Griffith, that milk is an important source of conveying bovine tuberculosis to the human subject.

"Many people nowadays state that the real trouble is that children are not receiving sufficient milk. This undoubtedly is quite true, but this state of affairs is not due to an insufficient supply, but rather to the fact that poor people cannot afford to buy milk. I see no reason why the eradication of bovine tuberculosis should decrease our supply, provided a rational view is taken of the subject. On the other hand, if tuberculosis were eliminated, there is every reason to believe that the amount of milk consumed per head of the population would be increased.

"There are other important reasons for delaying, or putting into the background, this question of the eradication of bovine tuberculosis; and they are—the nature of the disease, the cost to the State, the failure of the agriculturist to recognise the losses caused by the disease. Undoubtedly, the cost would be big, but if a serious attempt were made now and the question tackled in a proper manner, and a certain amount of work done each year, then in the future the problem, instead of being a big one, would be a comparatively small one.

LITTLE PROGRESS.

"In this country at present we have in force the Bovine Tuberculosis Order of 1926, and this Order has not made much headway on the Tuberculosis (Ireland) Order of 1914, when we take into account the space of time that has elapsed—in other words, since 1914 we have made little or no progress. The Bovine Tuberculosis Order of 1926 will never eradicate bovine tuberculosis. It gives us very good legal power to deal with certain forms of the disease, a power which is very necessary, indeed; but we must look to other means in addition to this Order to make progress, even in the initial steps of eradication. Those that are in close contact with this disease clearly recognise that an animal may be extensively affected—that is, the disease may be in all organs of the body and still the animal may retain the normal appearance of health, and be in perfect condition, and the greatest expert may not be able to detect the presence of the disease without special tests or laboratory work. This class of case is not rare; on the other hand, it is very common, so common that the present Bovine Tuberculosis Order will never make any progress in eradication.

QUESTION OF COMPULSION.

"If efforts fail to bring about the necessary steps in the elimination of bovine tuberculosis, then we must fall back on compulsory pasteurisation or sterilisation of our milk supplies. There are some who advocate this method of dealing with this big question of our milk supply, but it should be understood that close supervision and expensive plant are necessary, and I believe, rightly or wrongly, that the money spent on these expensive plants should go to the farm instead, or at least a proportion of it. I have no doubt that even under the most favourable circumstances it will be necessary on economic grounds to pasteurise a large amount of our milk.

"My ideal, and one which I have had for a long time, is that milk should be taken from healthy cows, bottled, and put on the consumer's table without being touched by human hand. It is gratifying to note that in many places in England this procedure is carried out, and that the cows are certified healthy, are milked by sterilised machinery, and the milk is bottled; but I am sorry to say that the amount sold is nothing as compared with the amount of pasteurised and other milks."

HOSPITALS AND MILK.

Mr. R. H. Keatinge said that it was a grievous thing that only two hospitals in Dublin were being supplied with milk that was guaranteed free from tubercle bacilli—Mercer's and the Children's Hospital, Harcourt street. He suggested that cows should be tested every six months.

Mr. Charles Jacob said that they should support Mr. Dolan in his important work. Many reforms were badly wanted, and one was that meat should not be exposed on carts driven about the city.

Mr. Keith Eason said that public opinion was being enlightened as to the necessity of keeping the food supplies clean. In many of the shops cakes were being wrapped in paper, and if the butchers followed that example and covered the meat on their stalls it would be a step in the right direction.

Other speakers were Mr. Lamb, Mr. Kearns and Mr. Cathcart.

The President (Mr. Clampett) expressed the appreciation of the Club for Mr. Dolan's address.

DISTURBANCES IN BRAZIL.

SEQUEL TO POLITICAL ASSASSINATION.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Monday.

According to the Rio de Janeiro Correspondent of the Associated Press, grave disorders are reported from the State of Parahyba, whose President, Senhor Joao Pessoa, was assassinated by a political opponent in a café at Recife on Saturday night.

Telegrams received in Rio de Janeiro today indicate that one person has been killed and several houses have been destroyed by fire in various parts of the State.

Parahyba has been the most disturbed State in the Republic since the Presidential elections of last March, when the Liberals, under the late Senhor Pessoa, were defeated. For more than four months Senhor Jose Pereira, a State deputy has been conducting an armed rebellion against the Pessoa Government.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN HOUSE.

MAN CHARGED WITH MURDER

Late last night the body of Miss Edith Matthews (27), of Bagnall road, Milton, a village about three miles from Stoke-on-Trent, was found in a bedroom at a house in Milton, where she had called earlier in the evening to collect rent. She had terrible head injuries, and had apparently been struck with a blunt instrument.

Stoke-on-Trent police last night arrested a single man and charged him with wilful murder. He will be brought before Hanley magistrates this morning.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW'S BIG FORTUNE.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Monday.

It is announced that the late Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, who died on April 5th, 1928, left estate to the value of $17,500,000 (£3,500,000). Mr. Depew was a lawyer who went in for politics and also for business. He represented New York in the Senate, and, having been attorney to railways, became chairman of the whole Vanderbilt system. He was, during his lifetime, the after-dinner speaker of America, and acted as national orator on many occasions, such, for instance, as the unveiling of the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbour. He was ninety-four years of age when he died.

FOOD AND PRODUCE MARKETS.

Birkenhead—Excessive supplies and lower prices. Hull—Steady. Merklands Wharf—Well attended, prices good average. Manchester—Pigs quiet demand. Wakefield—Large show and steady demand. London—Steady, but trade quiet. Rubber dull. Tin dearer. Copper lower.

CATTLE.

LONDON (METROPOLITAN).—Small supplies of fat beasts were about on a par with the corresponding market day last week, and met a slow demand at about late rates. AUSTRALIAN WOOL.

LEVY ON GROWERS FOR RESEARCH AND PUBLICITY.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Australian Sheep Breeders' Association, at their annual meeting to-day, discussed the urgent need for world-wide publicity in favour of the use of wool.

Senator Guthrie said that millions had been spent in advertising artificial silk, and woolgrowers should follow suit.

Other speakers urged that the possibility of the more economical production of wool should be investigated, as well as cheaper means of manufacture.

The meeting supported the proposal, to organise an annual levy of half a crown per £100 on the proceeds of wool sold in Australia for research and publicity.

BELFAST 'BUS SERVICE.

APPLICATION TO INCREASE FARES.

The inquiry before the Northern 'Bus Tribunal into the application of the Belfast Corporation to increase the 'bus fares and to discontinue return fares was continued yesterday, when further evidence was given by Mr. Chamberlain, manager of the Belfast City Trams.

Councillor M'Clure, Chairman of the Tramways and Omnibus undertakings, was then examined. At the outset he spoke of the policy of the Committee.

Witness said that their opinion was that, where a route did not happen to pay for itself, they would not be justified in endeavouring to raise the fares. At the same time, there were districts very remote and sparsely populated where they could not carry out that policy. In the circumstances in which they commenced to run 'buses they took over services which they would not have started, but which were directly competing with the tramway service, and which were running services for the benefit of people requiring an express service. They felt now that such people should be obliged to pay for the luxury of going into the 'buses instead of the tramcars. That, he thought, was briefly their policy.

NON-PAYING SERVICES.

They had continued these 'bus services up to the present, and subsidised them from the tramways. There must, however, be a limit to that; it could not go on indefinitely. He did not see why they should be obliged to run non-paying services to districts which would never be paying when they did it simply for the luxury of people who had not an alternative service.

The Chairman (Sir Lynden Macassey)—Is it the policy of the Corporation to make the omnibus service self-supporting?—No, sir; it is not. I think there are 'bus routes, just as there were tram routes, which they did not hope ever to see paying routes.

In answer to Mr. Clarke, witness said that he did not think it was an unfair discrimination to charge a 4d. fare on the 'bus to and from Glengormley as against 2d. on the tram. It would be impossible to carry on at a lower rate. They had hopes in the near future of putting on a universal penny tram fare. The 2d. fare was put on before Mr. Chamberlain came, but it was his policy, and he approved of it.

This closed the case for the applicants.

OBJECTIONS.

Objections were raised by ratepayers in the Cherry Valley and Cavehill road districts. Referring to the Cavehill road district, Captain Ryall said that the loss on the route was put at 8 per cent, and he wanted to know if that justified an increase of 50 per cent.

Mr. Chamberlain proceeded to reply for the City Council, and wanted to arrest the impression that the Corporation desired to put any burden on the 'bus undertaking to support the tramways. The impression there was quite the contrary. It had been shown that he had increased the service on the Cavehill road. If he were desirous of driving people off the 'buses and on to the trams, he would follow the advice of Major M'Cormick as to a point to point service. A man in his position could not afford to go on losing £20,000 a year on the 'bus service. That would have to be justified only by the decision of the tribunal.

The Court asked Mr. Chamberlain a number of questions, one of which was how he could reasonably justify the raising of the 'bus fares to 4d. when the maximum tram fare was 2d.

The answer was for economic reasons.

The Chairman thanked all for the assistance the Court had received, and said that their findings would be made known in due course.

For, as alleged, waylaying and beating a farmer, John McAnulla, near Newtownstewart, when he was on his way to the creamery on July 21, Frank Connolly and Patrick Gormley were arrested and brought before a Special Court at NEWTOWNSTEWART yesterday. The accused men were returned for trial in custody.

TWICE DEPORTED FROM AMERICA.

JOCKEY'S REMARKABLE STORY.

A remarkable story was told on his arrival yesterday in Liverpool, in the liner Adriatic, from New York, by James Burns, an eighteen-year-old jockey, who had been deported from America. Known as Jimmy Burns on the American track, he said that he had met with considerable success.

"I was first taken out to Canada by a married sister when I was three years old," he said. "When I was eleven I ran away from her home and went to Spokane, near Washington, and as I looked older than my age I soon got a job at exercising racehorses. After two years of this I went to Tijuana, Mexico, and before I was fourteen I was riding horses on the race track at San Francisco. Then the emigration authorities caught me through an accident I had on the racecourse, which sent me, along with two other jockeys, to hospital. I was deported to England.

"I returned home to Newcastle, and at the end of two weeks I shipped in a cargo boat as a galley boy in London and eventually arrived in Philadelphia. I went on to Miami, Florida, and started riding again, but I was unlucky enough to be recognised by a jockey, who gave me away to the emigration officials.

"I was arrested on January 7th, accused of entering the country after having been deported. I sought the help of a lawyer, but was kept waiting for three months before I was brought to trial in Philadelphia, sentenced to two months' imprisonment, and lodged in prison where there were murderers and all classes of criminals."

Burns added, that a further unenviable experience which he had was on Ellis Island, where he was kept from May 23rd until July 18th before being deported.

EXPLOSION INQUEST VERDICT.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

At the resumed inquest at Castleford, Yorks, yesterday, on the thirteen victims of the explosion at the chemical works at Castleford of Hickson and Partners, Ltd., on July 10th, the jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death from the explosion which occurred in the acid mixer, and that the explosion was accidentally caused in the mixer, and that there was no negligence." They recommended that in future acids should be tested before being placed in the "eggs." Thirty-two people were injured seriously in the explosion.

Mr. George Herbert Frank, technical director and works manager, describing the acid mixer, said that the nitric acid "egg" was a heavy metal container. Portions of the mixers were found seven hundred yards away. Two walls, one a fourteen-inch thick one, were blown over.

Hubert A. Hoyle, manager of the sulphuric acid department at the works, said that they had tried with samples of acids such as were in use when the disaster occurred to create either flames or an explosion, and had failed. He had spent a fortnight studying the problem, and could think of nothing to account for the accident.

Dr. H. E. Watts, H.M. Inspector of Explosives, said that he thought the most probable cause was that some nitro body had got into the mixer, with the result that there was an uncontrolled nitration and subsequent explosion.

BELFAST FIRM'S DIVIDEND.

Important matters relating to the affairs of Messrs. John Fulton and Co., Ltd., were mentioned in the Chancery Division, Belfast, yesterday during the hearing of a summons by Mr. H. H. Muir, official liquidator of Messrs. John Fulton and Co., Ltd. (in liquidation), to be at liberty to declare and pay a first dividend of 10s. in the £ upon the debts and claims against the company which had been allowed by the Chief Clerk at the date of the latter's certificate, amounting in all to £83,630 10s. 5d., also to pay claims under £1 (in full), of which there were about seventy-three.

The judge granted the liberty sought in the summons.
